MEETS ALL OBJECTIONS

Borah Insists Security and Monroe Doctrine Are Not Affected.

DENIES FORCE IS IMPLIED

CRUISER BILL PUT ASIDE

Senator Hale Agrees After Urging Its Passage and Attacking Its Foes.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The multilateral treaty, renouncing war, and the bill authorizing the construction of fifteen cruisers were taken up for consideration in the Senate this afternoon in accordance with an agreement made just before Congress adjourned for the Christmas holidays.

Senator Hale of Maine, chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs, gave a comparatively brief explanation of the cruiser program, in the course of which he contended that there was nothing inconsistent between it and the anti-war pact, and was followed by Senator Borah, chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, whose speech on the multilateral treaty was preceded by a motion, adopted without dissent, that its consideration should be conducted in open session.

In the period of less than two hours devoted by Senator Borah to explaining the treaty's terms, it became apparent that it is a controversial measure which will be subjected to close scrutiny. No definite hostility to it developed, but Senator Borah was subjected to searching inquiries which showed that a number of Senators are disposed to look askance at it for one reason or another.

The impression was conveyed that an inclination exists on the Democratic side of the chamber to make it appear that the treaty means nothing and gives no assurance of better means for the preservation of world peace.

Blaine Hostile to British Stand.

Some inquiries indicated that there would be additions to the small group which contends that the Senate should express its "understanding" of the treaty's provisions through a clarifying resolution. Prior to the beginning of the debate there was an intimation of the intention of one Senator to vote against the pact unless a reservation were attached to it.

This came from Senator Blaine of Wisconsin through the medium of a resolution which, in effect, repudiated the declaration of Sir Austen Chamberlain that Great Britain reserved the right to take measures of self-defense if there was foreign interference in "certain regions of the world" whose integrity was a special and vital interest for British peace and safety.

"I cannot consent to a treaty that obligates America to recognize and respect the claims of any nation against the right of independence of other nations," said Senator Blaine.

Some of the questions asked Senator Borah relate to the Monroe Doctrine. Would the United States be prevented by its obligations under the treaty from defending the rights which the Monroe Doctrine asserted? Would the United States, under such a treaty, have had the right to resort to hostile measures against Spain when the latter government disclaimed responsibility for the destruction of the Maine?

If the League of Nations undertook punitive measures against an offending member which also had adhered to the multilateral pact, would not the United States be obliged to join the League in the use of force? If there was no provision for enforcing the treaty's terms, what was the use of it?

Reed Presents Supposititious Case.

Senator Reed of Missouri, Mr. Borah's old ally in the fight against the ratification of the League of Nations' Covenant, pressed for information that involved the obligations of the League. He presented a supposititious case. Suppose the League should institute a blockade against one of its members and in maintaining it an American merchant vessel should be seized.

Would it be a violation of the anti-war pact if a United States warship resisted the effort of a League warship to take the American merchant vessel from under its guns?

Senator Borah contended that there was nothing in the treaty to curtail the right of the United States to resort to force in self-defense. He stressed that practically all the discussion of the treaty had centred in the provision renouncing war as an instrument of national policy, whereas little attention had been

House Bans Lunch Counter In Cloakroom as Unsanitary

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The House of Representatives, which only recently installed a system to purify the air in the House chamber, today took another step toward cleanliness by doing away with the cloakroom lunch counter, where sandwiches have been served for years.

Representative Charles L. Underhill of Massachusetts, acting chairman of the Committee on Accounts, in charge of the House restaurant, told the House today that Commander George W. Calver of the navy, who was assigned to look after the health of members, had found the little counter to be "the most unsanitary eating place" in the District of Columbia.

20 NATIONS TO SIGN AMERICAN TREATIES

Conference Committees Complete Compacts of Arbitration and Conciliation.

FINAL APPROVAL DUE TODAY

Peaceful Settlement of Bolivia-Paraguay Dispute Prepared For in Signature of Protocol.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—A general treaty of inter-American arbitration and also a general convention on inter-American conciliation, described as broader in scope than any similar documents in the world, were formally approved today by the standing committees of the International Conference of American States on Conciliation and Arbitration.

The draft treaties will be voted on at a plenary session tomorrow. On Saturday, the ceremony of signing them will end the work of the conference, which has been sitting here since Dec. 10.

Only a few minor changes were made in the confidential texts which had been drawn up by sub-committees and submitted to the various delegations privately for discussion. These changes will be made by an editorial committee which is now preparing the final text for the signature of the plenipotentiary delegates of the twenty American republics attending the conference.

Despite hopes that no further discussion would be necessary, some of the articles elicited considerable debate on the floor, and it became apparent that, as far as the Arbitration Treaty is concerned, the majority of the nations are entering reservations.

Cuba, Panama and the United States were the only nations which announced today that they had no reservations of any kind. The position of the United States in regard to the Arbitration Treaty was explained by Charles Evans Hughes, who is a member of the Committee on Arbitration.

"Notable Advance" for Peace.

"On behalf of the government of the United States," said Mr. Hughes, "I am happy to say that the delegates of the United States of America will sign this treaty of arbitration without any reservations. We consider this treaty as a notable advance in the development of peaceful settlement.

"It is quite obvious that it is not sufficient to renounce war unless we are ready to have recourse to the processes of peace. The resolution

GILBERT DEFENDS REPORT ON GERMANY ON HIS ARRIVAL HERE

Reparation Agent Asserts It Did Consider Loans in Relation to Reich's Paying Capacity.

10-POINT PROGRAM URGED

Paris Predicts Reich, Expecting New American Deal Later, Will Accept Allies' Demands.

S. Parker Gilbert, Agent General for Reparations Payments, whose report, made public in Europe on Wednesday, caused a great sensation because it was interpreted as leaving no doubt as to the ability of Germany to meet reparations payments, arrived yesterday morning on the Cunarder Berengaria.

He met representatives of American and foreign papers as the ship was coming up the bay, but declined to enter into any detailed discussion of his report. The report, he indicated, was objective and any conclusions that were made in regard to it should be drawn directly from its text.

This was not available at present, he admitted, as printing had been delayed owing to the holidays. He had a manuscript copy of the report in his possession, but he did not wish to make this public.

Text to Be Released Next Week.

Printed copies, he said, were arriving next week on the Mauretania and these would be released.

Mr. Gilbert displayed the same reticence in regard to all specific questions which might have bearing on the report and its effect.

He was asked if he had heard of German criticisms to the effect that he had not mentioned those German commercial loans made in foreign countries which had in turn contributed a great deal to making reparations payments on the part of Germany possible.

"Those figures are included in the report," he said. "I mentioned them as far as it was correct to mention them."

He also said that the full text of the report had not yet been made available in Germany.

"When it is, the Germans will know that this feature has been mentioned," he said.

He expressed doubt that translations of the report into German and other languages could cause any confusion, saying that the translations were generally "most accurate."

Resignation Rumors News to Him.

He was told that there had been repeated rumors that he would resign as Agent General when his work for the present year had been ended.

"I do not know of that," he said.

He added that after two weeks in the United States he would return to Germany.

Mr. Gilbert said that he expected to be in New York for two or three days and would then go to Washington. After conferring with officials there he and Mrs. Gilbert will visit their home in Louisville, Ky.

Asked if he would confer with Secretary Mellon, he said that he undoubtedly would.

Questioned about the personnel of the American delegation to be appointed to serve on the new Reparations Commission, he answered that he could not discuss that.

"The men selected must be chosen by their governments," he said. "I do not know what the procedure will be."

Army Refueled Plane Beats Belgian Record; Remains Up to Pass German Endurance Time

By The Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—The world's record for sustained flight by refueling was broken tonight by the Army monoplane Question Mark, which took off here on New Year's Day.

At 8:33:46 o'clock (11:33:46 Eastern Standard Time) the big craft had been in the air 61 hours, 7 minutes, or an hour longer than the record established by two Belgian fliers in June. Aeronautic standards require that a record must be surpassed by an hour to be broken.

Two hours after the Belgian record had been equaled the monoplane was still circling over Imperial Valley, having shifted to that section this afternoon because of fog along the original route between San Diego and Los Angeles. The motors were still humming smoothly at last reports and the craft was soaring on toward another record, that for sustained flight, regardless of refueling, set by the Germans at 65 hours and 25 minutes.

If the plane is still going at 12:51 A. M. the second mark will have been reached.

Rough air currents were encountered by the fliers in circling over San Fernando Valley after they had dodged the fog to the south.

The commander of the Question Mark dropped a note to Lieutenant Moon, pilot of the refueling plane, instructing him to follow the big ship to smooth air in case it should refuel at the Los Angeles airport tonight. The note also outlined an emergency program, which mapped a routine for a flight to the Imperial Valley in case weather conditions here were unfavorable.

With the heavy load of reserve gasoline carried by the plane, army engineering experts fixed 1,500 revolutions a minute as the ideal engine speed for endurance, giving a cruising speed around seventy miles an hour at an altitude of between 2,000 and 7,000 feet.

Gas consumption, originally estimated at thirty-six gallons an hour, is now exceeding forty gallons. Two and a half tons of supplies and fuel have been taken aboard daily.

TAKE AMERICAN MAIL FROM CUNARD SHIPS

DENY CUBA ROW IS CAUSE

Ausonia and Andania Also Are Affected—Official Hints of Move to Aid Our Liners.

The Postoffice Department, in an order issued yesterday, withdrew from three Cunard Line ships all mail except that which is specifically addressed to the ships for delivery in Europe, Africa and West Asia. As few persons specify the ship on which mail is to be carried, the great volume of mail usually transported by the Berengaria, Ausonia and Andania, against which the ruling was made, will be lost to the Cunard Line.

From three to six days will be added to the time of delivery of mail which would have been carried by the Berengaria when she sails tonight at midnight. The order transferred the mail to the White Star liner Baltic, which sails tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

Denies Cuba Row Is Involved.

The Postoffice Department announced last night that it might reroute all its European mail to favor American ships but denied that the controversy with the Cunard Line over the New York-Havana trade caused this action. Coming on the eve of the sailing to Havana of the President Roosevelt and the Cunard liner Caronia, and following an exchange of sharp letters between Chairman T. V. O'Connor of the board and Sir T. Ashley Sparks, resident director of the Cunard Line, on the subject of the right of the latter to compete with American ships in the Havana trade, the action of the Postoffice Department is viewed as a move to force the Cunard Line to withdraw its ship. The Cunard Line refused yesterday through John Gammie, assistant to the director, to discuss this phase of the controversy.

"We have been unable to get an explanation," said Mr. Gammie. "Inquiry at the New York postoffice brought the reply that the order came from Washington and inquiry by our Washington department at the Postoffice Department brought 'orders' as the only explanation."

The order issued Dec. 29 by Postmaster John J. Kiely provided that the Berengaria would carry to Europe all mail for Europe, Africa and West Asia and included mail for French Guinea, Sierra Leone, Norway, Gibraltar, Italy, Bulgri, Greece, Malta, Turkey, Yugoslavia, Siberia, Ivory Coast and the Gold Coast when specially addressed to the steamer.

The only other mail-carrying ship then listed for departure from New York today was the Norwegian motor vessel Hinnoy, which serves Portugal and Morocco when mail is specially addressed and carrying parcel-post mails to Portugal, Cape Verde Islands, Portuguese West Africa and Tangier. The list included no sailing Saturday by a ship serving Europe, Africa and West Asia except the Cunarders Ausonia and Andania. The Baltic was not listed.

Changed Two Days Later.

In the order dated Dec. 31, which was received yesterday at the Cunard offices, the Berengaria mail service was listed as follows: "Europe, Africa and West Asia, via Cherbourg and Southampton. Mail must be specially addressed by this steamer." The Saturday sailings included the Baltic, listed to carry general mails for these places and with the specially-addressed commission which had been assigned to the Berengaria two days previous.

The Berengaria makes her transatlantic crossing in about six days, the Baltic in about eight days. The Cunard ship carries continental mail direct, through its landing at Southampton and Cherbourg. The Baltic stops only at Queenstown and Liverpool, which will make necessary the transfer of continental mail from Liverpool to Dover to be loaded on a channel boat and carried across to France.

The Postoffice Department makes the provision that some mail be car-

BUSINESS MEN RALLY TO TRAFFIC RELIEF

400 Offer to Serve on Board Seeking Remedies—14 Named to Draft Plans by Jan. 15.

HARRISS IS ACTING HEAD

Storing on Streets, Openings for Repair Work and Night Trucking to Be Taken Up.

Representative business men of New York not only consented but asked for permission to serve on a committee working for traffic relief yesterday afternoon when the committee was organized at a meeting of the New York citizens' traffic committee in the assembly room of the Merchants' Association of New York City. W. J. L. Banham, president of the New York Board of Trade, presided at the meeting, which authorized him to appoint a committee on plan and scope.

The plan and scope committee of fourteen members will submit concrete proposals for traffic relief in its first formal report to the next meeting of the New York citizens' committee on Jan. 15 at the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York. Among suggestions for its consideration are removal of obstructions from streets, elimination of the practice of storing on sidewalks and streets, particularly building materials by building contractors and merchandise by truckmen; limitation on tearing up streets for minor repairs and requirement of day and night work on major repairs that necessitate street openings, and more commercial trucking at night.

Harriss Acting Chairman.

John A. Harriss, former Deputy Police Commissioner in Charge of Traffic, who inaugurated the police traffic signal system in New York and personally met the cost of the original traffic towers on Fifth Avenue, was named acting chairman of the committee on plan and scope. Serving with him on that committee are:

WILLIS H. BOOTH, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York and president of the Merchants' Association of New York City.

CHARLES P. BERNHEIMER, president of the Bear Mill Manufacturing Company.

Colonel MICHAEL FRIEDSAM, president of E. Altman & Co.

Judge ALFRED E. OMMEN.

PATRICK E. CROWLEY, president of the New York Central Railroad Company.

R. E. M. COWIE, president of the American Railway Express Company.

C. STANLEY MITCHELL, chairman of the Bank of United States and president of the Central Mercantile Association.

In outlining the purpose of the meeting Mr. Banham said that the New York citizens' traffic committee, at its meeting on Dec. 17, had been authorized to appoint a committee of twenty-five to study the traffic problems and make recommendations. Since that time the committee has been swamped with requests from business men to be permitted to serve. Mr. Banham said he had received more than 400 letters. As a result the membership of the committee will be enlarged to 500, and the names of its members will be announced today. The traffic committee, according to Mr. Banham, has received from voluntary correspondents approximately 200 plans for solving traffic problems and they range in length from one to twenty pages.

"It's really astonishing," said Mr. Banham, "to see how New York rallies to this traffic problem. Letters have been written to us enclosing names suggested for appointment to the committee. We have classified them and they represent almost all classes of activity in New York City, among them insurance, importing and exporting, mining, coffee and tea, dry goods commissioners, upholsterers, real estate, iron and steel, railway supplies, railroads,

STATE REPUBLICANS OPPOSE ROOSEVELT ON FOUR-YEAR TERM

EXECUTIVE IS INSISTENT

He Is Prepared to Stump the State on the Issue Unless the Legislature Yields.

REPUBLICANS CRITICIZED

Democrats Say Rivals Sought to Anticipate Governor on Legislative Program.

By W. A. WARN.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 3.—This is a season of good-will, and political skies are still smiling their brightest at the Capitol, but on the horizon looms the little cloud, the proverbial size of a hand, to inspire political weather observers at the seat of the State government with a premonition that the era of good feeling which Governor Roosevelt has pleaded for will at no distant date be complicated with disturbances.

Republican leaders in the Legislature, it developed today, are in no mood to acquiesce in the Governor's demand for resubmission to the people at the general election this year of a proposed constitutional amendment to provide for the lengthening of Gubernatorial terms from two to four years, with elections held in even numbered years midway between two Presidential elections, or as an alternative a popular referendum embodying the question in that form.

Governor Roosevelt, on the other hand, is so completely "sold" on this proposal, which was an important part of the legislative program of his Democratic predecessor, that he is prepared, in the absence of favorable action at the present session of the Legislature, to make it an issue in the Assembly campaign next Autumn and go on the warpath himself to see it through.

Two Plans Are Proposed.

One of the major recommendations in his annual message to the Legislature which, by the way, undoubtedly will go unheeded, called for either the adoption of this proposal to amend the Constitution or the less formal popular referendum which, in effect, if answered in the affirmative at the polls, would carry a popular mandate that even a Republican law-making body would not dare to ignore.

A survey of sentiment in the Republican camp makes it safe to predict that on this question, at least, there will be a deadlock between the Democratic Governor and the Republican Legislature.

The Governor contends, as did his predecessor, that the reorganization of the State administration, effected after years of warfare during the Smith regime, would not be complete unless another constitutional amendment was added to provide four-year terms for future Governors. This contention has had backing from the "best minds" in both the Republican and Democratic parties in this State.

The committee which designed the reorganization plan now in effect and was headed by Charles Evans Hughes, sent to the Legislature a specific recommendation that to round out their plan provision should be made to elect Governors in the future for a term of four years.

The reorganization committee advanced in support of its contention the argument that two years was too short a period to enable a Chief Executive to carry into effect any major program of reform, to which his administration might have been committed through party platform pledges. Furthermore, said the com-

STRONG ARM SQUADS GO OUT, GANGSTERS RUN TO COVER; 60 MORE SPEAKEASY RAIDS

Talk of New Yorker's Husband As King of a United Baltic

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 3.—Reports from Riga say that the supporters of the plan for a united Baltic kingdom are very active and that possible occupants of the throne have been mentioned.

The most prominently spoken of is the nephew of the Swedish King, Count Folke Bernadotte, who married Miss Estelle Manville of Pleasantville, N. Y., last month. Another nominee is the Polish prince, Jan Radzivill. Count Bernadotte and his wife are now on board the liner Drottningholm, which is due to arrive in Sweden on Sunday.

COURT RULING AIDS WAR ON SPEAKEASIES

Appeals Court Holds Resorts Are Public Nuisance Under the State Law.

BIG ENFORCEMENT WEAPON

Local Authorities Now Deemed Better Equipped Than the Federal Authorities.

District Attorneys will be empowered to back the police and other local authorities in prohibition enforcement by prosecuting speakeasies as "public nuisances" under a decision of the Court of Appeals made public yesterday. The decision upheld the conviction of Albert Vandewater of Hempstead, L. I., of maintaining a "public nuisance," within the meaning of the State penal law, in that he ran a speakeasy.

Since the repeal of the Mullan-Gage act, District Attorneys have left enforcement almost entirely to the Federal authorities, maintaining that their hands were tied not only by lack of a State enforcement measure but by defendants' contention that prosecution simultaneously by State and Federal authorities would constitute double jeopardy.

The new decision appears to overcome both these difficulties so far as District Attorneys are concerned, and it was asserted in some quarters that under it the police and county authorities were far better armed than the Federal authorities here to enforce prohibition.

Banton to Study Decision.

"I have sent for a copy of the decision," District Attorney Banton said yesterday, "and before making any final comment I shall read it. If its findings are such as would appear from the summary in The Law Journal, it will empower us to proceed to prosecute speakeasies raided in the drive by the police under the State nuisance act. This, with prosecution by the Federal authorities at the same time for violation of the prohibition act, might seem to constitute double jeopardy, but it would not be so legally. This would mean a great deal more work for my office."

When asked if he would take advantage of the new decision, Police Commissioner Whalen replied, "You bet!"

The decision, written by Justice Irving Lehman, was unanimous "in result" but Justices William S. Andrews and Henry T. Kellogg dissented from the principles laid down; and Justices Cuthbert W. Pound and Frederick E. Crane, while approving, wrote supplemen-

GANG HANG-OUTS SWEPT

But Detail of 60 Finds Crooks Have Hidden or Fled the City.

ROUGH TACTICS ORDERED

PRESSES DRIVE ON LIQUOR

Gratified as 83 Are Held After First Police Onslaught to End Poison Rum Sales.

Developing the second phase of his offensive against the underworld, Police Commissioner Whalen turned his "gun squads" loose last night. He ordered the squads to batter gunmen, gangsters and other criminals out of the city. Sixty nightsticked strong men of the department started out to do the battering.

Gratified by the fruits of his first drive against speakeasies selling poison liquor, the Commissioner served notice that he would continue his liquor raids until the last of the hideaways had been driven out of business. Eighty-three liquor defendants were arraigned before United States Commissioner Cotter by city policemen during the day.

Fail to Find Gangsters.

Sixty more speakeasies were raided and more than 100 persons arrested in the drive against bad liquor sales but the war on gunmen and gangsters had failed of results up to an early hour this morning. Apparently the undesirables had left town or were well hidden away.

Squad No. 1 of Manhattan under Acting Lieutenant Patrick Fitzgibbons visited fifty poolrooms or other places suspected of harboring gangsters without finding any known crooks. Only in one resort, located in Avenue C, did the raiders find an armed man, and he promptly produced a pistol permit.

The men in Fitzgibbons's squad started out in automobiles from Police Headquarters at 8:30 P. M. They toured Catharine, Oliver, Madison and Henry Streets, dipped into the Corlears Hook territory, and visited places suspected as criminals' rendezvous. Then they circled into Chinatown, swung into the east side, swept up to Twenty-fifth Street and headed up Broadway to midtown where they were operating at midnight.

The haunts of gunmen and gangsters were curiously deserted, the detectives found. In some of the places visited the advent of the husky members of the squad, recognized at sight as policemen by those in the place, was the signal for a general upraising of hands. Fitzgibbons commented on the fact that some of those looked over apparently had been "frisked" for weapons before.

Gunman to Get Most Attention.

Although he emphasized that he would not slacken his campaign against the dispensers of bad liquor, the Commissioner made it clear that for the time being the gunman and the gangster would receive the lion's share of police attention. "Nightstick law" will be applied to these gentry, the Commissioner said, but will be applied "intelligently," albeit "vigorously."

"They'll be knocked cold and left to lie, Commissioner?" he was asked.

"They'll be cleaned up," he replied, with emphasis.

It was recalled yesterday that a campaign of force against gangsters had proved strikingly successful in the past. During the regime of Arthur Woods as commissioner the old time "strong-arm" squad put on a systematic campaign of brawn against the leaders of the gangs. The leaders were treated roughly at regular periods and they soon lost prestige with their own followers.

Johnny Spanish, Dopa Benny and Johnny Tanner, to name only a few of those who were "entertained" by muscled members of the department, lost their gangland niches under this course of action. The gangs, deprived of authentic leadership, disintegrated and become impotent. In subsequent police administrations, however, other methods were employed in dealing with the gangs, and they came back to a measure of their former boldness, especially in industrial strife.

Gets New Clean-Up Weapon.

Mr. Whalen was much interested in a decision of the State Court of Appeals, made public yesterday, which armed him with another weapon. The decision was that speakeasies came within the meaning of the public nuisance section of the Penal Code. This, in effect, revived the strong features of the repealed Mullan-Gage State prohibition enforcement law. By virtue of the

Public Debt Was Cut $726,603,315 in Year; Gross Total on Dec. 31 Was $17,309,749,135

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The gross public debt on Dec. 31 was $17,309,749,135.96 as compared with $18,036,352,451.81 on the same day one year ago, a reduction of $726,603,315.95. Of this total reduction in the calendar year, $294,544,045.57 was effected in the six months from July 1 to Dec. 31, which are the first six months of the fiscal year 1929.

Cash in the general fund on Dec. 31, 1928, amounted to $389,543,968.46 as against $272,342,801.10 one year ago. A part of this money, not required to meet current expenses, will be used for further debt reduction.

Figures for the last six months of the calendar year showed that customs and income and miscellaneous taxes did not differ greatly during that period in 1928 and in 1927. The figures were as follows:

Customs, $301,778,637.05 in 1928; $306,268,586.65 in 1927; income taxes, $1,012,795,591.51 and $1,023,922,679.12; miscellaneous taxes, $303,436,561.23 and $311,104,147.44.

Total revenues were $1,867,639,075.50 in the last six months of 1928, as against $1,989,939,172.39 in the same months of 1927, the largest single decrease being in connection with loans made to railroads, the government receiving $86,517,852.15 from this source during the period in 1927 as compared with $4,823,557.79 in 1928.

The total expenditures chargeable against ordinary receipts in the six months of 1928 amounted to $2,036,114,772.26, as against $1,924,429,801.10 in the same months of 1927. This left the Treasury books with a deficit of $168,475,696.76 on Dec. 31, but calculations demonstrated, treasury officials said, that with the heavy collections of income taxes in March and June, which are expected to be considerably larger than earlier estimates, a safe surplus is assured at the close of the fiscal year on June 30.

Partial acquisition of a site at the southwest corner of Broadway and Forty-seventh Street for a $10,000,000 fifty-two-story motionpicture theatre and office building was admitted yesterday by A. C. Blumenfeld, representing the Fox Theatres Corporation. The proposed structure would be the tallest in the theatrical district, and the theatre to be included would be comparable in size to the Roxy and the Paramount, which seat 6,200 and 4,000 respectively, Mr. Blumenfeld said.

The site has a frontage of about 50 feet on Broadway and about 400 feet on Forty-seventh Street. It is expected that demolition of the structures now on the plot will be started about April 1.

One of the buildings to be razed is the old Central Theatre, with entrance on Broadway, owned by J. J. Shubert. West of the theatre is the ten-story Hanover National Bank, erected six years ago. It is understood that tenants in the structure have been asked to vacate in the near future, but the bank has declined to confirm the reported sale of its home. Four old structures to the west are recorded as belonging to the Trebuhs Realty Company, representing the Shubert interests. The project would include also a four-story business structure and two five-story houses further to the west.

Mr. Blumenfeld said the plot desired would include about 45,000 square feet and the proposed building would have about 300,000 square feet of rental space for offices and stores. William Fox, a leader in the motion picture industry, is president of the Fox Theatres Corporation, which is associated with others in the project.

Part of the block front not included in the project is occupied by the Mansfield Theatre. Across the street are the Biltmore Theatre, the new Ethel Barrymore Theatre and a wall of the Strand Theatre.

decision the police raiders can bring their prisoners into the State as well as the Federal courts.

"You, bet," said the Commissioner when asked if he would take advantage of the decision. He then hurried into the trial room at Police Headquarters, where the sixty members of the strong arm squads awaited his instructions.

He talked to the picked men for about thirty minutes. He said that he emphasized that they must not make "mistakes" in using their nightsticks, but that it was up to them to clean the city of gangs and street loafers who were ready to turn criminal at the first opportunity. The Commissioner directed the two squads assigned to Manhattan to pay special attention to a gang that makes Broadway and Forty-seventh Street its headquarters. Other "hangouts" in the other boroughs were assigned to squads as objectives.

To End Gunmen's Dens.

"The gun squads," said Commissioner Whalen to newspaper men just before he addressed the raiders, "start out tonight. Some of the leaders of the squads were with us last night when we launched the clean-up of the dives selling poison liquor. Tonight they start out on their own.

"I have instructed them to clean up dens which are known to be infested by gunmen and by gangsters. There are a few points in this city where gunmen are known to congregate, and they will receive the first attention. We don't want the squads to make any mistakes. But we have been specific in telling them what we want them to do.

"They are being sent out to clean up an element that has been allowed to annoy and even to cause death the decent people of this city."

He was asked if the gang raiders had received specific orders on the manner of their warfare.

"Well," he said, "to get back to a statement I made when I came in here—there's a lot of law at the end of a nightstick. The men are being sent out not necessarily to make arrests—we do not wish to clutter up the courts—but to do their duty in seeing that known hangouts for gunmen and the like are put out of business."

Gives Out Record of Killings.

Commissioner Whalen said the headquarters of many undesirables had been uncovered in homicide investigations. Apparently as something apropos of his dispatching the "gun squads," the Commissioner made public the murder record of the city for last year. It was as follows:

Murders and manslaughters	337
Cases in which arrests were made	222
Number of individual arrests	300
Convictions (to date)	28
Cases in which no arrests were made	74
Suicides of defendants or suspects	9
Cases in which slayer is known but Unapprehended	32

The commissioner had no comment to make on the record of last year, nor did he wish to say anything by way of reply to former Mayor Hylan's charge that the police round-ups were mere "politics."

"Last night's raids against the speakeasies were satisfactory in every way," he said, "and they were carried out intelligently. Inspector James S. Bolan planned them and many of them were the result of the list of poison booze places supplied by The Evening Telegram. We found the newspaper's list to be 100 per cent correct.

"Samples of the liquor obtained in the raids have not been analyzed yet. This is being done, but the chemist has a great deal of work. We hope to have the reports tomorrow, however."

Speakeasies to Be Wrecked.

Commissioner Whalen was asked if the practice of wrecking raided speakeasies, tactics that marked the onslaught of Wednesday night, would be continued.

"Yes, it will," he said. "The orders are to put these places out of business, and that is one way of doing it. You have to hit these people in the pocketbook. That is where it hurts most. Men who sell poison liquor certainly are not otherwise sensitive."

Dr. Thomas A. Gonzalez, deputy chief medical examiner, expressed approval of the speakeasy drive.

"It is commendable," he said, "that action has been taken to close up these 'smokehouses' where poisonous liquor is being served without regard for human life. Indirectly this is nothing but murder, and up to the present time none of these 'smokehouse' proprietors has been meted out the punishment he deserves.

"If a penalty is not inflicted in proportion to the crime committed, then these arduous efforts of the police will be in vain. I hope this police drive will keep up to its present high rate of speed in ridding New York City of these poison rum vendors.

"Even in the better speakeasies the liquor is of a low quality, made from either raw alcohol or denatured alcohol by distillation, and much of the poison passes over in the distillate. A lot of prescription liquor which is obtained by the sick from drug stores is cut and is also of a very low quality."

Campaign Felt Outside City.

The drive will be continued at its present "rate of speed," Commissioner Whalen said, and would go on until "all of the 'smokehouses' are closed." He said that the result of his twin campaigns already was being felt outside the city. He said that policemen in other cities were reporting an influx of New York crooks. Some towns, he said, had increased the railroad station details in efforts to keep the undesirables going on their way. A railroad detective in Albany told him, the commissioner said, that since the drive had started he had recognized thirty well-known thieves passing through Albany en route to Chicago and other cities.

Another place that reflected the police prohibition activity was the headquarters of Administrator Maurice Campbell at 1 Park Avenue. Extra clerks were put on to handle the paper work incidental to the raids, and telegrams were sent to Washington and other points asking for reinforcements. All complaints and being prepared in short form so that arraignments can be had before United States Commissioner Cotter without undue delay.

Hearing for Prisoners Jan. 24.

Commissioner Cotter's court room yesterday looked like a police station. Uniformed patrolmen and detectives swarmed there with liquor defendants. Most of those arraigned were held or released in bond of $500 and hearing was set for Jan. 24. A few were called upon to furnish higher bail.

Simon Callanan, accused of dispensing wood alcoholized liquor at 19 Christopher Street, whose establishment was wrecked by police raiders on Wednesday night, was held in bail of $1,000 for hearing with the others. Frank Langon and Ernest Lopernia, arrested at 10-12 Franklin Street, also were held in $1,000 bail each.

The Spa Chemical Company, Inc., and Joseph Martini, alias Tony Villani, of 1,970 Park Avenue, charged with diverting alcohol for beverage purposes, were defendants in another case. Martini's bail was fixed at $1,000, and hearing set down for Jan. 24.

Two men picked up in the week-end police round-up were pointed toward jail yesterday. They were Albert Fine of 315 West Ninety-ninth Street and William Fein of 755 Seventh Avenue. They had been sentenced to 100 days each in the workhouse by Magistrate McAndrews in West Side Court on Wednesday. Their attorney, Isaiah Lesbove, sought a writ of habeas corpus yesterday from Supreme Court Justice Richard H. Mitchell.

Fine and Fein, both with long police records, were arrested in the lobby of the Palace Theatre by Detective Edward Doyle of the Fifth Avenue squad, who charged them with vagrancy. In denying the application for a writ, Justice Mitchell ruled that the only way to freedom open to Fine and Fein, was through an appeal to the Appellate Division.

Commissioner Whalen will confer at luncheon today in the Lawyers Club with United States Attorney Tuttle. They will discuss methods of coordinating Federal and city activities against liquor selling. Later, Mr. Whalen will have similar conferences with the District Attorneys of Queens and Kings.

ONE POLICE SHIFT IN DAY.

Department Has Quiet Time Except for Headquarters "Clean-Up."

With Commissioner Whalen engaged in his double drive against poison liquor and gangsters the police department had a comparatively quiet day yesterday in so far as its internal mechanism was concerned. No one was demoted and only one was promoted.

This was Lieutenant James J. Coy of the detective bureau at headquarters. He was raised to rank of acting captain and will be assigned to one of the raiding squads.

Commissioner Whalen denied that he contemplated appointing Christie R. Bohnsack as Fifth Deputy Police Commissioner. This move had been persistently reported at headquarters. Mr. Bohnsack, a former reporter, is a director of WNYC, the municipal radio station. He is acting now as liaison between the press and Commissioner Whalen. Mr. Bohnsack, said the Commissioner, "told me that he would continue to live in the atmosphere of the Fourth Estate."

During the early morning hours, headquarters had a "clean up" of its own. Carrying out the Commissioner's order that the building should be spotless, Custodian Patrick Horan mustered reinforcements to banish dust, brighten brass and polish windows. Squads of painters also went into action.

READY FOR NEW YORK CROOKS

"Will Send Them Back in Boxes," Says Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3 (AP).—If the New York police are unable to cope with their criminals, the Chicago police will be glad to help, William F. Russell, Commissioner of Police, said today when informed that Police Commissioner Whalen of New York said crooks were leaving New York and heading for Chicago.

"We will send the New York crooks back to New York—in boxes, just as we did Frank Orlando, New York robber shot here the other day," said the Chicago commissioner who, like Commissioner Whalen, was appointed to drive gunmen from the city.

"You send word right back to New York," said Commissioner Russell, "that our policemen have killed thirty gangsters and wounded fifty-four more in the five months I have been in office, besides the ones that have killed off each other."

"We still have plenty of ammunition left and will be glad to use it for target practice on any sweepings from New York.

"Frankly, I think New York crooks place too much value on their own lives to come out here. We will be glad to welcome them just like we did Orlando, however, if they want to try it."

200 DRY VIOLATORS UP ON 'BARGAIN DAY'

Fines Range From $10 to $25—Padlock Actions Against 25 Persons, Two of Them Women.

Assistant United States Attorney Maxwell Shapiro filed padlock complaints yesterday against ten groups of defendants, among whom are more than twenty-five individuals, including two women. About 200 other persons, charged with violations of the prohibition law, were arraigned before Federal Judge Thacher on a "bargain day" calendar.

Although the "bargain day" procedure has been severely criticized as ineffective, it is still in use in prohibition enforcement. It has generally meant, and is understood by defendants still to mean, that if a defendant pleads guilty, thus saving the government the money and time necessary to convict, he will be let off with a light fine. In ordinary cases, such as the possession of liquor, the fines have averaged about $10. Fines yesterday ran from $10 to $25.

Critics of the "bargain day" method have pointed out that any reasonably successful bootlegger would be willing and easily able to pay such a fine and continue his business. A few Federal judges have imposed heavier penalties than "bargain day" is supposed to warrant.

The groups of defendants against whom padlock complaints were filed are Bigio's Restaurant, 22 Ferry Street; Luigi Fontana, Louis Fogler, Edward Bove, Samuel Griffo, George Cummings and Samuel Katz of the Chato Restaurant, 216 West Fifty-eighth Street; James J. Sullivan and others, 151 Willis Avenue, the Bronx; Paul Raddatz and Carl Pfeffer, 1,625 Second Avenue; Patrick J. Harty and James McManus, 2,421 Jerome Avenue, the Bronx; Patrick Leahy, Joseph Brennan and Michael Sullivan, 2,265 Jerome Avenue, the Bronx; Daniel Reidy and John Malloy, 280 East 138th Street, the Bronx; Charles Falcone, Henry Zimmerman and Henry Carpenter, 265 East 164th Street, the Bronx; Agnes Thomas, May Harris and Robert Greiner, 25 Pearl Street, and John and Stephen Wawrzensji, 800 East 222d Street, the Bronx.

WHALEN'S RAIDERS CLOSE 60 PLACES

Forces of Divisional Inspectors Work Throughout Manhattan, Starting Downtown.

CHIEF ACTIVITY IN HARLEM

Proprietors and Others Arrested and Confiscated Liquor Taken to Police Stations.

Adopting war-time tactics of harassing the enemy, Commissioner Whalen's men attached to the staffs of the various divisional police inspectors were again busy last night and early today raiding speakeasies throughout Manhattan. By early morning many places that had been "wide open" were closed tightly. Some were closed because the police had visited them and taken away their stock in trade as well as their bartenders and waiters, and the proprietors of others, figuring that discretion was the better part of valor, had closed them to forestall the visits of the detectives.

Sixty places in the territory extending from the Battery to the Harlem River and from the East River to the Hudson and also in Bronx were raided, and in each place arrests were made and liquor was confiscated. It was not revealed whether any of these places was on the list supplied to the commissioner by The Evening Telegram as places where previously liquor containing a portion of wood alcohol had been purchased.

Start Made Downtown.

Starting in the lower section of the city, men of Inspector Ed J. Quinn's staff on the second division, covering the territory on the east side from the Battery to Fourteenth Street, raided several places. They included a grocery store at 96 West Houston Street, where 105 gallons of wine and fifty gallons of alcohol were found, and 130 Franklin Street, where a small quantity of liquor was taken. Arrests were made in each case, the alleged proprietor of the grocery store being booked at the Mercer Street Station, while the man taken at Franklin Street was held at the Beach Street Station.

In a pool room at 14 Greenwich Street the detectives round a gallon of wine, and the proprietor was charged with possession.

On the other side of town at the same time the staff of Inspector David J. McAuliffe was cleaning up suspicious places. Early in the evening it raided a speakeasy at 140 Seventh Street, seized liquor and booked the proprietor at the Fifth Street station on a charge of possession. Other raids were made at 107 Madison Street and 52 Pike Street. Prisoners taken there were booked at the Oak Street station. A fourth raid was made at 13 Hester Street and liquor and a prisoner were taken to the Clinton Street station.

A cutting plant with fifty gallons of whisky and forty bottles of assorted liquors was found at 139 Chester Street. One man was arrested charged with possession and he was taken, with the liquor, to the Elizabeth Street station.

At 211 Bowery, the "International," described by the detectives as a typical "smoke" house, ten gallons of alleged whisky was found, and the 200 patrons of the place, many of whom were sleeping on chairs against the wall, were driven to the street. One arrest was made.

Other places visited were 51 Spring Street, 51 Forsyth Street, 17 Bowery, 19 Rivington Street and 46 Mulberry Street. Arrests were made in each place.

In the midtown section west of Fifth Avenue which had undergone quite a house cleaning on the previous night, several places were raided by Inspector Joseph T. Loonan's detectives of the Third Division. One was at 236 West Fifty-fourth Street. There the raiders found sixteen bottles of whisky and three bottles of gin. The proprietor was arrested.

Several places that came under Commissioner Whalen's category of "undesirable" night clubs were visited by Inspector Loonan's men and arrests made, the places closed and liquor found there was taken to the West Fortyseventh Street station. The places included the Whoopee Club, at 113 West Fifty-first Street, where two men were arrested; the Log Cabin, at 107 West Fiftysixth Street, an apartment club on the fourth floor of 1,690 Broadway, near Fiftieth Street, and the Wing Club, at 8 West Fiftysecond Street.

Less than an hour and a half after Inspector Loonan's men arrested the bartender of the Log Cabin a second squad visited the place and arrested Eugene Reilly, said to be the proprietor, and seized liquor that had been overlooked on the first visit. The raiders then went to the Empire Club at 3 West Forty-sixth Street, where the patrons were ordered out and the manager arrested.

On the upper west side in Inspector William Day's fifth division detectives raided five speakeasies making arrests and seizing liquor in each place. The places closed were at 80 West Eighty-seventh Street, 55 and 100½ West 100th Street, 160 West Ninetieth Street and 43 West Ninety-eighth Street.

Most Activity in Harlem.

In Harlem and the upper east side, however, the staff of Inspector Thomas Ryan's Sixth Division made the biggest clean-up of the evening, and before midnight they had raided twenty-one places and made more than thirty arrests.

Twenty detectives working in pairs and threes visited speakeasy after speakeasy, showing no discrimination as to location of the place nor color of proprietor and clientele.

In the order named the following places were raided between 4 and 6 P. M. and the alleged proprietors arrested on charges of possession: 209 East 124th Street, 2,331 Second Avenue, 166 East 119th Street, 104 East 121st Street, 2,264 First Avenue, 201 East 127th Street, 202 West 115th Street, 304 Lenox Avenue, 2,301 Eighth Avenue and 2,369 Eighth Avenue.

Other Places Closed.

The raiders then visited 1,689 Third Avenue and 74 East 105th Street, found liquor in each place and took the proprietors to the East 104th Street station.

At the same time other details were working in Harlem and by 9 P. M. the West 135th Street station had prisoners and liquor taken at nine resorts. The places raided were 404, 428, 462, 637, 645, 490 and 552 Lenox Avenue, 2,348 Seventh Avenue and 23 West 133d Street.

While the inspector's men were busy, precinct detectives from the East 104th Street station closed two places, one at 107 East 109th Street and the other at 18 East 114th Street. At both places prisoners were taken and liquor was seized.

Federal prohibition agents also were active in this district, raiding a place at 211 East Ninety-ninth Street, arresting two men and seizing liquor.

In the midtown section on the east side men of Inspector Patrick J. McCormick's staff of the Fourth Division raided three places, making arrests and seizing liquor in each place. Prisoners taken at 571 Third Avenue and 301 East Thirty-second Street were booked at the East Thirty-fifth Street station and those seized at 389 East Twenty-second Street were taken to the East Twenty-second Street station.

A complaint received by Captain Hackett at the East 104th Street station caused him to send out a flying squad to 142 East Ninety-eighth Street. No liquor was seized there but eleven men found in the place were arrested and booked on charges of disorderly conduct.

In the Bronx, detectives of Inspector Thompson's staff of the Seventh Division entered a garage at 1,785 Longfellow Avenue and found a 200-gallon still, a cutting plant and sixty-seven bottles of whisky. Two brothers found there were booked at the Simpson Street station.

Other detectives of Inspector Thompson's staff raided a speakeasy at 442 East 162d Street. As they entered, the bartender broke a five-gallon demijohn of whisky, but the raiders were able to get liquor as evidence. The bartender was charged with possession.

Inspector Lyon's men of the Eighth Division uncovered what they said was a cutting plant in a speakeasy camouflaged as an insurance office at 2,639 Jerome Avenue. More than 120 gallons of uncut whisky was seized and several hundred bottles, labels and caps were found. The man in charge was arrested.

While the Divisional Inspector's staffs were concentrating on their respective localities, the flying squadron of men under Acting Captain Kelly and Lieutenant Fitzgibbons, who were looking for criminals, raided a speakeasy at 354 West Fifty-first Street. They brought crowbars and axes with them and virtually demolished the interior in a few minutes. Men and women patrons were put out and one arrest was made. Several kegs of beer were emptied into the street and whisky and other liquors seized for evidence.

ATHLETIC CLUB GETS LOAN.

Will Finance New Home and Sell Old Building for $2,000,000.

The New York Athletic Club took legal steps yesterday to complete the financing of its new clubhouse, at Seventh Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, when Supreme Court Justice Mitchell granted its application to borrow $1,000,000 from S. W. Straus & Co. and to sell its old clubhouse, at Fifty-ninth Street and Sixth Avenue, to the Starno Realty Corporation of 271 Madison Avenue for $2,000,000, of which $1,000,000 is to be in cash and the balance in mortgages assumed on the property.

In applying for the loan the club said it was to be secured by a 7 per cent bond issue, payable Dec. 1, 1938, or sooner, and by a trust mortgage on the new clubhouse property and on its Travers Island property. The proceeds are to be used to complete and equip the new clubhouse. The value of the realty to be mortgaged is $7,759,478, in addition to which the club has personal assets worth $1,500,115. The debts consist of a balance of $836,026 due on current bills and a prior mortgage given by the club to Herbert S. Martin, as trustee, as security for an issue of $6,250,000 of bonds, which covers all the real estate and also is a second lien on the old clubhouse property.

BISHOP MURRAY VISITS HAITI

He Will Consecrate New Episcopal Cathedral Next Sunday.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Jan. 3 (AP).—The Right Rev. John Gardner Murray, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in America, Bishop Paul Matthews of New Jersey, Father Harrison of the Episcopalian Order of the Holy Cross and Hoke Gray of Boston arrived here today. Bishop Murray, on Sundal, will consecrate a new Episcopal cathedral here, which was recently completed by Bishop Henry Carson.

This will be the first cathedral consecration outside the United States by the presiding bishop. All other Church activities in Haiti will be inspected before the visitors return North.

TRIPLES SEARCHERS IN ROTHSTEIN CASE

RECALLS SHOOTING IN 1919

Slain Man Escaped Prosecution Then —Safe Once Used by Him Found, but No Clues Are Revealed.

Commenting yesterday on the seeming lack of interest by some detectives assigned at first to investigate the murder of Arnold Rothstein, the gambler, Police Commissioner Whalen revealed that, although Rothstein had been arrested in 1919 for the shooting of two detectives, no fingerprints of the gambler were kept at Police Headquarters. Mr. Whalen also announced he had tripled the number of detectives assigned to run down Hyman (Gillie) Biller and the mysterious "John Doe" and "Richard Roe," all of whom were indicted with George A. McManus, now in the Tombs, for participating in the shooting of Rothstein in the Park Central Hotel two months ago today.

The Commissioner revealed that District Attorney Banton was also convinced that McManus, in whose room the shooting was believed to have taken place, was the man who fired the shot, and told of new efforts to arrest Biller, McManus's former "pay-off man" at race tracks, by tracing telephone calls to and from this city. At this point he commented on the failure of detectives to obtain fingerprints of Rothstein after his death. He said these prints would have been of value in comparing them with impressions on the three whisky glasses found in McManus's room after the shooting.

"Judging by the courtesy shown by detectives in the past to many in the white light district," said the commissioner, "I am not a bit surprised at the failure to take finger-prints of Rothstein."

Refers to Arrest in 1919.

Mr. Whalen referred to the arrest of Rothstein and others in January, 1919, after two plain clothes men of the midtown inspection district had been shot through the barred door of a gambling house Rothstein was suspected of operating in West Fifty-seventh Street, near Eighth Avenue. The detectives had attempted to get into the place to make a raid when shooting began from the inside. Both were slightly wounded, and Rothstein was arrested after the police had returned the fire.

The case was dismissed by a magistrate some days later in the West Side Court when the detectives were unable to produce any evidence regarding who did the shooting. Later it was taken up by the Grand Jury but dropped when no evidence of the identity of the assailant was produced.

A year later the then Mayor Hylan was called as a witness before the Almirall Extraordinary Grand Jury in another investigation of unproved allegations that somebody had been bribed with $32,000 to prevent the successful prosecution of the gunman.

In telling of his increase in the number of detectives on the Rothstein case, Mr. Whalen added:

"This is one of those cases that grows cold when investigation has to be resumed a month or so after the crime has been committed."

He announced that the pistol found lying on the car tracks in Seventh Avenue outside the hotel after the shooting and believed to have been the weapon used by the Rothstein gunman "had been traced to a certain point" and further progress in this direction was being made. He refused to reveal where the trail had ended, but it was recalled that several weeks ago word came from St. Paul that a dealer there had told of selling the weapon to a stranger several years ago.

"Why do you say that the District Attorney is convinced that McManus fired the shot that killed Rothstein?" Mr. Whalen was asked.

"Well," replied the commissioner, "go and ask him. He had the man indicted, didn't he?"

Banton Wants One Trial.

Mr. Banton would not discuss this phase of his case against McManus, saying that he would have to conceal such evidence until the trial of McManus, Biller and the other two men named in the first degree murder indictment.

Asked if he might change his mind next month and agree to put McManus on trial if the other defendants were not arrested, the prosecutor said:

"Not if I can help it. I don't want to try this case piecemeal."

The District Attorney then corroborated Commissioner Whalen's statement that the police were making progress in their hunt for Biller, and added that the police and the District Attorney's office were working in absolute harmony.

One move made by the police under Commissioner Whalen yesterday was the opening of a large safe which had been installed by the slain gambler in the construction of the six-story apartment house at 245 West Seventy-second Street five years ago. Rothstein had a part ownership in the house at the time, and lived there up to about a year ago when the house was sold. The police said later that nothing of value was found in the safe. How Whalen's men learned of the safe they refused to reveal yesterday. Deputy Chief Inspector Mulrooney, new head of the Detective Division, directed the opening of the safe.

The Federal grand jury resumed yesterday its efforts to learn whether the slain gambler had been connected with an international ring of drug smugglers by questioning Mrs. Esther Meyers, under detention in the Jefferson Market Women's Prison as a material witness, and Nathan (Little Nate) Cohen, who had been subpoenaed by Assistant Federal Prosecutor Blake. Cohen, it was reported, at one time had been Rothstein's bodyguard. Samuel (Crying Sammy) Lowe, another witness being detained in the Federal investigation, also was questioned by Mr. Blake.

Mrs. Meyers and Lowe were arrested several weeks ago when Joseph Unger, another friend of the slain gambler, was seized for placing two trunks containing $2,000,000 in drugs on a train at the Grand Central Terminal. Unger pleaded guilty in the Federal court when he was brought back from Buffalo to stand trial, and is awaiting sentence today by Judge Winslow. He is liable to imprisonment for twelve years.

INSTRUCTS GRAND JURY TO SIFT SPEAKEASIES

Brooklyn Judge Says They Flourish and That They Must Be Wiped Out.

In his charge yesterday to the Federal grand jury in Brooklyn Judge Moscowitz declared that speakeasies and places for the illicit sale of liquor abound in the Eastern District of New York, comprising all of Long Island, Brooklyn and Staten Island, and warned that they must be wiped out. "These places," Judge Moscowitz said, "are dens of iniquity where crimes are planned and carried out. They offer temptations, and will, if continued, destroy the youth of America."

Judge Moscowitz said he believed that on the whole our police are honest and courageous, but he declared it was inconceivable that such places could exist openly without the knowledge and consent of some of the officers of the law. Only eleven prohibition enforcement agents are operating in the Eastern district, he said, and these are insufficient to enforce the laws.

The United States Attorney, Judge Moscowitz said, has prepared a statement which, though only approximate, shows that during the last two months his office has been entertaining 90 per cent of the complaints of Volstead act violations.

GRIP SPREADS AT MONTEREY

Mexican City Reports 25,000 Cases —Nearly All Pupils Ill.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 3 (AP).—A dispatch to El Universal today from Monterey said there were 25,000 cases of grip in that city, that 90 per cent of the school children were ill and that schools, theatres and all other public meeting places had been closed.

In Mexico City, health authorities said the epidemic was diminishing, due to prompt measures for its control when it first appeared in the jail and penitentiary.

tary opinions, which were not obtained last night.

Court Reviews Case.

"The defendant maintained in the village of Hempstead, in Nassau County, a room where he sold intoxicating liquor," Justice Lehman wrote. "The room was in the rear of a store and there was nothing in the appearance of the store which gave notice of the nature of the traffic conducted in the rear or which might be regarded as an invitation to the general public to enter the premises and regale themselves."

He went on to describe a bar, tables and chairs, and bottles containing ginger ale and "more potent fluids," and mentioned testimony concerning intoxicated patrons.

"The defendant's premises were near a school," he continued, "and immediately adjacent to a confectionery and ice cream shop to which school children came during the lunch hour. The defendant has been convicted of maintaining an ill-governed and disorderly house and a public nuisance. Section 1530 of the Penal law provides that 'a public nuisance' is a crime against the order and economy of the State and consists in unlawfully doing an act or omitting to perform a duty, which act or omission: '(1) Annoys, injures or endangers the comfort, repose, health or safety of any considerable number of persons; or (2) Offends public decency; or (3) * * * or (4) In any way renders a considerable number of persons insecure in life or the use of property.'"

Defines Public Nuisances.

He went on to say that sale of liquor, while not an offense against the State was clearly a violation of the Federal law. He listed various kinds of houses regarded as "public nuisances," and went on to say, "There are those who urge that all inns, ale-houses and other places where more or less intoxicating drinks are offered to the public for consumption tend by reason of the kind of traffic conducted therein, like common gaming houses, to debauch the public morals and disturb the public peace and should properly be classed with gaming houses as public nuisances. Danger to the public in an unregulated traffic in drink was early recognized in England. * * * A business which is lawful cannot be a nuisance when properly conducted. Ale houses and other prototypes of the saloon were not nuisances at common law unless they became so because of the manner in which they were conducted. Nevertheless it has long been the rule that public nuisances included not only bawdy-houses, common gaming houses and unlicensed shows; but also disorderly drinking places."

Sees Novel Situation.

The question before the court, he declared, was whether Vandewater's place was disorderly "as that term was understood by the judges and legal scholars, who may be said to have directed the course of the common law."

"The Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution," he said, "created an entirely novel situation. * * * By its repeal of the State enforcement act the Legislature of New York has determined that the public policy of the State does not require the State to embrace within its statutory definitions of crime the acts prohibited by the constitutional amendment. Certainly the courts may not create new categories of offenses against the State, or enlarge statutory definitions. None the less, the courts must apply the accepted definitions of crime even in novel conditions, and determine whether in such conditions an offense against the State has been committed."

Disorderly drinking houses, he continued, had been deemed by the drafters of the State law public nuisances—"unlawfully doing an action which offends public decency."

"We conclude," he wrote, "that while for time out of mind the term 'nuisance' has been regarded as incapable of definition so as to fit all cases, because the controlling facts are seldom alike (Melker vs. City of New York, supra), yet the public decency may be offended and a nuisance created by 'practices which destroy the peace of families and disturb and undermine the foundations of social order and virtue.' (King vs. People, supra).

He then went on to cite instances where "it has been held that a 'practice of so keeping a house as therein to violate the law makes it disorderly.' * * * We recognize that the repeal of the State enforcement act has been sometimes regarded as a legislative declaration that the policy of the national enforcement act is not in accord with the public policy of the State. Doubtless there are many citizens who regard the Eighteenth Amendment as wrong in principle and harmful in practice. Men may differ as to whether it has brought in its train more evil than good. * * * The injury to the State resulting from an unlawful and unregulated traffic in intoxicating liquor is unfortunately manifest."

Recognizes Present Conditions.

"We might assume," he went on, "that opposition to the prohibition amendment and the national act adopted for its enforcement is in full measure justified; yet even then we could not blind our eyes to the harmful purpose and consequences of the maintenance of a saloon under the conditions created by national prohibition, which are so manifest that it would be an idle task to point them out. Opponents and supporters of prohibition are alike vociferous in their alarm over the debauchery of morals, the injury to health, the disturbance of the peace of the State which flow from the maintenance of illegal drinking places. None can doubt that from their nature such drinking places constitute an injury to the State. * * *

"We are now concerned with the source of the law which has changed former conditions. We do not seek to enforce that law. We recognize the conditions now existing, regardless of the source from which they flow. We apply to the conditions now existing the definition of a public nuisance applied of old by the common law.

"* * * Our conclusion that an illicit drinking place, from its nature, is a public nuisance which entices and induces men to break the law of the land and which tends to injure the health and morals of the community is founded upon manifest conditions. It is the disorderly character of the illicit drinking place which constitutes the offense to the public decency."

AIR YACHT DASHES ACROSS TO HAITI

The Liberty Exceeds Two Miles a Minute From San Juan to Port au Prince.

By FLOYD GIBBONS.

Copyright, 1929, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Jan. 3.—Joseph M. Patterson's amphibian air yacht Liberty flew handsomely today on the speediest hop made so far in its cruise of the Caribbean Sea. It is almost a month now since we winged southward from Miami, and in that time we have experienced and survived storms, pestilence, explosion and fire, but today's flight from San Juan, Porto Rico, to Port au Prince, was a joyous fulfillment of the aviator's toast, "tail winds and happy landings."

Well above the 4,000-foot level the Liberty's twin Hornets dug in with their three-bladed propellers and carved a pair of parallel tunnels through the air. With the sun to our backs, we raced ahead of a 38-mile wind and devoured 400 miles of distance in 3 hours and 10 minutes.

At times our speed registered high, at 150 miles an hour, and the average for the whole flight was better than two miles a minute. When this bulk of five and a half tons indulges in movement at that rate, the modest air yachtsmen may be excused for considering that they are traveling in the same class with hurricanes and forty-two-centimeter projectiles.

Leave Radio Men in Hospital.

Our departure from San Juan was neither happy nor auspicious. We were leaving one member of the crew behind, J. Russell Roe, the radio operator, who was badly burned on the arms and face by the explosion of gasoline vapors aboard the airship on New Year's eve during refueling.

Roe suffered a relapse yesterday in the military hospital at San Juan and the doctors refused to authorize his departure, although he insisted that he was physically capable of continuing the cruise. He will remain in the San Juan Hospital for a week, until the arrival of the naval hospital ship Kittery. He will return to the naval air station at Hampton Roads.

The navy again filled the breach by a quick exchange of messages between San Juan and Washington, resulting in a young naval radio operator from the San Juan station being granted leave and allowed to take Roe's place on the air yacht. The new operator, whose name is Fogg, never was in the air before, but he jumped at the chance and filled the post admirably in today's hop.

Taxiing around San Juan Harbor on one motor preparatory to the take-off, we ignominiously ran aground on the mud shallows, necessitating the immediate shutting off of all power while Mr. Patterson, Charles J. Sutter, the engineer, and Fogg slid overboard in the waist-deep shark-infested water and pushed the airship off the shoals.

When Frederick Becker, the pilot, headed her into the southeast wind and gave her the gun the Liberty shook the mud and water from her metal pontoons and leaped dripping into the air.

We circled the town and waved farewell to the Stars and Stripes flying over the old Spanish forts at the entrance to the harbor and streaked westward along the Porto Rican coast.

Dash Through Fleecy Clouds.

Steadily climbing to get the full benefit of the increased wind velocity at the higher altitudes, we burned up 150 miles in the first hour, and tore through fleece-bundle clouds loafing around over Cape Espada on the Haitien coast. A great feeling it is to sneak up on a slow moving cloud as big as Central Park and kick it out of the way—one of those feelings you must hold down to prevent getting too chesty. We were all humans in the cabin, and we felt it.

We skirted the Dominican coast and Becker made a short cut to sea to the south of Santo Domingo, although we could see the Dominican capital and easily recognize the cathedral. We turned inland at Nieva Bay and left the sea for an inland dash across a lake country flanked by high mountain ranges which lead to the head of the Gulf of Gonaives and Port au Prince.

We circled down over the capital city and harbor and Becker sat the big ship's wheels down softly on the greensward of the combination golf links and landing field of the marine aviation grounds at Bowen Field. The time was exactly 1:10 P. M.

DEMOCRATIC MAJORITY IN QUEENS WAS 92,140

The Registration Figure, Just Counted, Was Upset, However in Smith and Harvey Votes.

At the Bureau of Elections in Queens the tabulation of the enrollment made at the last election was completed yesterday. Although George U. Harvey, the Republican candidate for Borough President, received a majority and Governor Smith, the Democratic Presidential candidate, led by 25,000, the registration figures show a normal Democratic majority of 92,140. According to these figures, which indicate party preferences, there were: Democrats, men 130,864, women 84,114, total 214,978; Republicans, men 62,181, women 60,657, total 122,838.

The enrolment by Assembly Districts follows:

A. D.	Democrats.	Republicans.
1	31,012	8,318
2	29,020	9,901
3	39,071	15,325
4	52,104	45,703
5	40,744	23,250
6	23,075	18,338
Total	214,978	122,838

The enrolment of Democrats by assembly districts was:

A. D.	Men.	Women.
2	18,195	10,825
3	23,776	15,287
4	30,722	21,382
5	24,319	16,425
6	14,114	8,001
Total	130,864	84,114

The enrolment of Republicans by assembly districts was:

A. D.	Men.	Women.
1	4,573	3,745
2	5,330	4,571
3	7,876	7,449
4	22,402	23,274
5	12,576	12,674
6	9,324	9,004

The total enrolment of Socialists was 641 men and 277 women.

HOOVER WILL SPEED TO CAPITAL SUNDAY

PARTY LABORS AT PACKING

Myriad Gifts From Latin Americans Occupy Those Aboard as Ship Moves Northward.

By L. C. SPEERS,

Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

Navy Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ABOARD THE U. S. S. UTAH, Jan. 3.—As the Utah is nearing home shores, President-elect Hoover has arranged to speed his trip to Washington after the landing at Old Point Comfort early Sunday by directing that his special train be ready to leave there for the capital at 10 o'clock that morning.

Today was the first day since the battleship left Rio de Janeiro on Dec. 23 that the sea has been smooth. Although the ship is well into the North Temperate Zone, the weather continues warm and officers and crew are still in white-duck uniforms. There has been no indication yet of the cold weather reported on the mainland.

At 6 o'clock this evening the Utah was 900 mile southeast of Hampton Roads, 320 miles south of Bermuda and 900 miles due east of Jupiter Inlet, Florida.

Mr. Hoover is continuing his policy of remaining silent as to the affairs of his administration until after his arrival in Washington, when it is likely that some important announcements may be forthcoming.

Boxes and Bags in Demand.

ABOARD THE U. S. S. UTAH, Jan. 3 (AP).—In home waters once more, the Hoover party today began the task of packing up in preparation for leaving the Utah on Sunday to go ashore at Hampton Roads for the brief railroad journey to Washington. The ship's carpenters and sailmakers are literally overrun with orders for boxes and canvas bags for packing the various articles purchased or received as gifts by the President-elect and members of his party in the different Latin-American countries visited during the good-will tour.

An extra baggage car is to be attached to the special train leaving Old Point Comfort Sunday morning, in order to take care of the gifts received by the Hoovers. Among these are many of almost untold value, such as a gold Inca death mask and a piece of Inca tapestry dating back before the birth of Christ.

The Utah's usual speed of fifteen knots is being maintained, and with clear weather in prospect for the remainder of the voyage the officers on board definitely predict the arrival of the battleship in Hampton Roads by 8 o'clock Sunday morning.

President-elect Hoover enjoyed the beautiful weather prevailing by remaining on deck most of the day. Mrs. Hoover spent much time standing in the extreme bow of the vessel watching the steel prow cut through the water or gazing toward the distant horizon, beyond which lie the Virginia roadstead and home. During the morning the President-elect strolled on the forecastle deck and after luncheon he took his usual nap, later spending some time in personal correspondence and reading.

Fletcher May Continue as Advisor.

The assistance rendered by Henry P. Fletcher to Mr. Hoover on the tour probably will result in the new Ambassador to Italy becoming one of the chief advisers to the new President in foreign affairs, particularly in Central and South American relations.

While there has been some talk of Mr. Fletcher for a Cabinet position, just what place he will have in the new administration is for the President-elect to decide, and he is keeping his own counsel. However, it is well known that he regards Ambassador Fletcher as one of the ablest of the diplomatic career men and is highly pleased with work as a member of his mission.

Since one of the major foreign policies of Mr. Hoover's administration will be the fostering of better relations with other American republics, it is expected that Mr. Fletcher's advice and counsel will be called for frequently, as he has a very wide circle of friends among the governments of the Latin-American nations.

Mr. Hoover has known Mr. Fletcher for many years and kept his eye upon his work both in the diplomatic service in the Americas and in Europe, where he was Ambassador to Belgium as well as Italy, having been sent overseas after a term as Under Secretary of State. Besides representing the State Department in Chile as Minister and Ambassador and in Mexico during a delicate period of the World War, Mr. Fletcher has been a delegate to practically all Pan-American conferences in recent years.

Scouting Fleet Will Be in Roads.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP).—Although not a shot will be fired in salute to President-elect Hoover Sunday on his return to American soil, the entire scouting fleet and control force will be assembled in the vicinity of Hampton Roads as the Utah steams between the Virginia Capes. Plans made public at the Navy Department today showed that nearly the whole of the Atlantic forces will be concentrated at Norfolk over the week-end preparatory to the departure Tuesday for the annual Winter manoeuvres near the Panama Canal Zone.

Commanded by Vice Admiral M. N. Taylor on his flagship, the Wyoming, and Rear Admirals H. Laning and G. C. Day, the second battleship division, including the Arkansas, Florida and Utah, and the third light cruiser division, the Richmond, Detroit, Cincinnati and Marblehead, will be assembled at the Roads, together with the sixteen submarines of the control force, under Rear Admiral Frank B. Upham. The eight destroyer divisions of the scouting fleet, under Rear Admiral Frank H. Clark, will be based at Yorktown.

In accordance with the President-elect's request, the salute of an ex-President, given him in Latin-American ports will be dispensed with, and Navy Department officials thought it unlikely that there would be even the dipping of flags or the manning of rails as the Utah passes to her anchorage.

JONES DEMANDS DRY LAW INQUIRY

He Calls for a Senate Committee Composed Exclusively of Friends of Prohibition.

BACKS HOOVER SUGGESTION

Bruce Ridicules the Idea and King Sees No Need of New Data on Violations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—An investigation of prohibition enforcement was demanded in the Senate today by Senator Jones of Washington, an ardent dry, who explained that his purpose was solely for more stringent application of the laws and that he wanted the inquiry to be made by a committee composed exclusively of friends of prohibition.

Mr. Jones said he was convinced the investigation he proposes would meet requirements of an impartial fact-finding inquiry into prohibition as suggested by Mr. Hoover during the Presidential campaign.

The Senator denied, however, that his action had been inspired by Mr. Hoover or that he has had any intimation that the next President would be pleased to have the Senate take over a task which he has mapped out for himself.

Senator Jones's plan calls for the appointment of a special Senate committee of five to "investigate the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment." The resolution provides that the committee "make a complete investigation and study of the system and methods of the enforcement of the amendment, and laws passed thereunder, and determine 'the best means and methods' for improving enforcement and report its recommendations to the Senate not later than Jan. 1, 1930."

Senator Bruce of Maryland, an outstanding champion of the wet cause, was on his feet as soon as the Jones resolution was introduced. He wanted to know if Mr. Jones thought that his plan would bring about that "impartial inquiry" which Mr. Hoover suggested. Mr. Jones said he thought that result could be accomplished by Senatorial investigation.

Mr. Bruce ridiculed this idea, saying it was inconceivable that an impartial inquiry could be made by "members of this body who carry on their deliberations under the uplifted scourge of the Anti-Saloon League."

Senator King of Utah also criticized the Jones plan.

The Utah Senator recalled that the Couzens committe which had investigated the Bureau of Internal Revenue, which at that time included the prohibition unit, had "uncovered evidence that violations were so great that the committee felt it was useless to go further."

A more recent investigation, said Senator King, referring to the Reed committee, which investigated the Illinois and Pennsylvania elections of 1926, had brought out "the fact that the Anti-Saloon League had spent more than $60,000,000 for propaganda purposes." Mr. King declared he was unable to understand what additional information was wanted.

He suggested that Mr. Jones support a bill which the Utah Senator introduced to transfer the functions of the Prohibition Bureau to the Department of Justice and to abolish the dry bureau.

REFUSES TO PAROLE THOMAS W. MILLER

Attorney General Sargent Gives No Reason for Overlooking Recommendation of Parole Board.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—A parole recommended by the parole board for Thomas W. Miller, former Alien Property Custodian, was disapproved today by Attorney General Sargent. Miller has been serving an eighteen months' sentence in the Atlanta penitentiary, having been convicted on a charge of conspiracy to deprive the government of his best services in connection with the American Metals case, involving the administration of seized German property. He was also fined $5,000 which was paid shortly after the parole board recommended his parole more than six weeks ago.

Miller's parole was the only case before the Attorney General during the holidays. He delayed action until today and merely wrote on the recommendation "disapproved." No explanation of his action was obtainable at the Department of Justice, where it was said that rarely has the Attorney General acted unfavorably upon the recommendation of the board.

Mr. Miller has served more than a third of his term and on July 7, 1929, will be freed under the parole law for good behavior.

Some of his friends believe the Attorney General may later accept the parole recommendations a few months before Miller's term expires under the "good behavior" law.

MAURETANIA NOT SPEEDING.

Captain Is Not Seeking Record This Trip—May Do Better Later.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ABOARD THE MAURETANIA, Jan. 3.—The Mauretania is making no attempt to beat the record on the present trip.

"There is no point in it," declared Captain S. G. S. McNeil. "We are just jogging along at a comfortable 25 knots and do not intend to dock in New York before Tuesday morning. This is the wrong time of year for speed records, which, even if we reached New York Monday evening, would mean needless inconvenience and expense to the passengers.

"Of course she can and will beat the present record by a considerable marbin, but there is not much point in beating one's own record."

On her run to Cherbourg from Wednesday evening to noon Thursday the Maureania covered 462 miles at an average of just above 25 knots. Just now she is driving through a heavy southwesterly gale and has eased down slightly.

This is the Mauretania's first trip since her overhaul. There have been rumors that she may soon cut down her time of passage by several hours.

IMPORTANT NOTICE MAIL TO EUROPE

The S. S. Berengaria, sailing today (Friday) at midnight, will reach Europe two days or more ahead of any other steamer sailing the end of this week.

According to the latest Post Office bulletin, mail will not be forwarded by the Berengaria unless it is especially addressed by her—so it is urged that in order to avoid delayed delivery of mail for England and the Continent, all mail be marked "per S. S. Berengaria."

KELLOGG PACT LEADS NAVY BILL IN SENATE

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

given to its second provision which, he insisted, was the more important.

That provision pledges the signatories that "the settlement or solution of all disputes or conflicts, of whatever nature or whatever origin they may be, which may arise among them, shall never be sought except by pacific means."

In this second provision Senator Borah found a distinct obligation imposed on all the signatory nations to resort to arbitration or other pacific methods of adjustment if international war were threatened.

Borah Explains Treaty.

He contended that there was nothing in that pledge to prevent the United States from undertaking forcible measures if its security was endangered. He countered suggestions that this procedure was not set forth in the treaty by asserting that self-defense was an inherent right of nations so well established that it did not need to be specified in the pact. No nation was forbidden under the treaty, he maintained, from determining what its course should be if its self-defense was involved.

Nor was there anything in the treaty, he explained, that bound any nation to the imposition of sanctions or punitive measures against a nation which violated its provisions. Nowhere in the correspondence of the fifteen signatory nations or the adhering nations was there any suggestion that the pact was binding in that respect.

"We ought to take the treaty for what it is," he said. "It may impair its value in the minds of some when we take away the idea of force being behind it, but, nevertheless, that is the treaty."

A chorus of "ayes" came when Senator Borah moved that the treaty be taken up for consideration in executive session. He sketched the history of the past, beginning with the interview with Aristide Briand, then Premier of France, on April 6, 1927, the tenth anniversary of America's entrance into the World War, in which M. Briand said that his country would be willing to subscribe publicly with the United States in an agreement to outlaw war.

He told of the objection of this Government to making such a treaty with France alone, as such a compact would be in the nature of an alliance and the ultimate conclusion of the multilateral pact at Paris.

Right of Self-Defense.

It was due to a discussion in the Foreign Relations Committee when Secretary Kellogg appeared before that body that the treaty was made multilateral, said Senator Borah.

Briefly reviewing the correspondence preceding the conclusion of the pact, much of which he thought was immaterial, Senator Borah added that two important questions had been raised in the correspondence. "The first of these," he said, "is the right of self-defense under the treaty. It is conceded that the right of self-defense is in no wise curtailed or embarrassed by the treaty."

Senator Borah pointed out that Secretary Kellogg had taken the position that the right of self-defense was "inherent in every sovereign State and implicit in every treaty and cannot be bartered away or abrogated by any treaty."

He emphasized this by the statement that every nation must determine for itself what constitutes self-defense, and conceded that the criticism that this practically left each nation to determine what constituted an attack on its security showed an admitted weakness in the pact, but, he said, "it is a weakness which is inherent in human nature."

"That condition would prevail," he asserted, "until there was a supergovernment. Until then no nation "will surrender, or should surrender, the right of self-defense," and added:

"A nation must answer to the tribunal of public opinion as to her right to go to war. The only censor of her action is the power of public opinion."

Refers to British Note.

Senator Borah mentioned the British note reserving the right of self-defense where she had interests and admitted that this gave the British Government a wide region of the world over which to assert that right, but this was because the British Empire covered a great area and he knew of no way "to take from her the right to employ self-defense over these territories."

Of Article 2, which binds the adherents of the treaty to adjust international differences through pacific means, Mr. Borah said that any nation refusing to abide by that provision could never afterward, in his judgment, "claim that in good faith it was acting in self-defense." Such a course of conduct would be impossible to defend, he maintained.

The second important question arising under the treaty, said Senator Borah, was the question of sanctions. "What agreements have the signatories made for enforcing the provisions of the treaty?" he asked.

"The language of the treaty refutes that suggestion. The process of the treaty is not organizing force but organizing peace. It certainly ought not to be an implication under a treaty which rejects war. How can you imply from language which rejects war that in any circumstances it implies force? The treaty condemns war, not aggressive war or any kind of war, but condemns war as an institution.

"So the language, plain, simple and direct, that under no circumstances do we recognize force, seems to me to be beyond question. There has never been an indication or implication that there was any obligation to resort to force to enforce the provisions of the treaty."

He quoted Lord Cushendun, Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in the British Government, as saying that the treaty forbade resort to war except in bona fide self-defense.

Senator Reed of Missouri inquired if the United States would be obligated, under the treaty, to employ peaceful means to bring about the settlement of any dispute to which this nation is not a party.

"Under the treaty there would be no obligation of this character," Senator Borah answered. "Our action would be entirely voluntary. If any nation resorted to war it would simply have violated the treaty."

"Then one nation would say to another, 'You are not the nation you look to be,' and that would be the end of the episode," remarked Senator Bruce of Maryland.

Senator Johnson of California recalled that the terms of the Covenant of the League of Nations bind the members of the League to use force in certain contingencies and asked what would be the situation if all nations, except the United States, which are signatory to the multilateral treaty, were also members of the League and some nation violated both the treaty and their obligations under the League Covenant.

Senator Borah insisted that in such a situation there would be no obligation on the part of the United States to take any action.

The possible relationship between the treaty and the Monroe Doctrine was injected into the debate by Senator Robinson of Indiana. He presented a hypothetical war between France and Colombia, with France on the defensive because of an attack upon her South American possessions.

"Would the United States be justified in going to war in defense of Colombia?" he inquired.

Senator Borah insisted that the Monroe Docerine was a doctrine of defense and that "any attack upon that doctrine would be just as much of an attack upon the United States as an attack upon Norfolk, Va."

Senator Shipstead of Minnesota, Farmer-Laborite, reverted to the possibilities of difficulty involving the League of Nations by asking whether, if the League should impose an economic blockade on one of its own members and that blockade interfered with American commerce, the United States would be justified in resorting to force to protect its own trade.

Senator Borah said he was of the opinion that the United States could solve that difficulty by pacific methods.

"How long would the Senator say that war would have to last before we could settle it by peaceful methods?" inquired Senator Reed in an ironic tone.

Senator Reed pressed Senator Borah as to what would happen if a warship enforcing a League of Nations blockade tried to take an American merchant vessel from under the guns of an American warship.

"It would constitute an act of war if they undertook to take our citizens or our property while they were under our protection," said Senator Borah.

"If the act of the government of a nation which took our citizens or our property was an act of force it would be an act of war, but if it were the mere exercise of seizure and search in accordance with marine laws it would not be an act of war.

"But I'm assuming the signatories of this treaty would live up to it." Senator Bingham of Connecticut asked, "Is there anything in this treaty which changes the policy of the United States for the past century to send its warships to various parts of the world to protect its citizens and property?"

"If we did not go beyond that, it is no act of war," answered Senator Borah. "But if it interferes with the sovereignty of a nation, why that's an act of war."

"We pledge ourselves by this treaty to adjust our controversies with other nations through peaceable methods, whether through the Hague tribunal or other means," Senator Borah further explained. "There is nothing in the treaty to prevent us from breaking off diplomatic relations with a nation. The only thing this treaty pledges us to do is to endeavor to settle our controversies by peaceful means."

If the treaty was lived up to it would result utimately in disarmament, just such a disarmament as prevailed along the border between Canada and the United States.

He did not believe that tomorrow we should disband our army and destroy our navy as long as other nations had armies and navies, but he held that the treaty would give a confidence that would bring about a reasonable degree of disarmament.

Senator Reed pressed his question as to what course would have been taken by the United States under such a treaty when the Maine was blown up and Spain disclaimed responsibility for it.

"At that time," answered Senator Borah, "we were acting under principles that had been established for a hundred years, and it was for us to determine what was necessary to defend our rights.

"Every nation has the right to determine what is self-defense. That is a weakness in this treaty, but it is a weakness inherent in human nature."

The treaty debate will be resumed tomorrow. Nothing developed today to change the view that it will be ratified by a heavy majority. No opportunity was given today to disclose opposition to the cruiser program, but it is expected that when general debate on both measures is begun the opponents of the cruiser program will set up the claim that if the treaty is ratified the program should be defeated.

HALE PLEADS FOR CRUISERS.

Tells Senators Fifteen Are Needed for "Adequate Defense."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—After being before the Senate just long enough for one speech to be made in its support, the naval construction bill was set aside today to permit consideration of the Kellogg pact and probably will not be brought before the Senate again until at least several days have been devoted to debate on the anti-war treaty.

Senator Hale of Maine, chairman of the naval committee, who made the one speech in support of the bill, was asked by Senator Reed of Missouri why he consented to have his own bill put aside. Senator Hale replied that he thought the prospect for the enactment of the bill would be enhanced if the treaty were disposed of promptly and that he would allow a "reasonable time" for debate on the treaty before seeking to call up the naval bill again.

The Maine Senator read a prepared speech in which he reviewed the naval construction policies and practices of the United States in recent years, asserted there was need of the vessels proposed in the bill and argued its enactment would not be out of harmony with ratification of the anti-war treaty.

"Supremacy of the seas we do not seek, but the rights of our commerce when we and the rest of the world are at peace, when we are neutral and other countries are at war, and when we are ourselves belligerents, we must insist upon," Senator Hale said.

Asserting that, while practically no construction had been undertaken by the United States since the 5-5-3 ratio had been agreed on, other nations have gone ahead with formidable construction programs of ships not restricted by that treaty, he stated that in the lighter cruiser class Great Britain now has sixty-four completed, under construction or appropriated for, and Japan had thirty-three, the United States had only eighteen.

"The failure of the Geneva conference in 1927 to agree upon a basis for light cruiser restriction as between England and the United States," he went on, "makes it necessary for the United States to protect her own interest by constructing more cruisers of this class.

"We went into this Geneva conference in an honest attempt to bring about a further limitation of armament. We figured that in the Washington conference almost the entire sacrifice had been made by ourselves. In the Geneva conference we hoped that Great Britain, which was in much the same position in regard to cruisers at that time that we had occupied in regard to capital ships at the time of the Washington conference, would sacrifice her cruiser superiority as we had sacrificed our capital ship superiority, but we hoped in vain. The shoe was now very much on the other foot.

"The policy of this country has always been to maintain a navy for defensive purposes. We do not need, and with the will of the American people for peace, we shall not need a navy for purposes of aggression.

"We were not at this second conference in the lordly position that we occupied at the first one. We had no great partly completed program that we were willing to sacrifice in the interest of world economy. We were asking another country to assume that role and the other country did not feel that it could assume it, so the conference failed, as all such conferences in the future will fail unless the nation which has come to the top is willing to give up that advantage for some reason that seems justifiable."

Denying that the enactment of the cruiser bill would be out of harmony with the ratification of the Kellogg treaty, Mr. Hale said he believed that the treaty should be ratified but would not take that view if he thought that thereby the Government was committing itself to a policy that would lead to neglect of a proper national defense. "The present situation of the navy is not in any way changed by the passage of the treaty," he said.

Senator Hale in criticising pacifist elements which are opposing the cruiser bill said:

"They are willing, through dependence on the multilateral treaty, to allow our navy to fall below the requisite strength of our national needs, while the other naval powers instead of falling back are increasing their strength.

"Should they be wrong in their dependence upon the effect of the multilateral treaty, our weakened position will inevitably bring disaster. That disaster against the experience of history, they are willing to risk; that disaster the advocates of preparedness, and I believe a great majority of the people of the United States, are not willing to risk. An adequate preparedness based on the relative strength of other countries we insist upon."

King Offers Amendments.

Senator King, Democrat of Utah, introduced two amendments to the bill, proposing to reduce the number of vessels authorized from fifteen cruisers to five and retaining the provisions for the construction of one aircraft carrier; and also to authorize the President to call an international conference on land and sea disarmament, to meet in Washington in 1930.

The first amendment also would reduce the authorized cost of each cruiser from $15,000,000 to $12,000,000.

The second amendment contained a provision for authorizing the President, should the proposed international conference result in an agreement to restrict naval armament, to suspend construction on the five cruisers and the one aircraft carrier in whole or in part.

The first amendment contemplates a three-year program, during which one of the cruisers would be laid down in the fiscal year 1930, two in 1931 and two in 1932.

The amendment referring to the proposed international conference would also request the President to seek data bearing on disarmament from whatsoever source he might desire, including the League of Nations or any of the commissions or other agencies of the League. An appropriation of $200,000 would be authorized for this purpose, and the President would also be authorized to appoint five delegates to represent the United States at the conference.

The Senator explained that in offering these amendments he was not abandoning his position that no naval construction at all should be undertaken at this time. He declared that in his opinion the ratification of the Kellogg anti-war compact called for supplementary international agreements to give positive effect to this "negative" declaration against war.

ALLIES IN ACCORD ON NAMING EXPERTS

London and Paris Want Owen D. Young, and Report Gilbert Will Ask Him.

BELIEVE HE IS WILLING

First Meeting Is Expected in Paris by the Last Week of This Month.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—The British, French, Italian and Belgian Governments are understood to have reached a full agreement today on the question of appointing reparations experts. Among the American nominees on the expert committee, the allied governments would like to see Owen D. Young, and it is believed that one of the chief objects of the visit of S. Parker Gilbert to New York is to obtain his cooperation. It is further understood that Mr. Young is willing to serve, but for personal reasons has been hesitating and has awaited Mr. Gilbert's arrival before making a decision. Mr. Young was a member of the Dawes Committee in 1924 and has intimate knowledge of the problems on which the experts will be called to consider.

Certain points of procedure which concern the attitude of the American State Department toward American participation in the Committee of Experts have also to be cleared up in Washington. The general hope, however, is that with all technical obstacles overcome the committee will meet in Paris by the last week in January, when the Japanese experts, already on the way, have had time to arrive.

It is not expected here that the United States will put any difficulties in the way of American representation on the committee. The Washington Government, of course, continues studiously to avoid any official contact with German reparations, except when defending its own direct interests.

Washington Influence Felt.

Mr. Kellogg's reply to Sir Esme Howard is interpreted here as indicating that the State Department even doubts the advisability of having an American chairman of the new committee. On the separation of inter-allied debts and German reparations Washington, it is admitted, maintains an attitude as uncompromising as when Mr. Rathbone, then Under-Secretary of the Treasury, wrote his letter of warning in 1919 to the French High Commissioner in America. But it is said here that American influence has made itself felt in increasing measure through the years that have followed. It was predominant during the negotiations in London for a settlement on the Dawes plan in 1924. It has been equally important in the preparatory period preceding the appointment of the new expert committee.

From the beginning Mr. Gilbert has been a decisive influence, and this, it is argued here, would have been impossible without solid backing by New York and Washington.

Many things encourage the Allies and Germany to favor revision of the Dawes plan, but the weightiest pressure possible was exercised by American financiers and statesmen.

The French Government especially has been warned of the need to ratify its war debt agreement without delay if it desires to avoid paying out several hundred million dollars in the Autumn of this year for American war stocks taken over after the war. In recent months Wall Street has shown itself unresponsive to German applications for money, and Germany, therefore, must also lend an attentive ear to the wish of her American creditors to see her reparations situation regularized.

The German Arguments.

Germany already is pleading as an answer to Mr. Gilbert's report of her prosperity that this depends on American loans. The Allies will contend, however, that neither does the development of German economy indicate absolute independence of foreign credits nor are reparations payments the principal source of danger to the stability of the budget. German revenues, it is asserted here, have grown much faster than the corresponding increase in reparations payments, while expenditures, apart from reparations, are responsible for the growing amount on the debit side. It is said, for instance, that the sum of foreign loans taken up by Germany from 1924 to 1928 is about 6,500,000,000 marks, and the capital saved in various ways by the German nation during 1927 alone is put by the German authorities at about 9,000,000,000 marks. These figures indicate the nature of the argument which will be brought forward by the allied members of the committee of experts.

The experts will ask the opinion of the most competent witness, S. Parker Gilbert himself, and will visit Berlin to judge for themselves the state of the country. As some experts, including Owen Young, were on the Dawes committee they will be able to contrast the misery of the inflation period with the prosperity of today.

French Look for Young.

PARIS, Jan. 3 (AP).—Nomination of American experts for the new committee on reparations is expected by French official circles to take place soon now that S. Parker Gilbert has arrived in the United States.

There was a decided tendency in those circles today to speculate on the names. It was said that members of the old Dawes committee were most likely to be choices and that Owen Young was particularly regarded as certain to be asked to serve again and as likely to accept.

Mr. Young's name, in fact, was mentioned for a place on the new committee by the French Government. It was understood here that Mr. Gilbert would see him soon after arrival in New York, and the Paris headquarters of the reparations commission confidently expects that he will accept.

Washington Without Advice.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The State Department is without advices concerning the selection of Americans to serve on the committee of experts to revise German reparations.

The general expectation has been, however, that Owen D. Young, who served on the Dawes commission five years ago, would again be asked to act in similar capacity, and the only question was as to whether his private business was in condition to permit him to give the time to the work.

Officials said they had no indication as to who the second American expert would be. Mr. Young is highly satisfactory to the United States as an expert and it is not believed the second one named will encounter any objection here.

The official announcement of the two Americans selected is expected to be made at Paris.

GERMANS DEMAND FIRM DEBT STAND

Want Real Coalition Cabinet to Back Delegates to Experts' Conference.

By WYTHE WILLIAMS.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 3.—A demand for a real coalition government—coalition of the "Poincaré quality"—to supersede the loose party union that has existed since the last elections and be able firmly to back up the German delegates at the forthcoming Reparations Conference, has been the soberer second day reaction to S. Parker Gilbert's New Year's report proclaiming the Reich's ability to meet all her economic obligations.

"The entire world must understand that the time has arrived when Germany is determined to speak a clear 'no' rather than a wrong 'yes,'" was the manner in which this sentiment was expressed by Ludwig Kaas, newly elected president of the strong Catholic Centrist party in place of former Chancellor Marx. His view is believed to be a fruitful expression of government opinion.

Delegates to Be Instructed.

Furthermore, in opposition to the "Allies' creed," which is the description applied here to the Gilbert report, the experts who will represent the Reich at the conference are to be furnished with a firm basis for argument upon which, according to present German prognostications, the conference must either succeed or fail.

This German creed comprises ten points as concise as the Biblical commandments. It was drawn up by the powerful German Industrial Federation for Foreign Trade comprising all the big importing and exporting concerns with a far-reaching organization already having more than 200 agents abroad.

The ten points are:

1. Investigation and determination of whether the payments already made have been taken from German economic profits or from foreign loans.
2. Abolishment of the index on German prosperity.
3. So long as Germany suffers from a shortage of capital the transfer clause shall be extended so that no cash payments can be transferred.
4. The granting of several years' moratorium on the same basis as the Allies received from the United States.
5. Repeal of the act which grants France and England 26 per cent on reparations deliveries, because it is contrary to the spirit of the Dawes plan.
6. Revision of the plan for deliveries in kind.
7. Transfer protection shall be extended to deliveries in kind and the 26 per cent reparations payments. (See Point 5.)
8. Abolishment of control commissions.
9. In fixing the final amount Germany must pay the deliveries already made are to be considered at full value.
10. International lowering of high tariff walls.

Attaché's Report Gives Comfort.

The German press, while almost unanimously insisting that the government break off the conference negotiations rather than be confronted with "impossible terms," seizes a crumb of comfort from the report of F. W. Allport, American Commercial Attaché, which paints the industrial conditions of the Reich in much grayer coloring than Mr. Gilbert's.

The press finds reports in British and French journals as "preparations hostile to Germany at the forthcoming meeting." The ultra-nationalists refer to what they call Mr. Gilbert's "oversight" in not looking into the problem of the unemployed, who, they declare, number 1,500,000.

"Will he wait until this army increases and despair presses weapons into its hands, which will be a far more convincing argument than all negotiations?" is the question asked by the Deutsche Zeitung, which represents such a brand of political opinion.

On the other hand, the Democratic Volkszeitung also points to the number of unemployed and declares that German industries are hampered by lack of capital and the resulting high rate of interest.

Reading up and down the entire gamut of derogatory adjectives upon the subject of the Gilbert report, one finds one point standing out clearly, namely the mere fact that the report, published at a time when it was bound to be considered the prelude to the discussions of the experts, has brought the nation together in sober contemplation of the world political situation. And so, when Chancellor Mueller returns from his vacation he is likely to find more united cooperation than at any time since he came into power.

OUTLINES REICH'S CONDITION.

German Credit Association Lists Handicaps to Recovery.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 3.—What is regarded as an inkling of what arguments the Germans will use in trying to get the reparations annuities reduced under the new plan is given in the annual report published today of the National Credit Association, which is closely connected with several government institutions.

It was on statistics gathered by this organization that S. Parker Gilbert based some of his conclusions in his annual report, though the comments of the Credit Association are far less optimistic about Germany's condition than those of Mr. Gilbert.

Lack of capital within the country and lowered national wealth relatively to pre-war standards put the economic situation on a dangerous footing, the report says, and as long as there is a wearly drain on the country conditions cannot materially improve.

One of the items which is emphasized as a sore loss to Germany is her mercantile fleet, with docks, wharves and other accessories, to the shipping industry now in possession of other countries. This loss is estimated at 2,000,000,000 marks [$800,000,000] annually which could have been listed as invisible exports.

One of the mistakes generally made, the report asserts, is to judge the German economic situation from the 1927 boom, when every form of industry was operated profitably and plants expanded because money was plentiful. Since January there has been a steady decline in production, reaching the lowest point in December.

Rationalization has helped industry and the efficiency of the workers has improved, however, the report admits. Coal miners increased individual output by 25 per cent over 1913 and other branches of industry show similar effects of rationalization. Export of finished products is steadily increasing and prices of raw materials and half-finished products show very little change. Another index of the economic situation is the savings of the people. These have grown from twenty-six marks a head in 1925 to 105. In 1913 the average was 291.

But though these figures indicate a steady growth in the Reich's production, her economic situation cannot be measured from these things alone, the report contends, basing this argument on present holdings compared with those before the war, when Germans held stocks and bonds of foreign countries and had extensive colonial possessions. The chaotic internal condition following the war prevented an equal start with rival countries engaged in the conflict, it is declared, and though there has been encouraging progress Germany is still a sick country and must have time to recover before attempting to carry a burden such as the Dawes plan entails.

A moratorium on all payments for five years is one of the first requisites toward regaining economic stability, the report concludes.

YOUNG IS CONSIDERING POST.

He Will Decide on Arriving Here Monday From Arizona.

Special to The New York Times.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 3.—Owen D. Young says he has not accepted an appointment to the reparations committee of experts, but he has the matter under consideration.

He does not feel that he can take up the matter at such a distance from New York and he is leaving tomorrow morning for New York, where he will arrive Monday. He will definitely decide whether he will accept at that time.

COLD WAVE HITS FRANCE.

Heavy Snow Blocks Traffic in Provinces—Six Deaths Reported.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 3.—Six deaths and numerous cases of illness are reported tonight from various points of France, which almost in its entirety has been visited by exceptional cold.

Snow fell over the eastern portion and, what is extremely rare, extended over the Rhone Valley and Central France and as far south as Bordeaux and Biarritz. In the region of Biarritz the snowfall was quite heavy and a subsequent thaw made the roads impassable. Trains from the south are arriving several hours late.

In Paris the temperature dropped considerably below the freezing point and the sky was overcast, but the nearest snow was at Tours and Orleans. There is deep snow in the north.

GILBERT DEFENDS REPORT ON GERMANY

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

based largely, as has been announced by Premier Poincaré and Winston Churchill, on an effort to obtain from the Reich money with which the Allies may pay their war debts to the United States and for as long as they must pay the United States.

German publicists and statesmen began by characterizing this demand as unfair and impossible. But after the "injustice" of this proposal has been emphasized for various political effects, one of which will be to assure Washington that Berlin is joining in no manoeuvre against America, there is very good reason, French officials think, that the Germans will accept such a basis of settlement.

S. PARKER GILBERT,

It is entirely likely, they say, even though it may be denied officially, that those really controlling the German position have already made up their minds in favor of this scheme.

The reason for this presumed position is most interesting, for it represents nothing else than a belief that some day, somehow, the United States will make more favorable terms to the Allies. It may be in ten years, it may be in twenty and it may be later, but the Germans are believed to think it will happen and to be quite willing to adopt a position in which they might stand to profit in any better arrangements between Europe and America.

In agreeing to pay the Allies what they must pay America and for as many years the Germans, according to this view, would not really expect to pay for sixty-two years, but that they do not expect that America will collect from the Allies for sixty-two years.

Were a final settlement of the Reich's debt to the Allies made on some hard and fast basis without relation to other war debts, it might happen that the Allies would obtain concessions from the United States without those concessions affecting Germany's debt to the Allies, especially since it is not to the interest of English and French industry, bearing heavy war taxes, to have competing German industry bear a lesser burden.

But if German payments to the Allies were tied to Allied payments to America, Germany would in all likelihood be in position to benefit accordingly. In other words, if Germany agrees to pay what the Allies pay America they intend it shall be made plain that such an arrangement means no more than it says.

I am told by what should be good authority that if America would agree to Germany assuming the Allied payments to the United States, Germany might be willing to agree.

This feeling ascribed to Germany, which is shared by other countries, that eventually some better settlement with America will be found than that of paying for six decades, would be reflected in the German attitude toward proposals for mobilization of the reparations debt by the issuance of German Goverment bonds.

Should the whole reparations debt eventually be converted into a commercial debt, it is apparent that Germany's chance of profiting through any better settlement between the allies and America would be gone. Once the German Government bonds were sold they would have to be paid. Therefore, it is entirely likely that the Germans will oppose complete mobilization, even if the experts consider it feasible, which is unlikely.

However, it is declared, that does not mean that the Germans would oppose all mobilization. They see some advantages in partial commercialization of their foreign debt, in the new arrangement of the Dawes plan which would give them back fiscal liberty. How far the Germans would go is, of course, hard to predict now, although many experts think that Germany, with a national debt of less than $2,000,000,000 as compared with national debts many times that amount in other nations which participated in the war, might well subscribe largely to a "liberation" loan.

For example, the project to raise $1,000,000,000 by German Government loan receipts which might be used to discount the last years of allied payments to America, might well find favor with the Germans.

However, it will surely be found that the Germans will insist on a large part of their reparations debt being left in a form which will enable them to share with the allies the benefits of any remissions the United States might make.

To many observers it appears that the European statesmen are making plans based on expectation of the United States eventually doing just what American leaders now say there is no intention of doing.

Physicians End Long Statement With Note of Hope for Recovery, Though It May Take Months.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—There was no alteration in King George's condition today. A restless night was balanced by a fair day and the net result was to leave the patient still marking time on what his doctors hope is a slow but sure march toward recovery. Tonight's bulletin said:

"The King had a fair day and there is no change to report in his Majesty's condition."

The morning report read:

"The King passed a restless night and there is no change to report in his Majesty's condition."

Although no progress is noted in either report, the bulletins were not regarded as unsatisfactory in the light of the authoritative statement issued by the King's physicians today. This statement said in part:

"The King's illness was a severe toxemia—which, fortunately, did not localize in a vital organ. The pus localized at the base of the right lung. At first it did not localize completely. That was when we had our first disappointment. Then came the empyema—fixation abcess—and we could get at it. The empyema wound is now clean and is steadily diminishing in size.

"The picture is now that of the aftermath of a severe general infection. It cannot be said how long the recovery will take. Perhaps it may be measured in weeks, perhaps in months. One thing is sure, the King now has a definite will to live, though he is feeling tremendously the burden of his illness."

Lancet Stresses Obstacles.

This statement, the fourth of its kind to be circulated since the serious nature of the sovereign's illness was first made known, came a fortnight after the last full disclosure of the progress of the patient. It strengthened the feeling of hopefulness that now prevails at the palace.

The Lancet, one of the chief organs of the British medical profession, made the following comment on the statement:

"The note of encouragement with which this statement ends will do much to renew the hope that has at times fallen very low. On the other hand, the obstacles to recovery are frankly set out, and no medical reader will gain an impression that their removal is purely a matter of time.

"Though there is increasing reason to think that the preservation of the King's life during these many weeks will not have been in vain, a more definite and settled improvement, unfortunately, is needed before our anxiety can be replaced by confidence."

The British Council of the World Alliance for Promoting International Friendship Through Churches has received the following resolution from the trustees of the Church Peace Union of the United States: "It was voted to request the British Council of the World Alliance to express on behalf of the trustees of the Church Peace Union its sympathy with his Majesty the King in his illness and to assure him of the prayers of the board of trustees for his speedy recovery."

Review Is Fullest Yet Made.

LONDON, Jan. 3 (AP).—An authorized review of King George's illness was issued today from Buckingham Palace and will appear in tomorrow's Lancet and the British Medical Journal. This review gives the fullest statement of the King's real condition that has been permitted thus far for publication.

It stated that because of exhaustion the course of the illness must be long and for the present anxious. None the less, improvement and progress are taking place slowly, but surely enough to justify hope that the King will be restored to his people.

At the outset the review explains that neither in its inception nor in its subsequent course has the illness conformed to what is called pleuropneumonia. Rather was it a streptococcal septicemia which, by a fortunate happening, was localized at the base of the right lung, first imperfectly and later as an empyema, or fixation abscess forming between the base of the lung and the diaphragm.

Wound Is Now Clean.

The clinical picture is now that of the aftermath of a severe general infection. The empyema wound is now clean and steadily diminishing in size. The discharge from the pleural cavity is small and the potency of the infection is diminishing.

Ensol has been an effective local application, and although, through the courtesy of an American colleague, Dr. Sherman, a supply of Dakin's solution was received, there has been no opportunity to use it because the necessity of such local application has passed.

On the other hand, disinclination toward food, dryness of tongue, low blood pressure, weakness and wasting and notable exhaustion, though slowly improving, will for a long time be an anxious problem, and in the meantime the margin of reserve power must be narrow, and small setbacks, inevitable at this stage, have a correspondingly more severe effect.

It is important that the public should not interpret such setbacks or reports of no change as relapses. During each week there will be ups and downs and progress will consist of the slow and increasing predominance of the ups over the downs.

Concerning nourishment, the difficulties will be understood when it is stated that there is a disinclination for most foods and a dislike for many, and that the weakness necessitates nourishment being given by a nurse with a feeder. Adequacy of nutriment, both as regards quantity and variety, is now being secured, though not without difficulty.

Strychnine Apparently Helpful.

Moreover, the combating of the loss of weight, which has been notable, depends not only on the food taken, but on the food digested and assimilated, and here again exhaustion tells its tale.

The blood pressure has fallen too low and the calcium content of the blood has decreased considerably of late. The administration of calcium, parathyroid extract and strychnine is apparently beneficial. The same is true of ray therapy, which is being continued.

In explaining that transfusion has been fully considered but put aside as undesirable, the statement adds that moreover the red blood count is one of the most hopeful features, for, whereas in the early days of the illness the red count was as low as 2,900,000, today the count has reached 4,300,000. (The normal count is 5,000,000.)

Moreover the exhaustion is as much weariness of mind as of body. Though there is an increasing sense of the burden of his illness, the King's will to live is there.

The ensol mentioned in the Lancet statement is an antiseptic solution of hypochloric acid used for the same purpose as Dakin's solution, and was being used in the King's wound before the offer of the latter from American sources was received. The fact that necessity no longer exists for such application is regarded as a hopeful sign.

Drs. Woods and Howitt, the ultraviolet rays experts, were again in attendance on the King. They resumed their treatment this evening.

WILL ADMIT RUMANIA IN RUSSO-POLISH DEAL

Soviet Consents to Negotiations for Anti-War Pact—Reverses Previous Attitude.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 3.—The Rumanian Government received an intimation today from the Polish Government that Soviet Russia had agreed to Rumanian's taking part in the Russo-Polish negotiations.

This Soviet statement came as a result of Polish representations to Moscow to the effect that Rumania, as a partner in the defense compact with Poland, had a right to attend the negotiations proposed by Moscow.

The Regency received Premier Maniu in audience today to consider this information, which involves a remarkable change in the Soviet attitude toward Rumania. The only big question between Russia and Rumania is that of Bessarabia. So far Russia has stubbornly refused to recognize the Rumanian acquisition of this former Russian province or to have any dealings with Bucharest. Within the last fornight, however, discreet unofficial Soviet inquiries have been made in Bucharest regarding the prospect of Rumanian recognition of the Soviets. Bucharest immediately made known that recognition of the acquisition of Bessarabia was an essential preliminary.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 3 (AP).—Negotiations for the conclusion of an anti-war compact between the Soviet Government and Rumania based upon the Kellogg treaty began through the intermediary of the Warsaw Government today.

The view of the Rumanian Government is that the conclusion of such a compact would constitute indirect acknowledgment by the Soviet of Rumania's annexation of Bessarabia, which it has always hitherto disputed.

In diplomatic circles it is asserted the Soviet is acting under pressure indirectly by the United States, it being explained that the Soviet cannot expect financial or other aid from America unless it first shows an earnest desire for the permanent peace of all nations.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Jan. 3.—The Soviet proposal of last week for a protocol to make the Kellogg anti-war pact effective between Russia and Poland before its ratification by all the signatories has been favorably received in the Polish capital.

The government wants to go a step further and to have all the States bordering on the Soviet Union accept the same plan. Though political circles are busy with conjectures as to what the Moscow step means, there can be no harm in agreeing to it, they argue.

It is felt, however, that at the same time Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia, Finland and Rumania should be obliged to sign protocols and the Polish Ministers in the capitals of the border States have been asked to put out feelers as to the attitude of the respective countries.

A bill for the ratification of the Kellogg pact will be submitted to the Sejm soon, and it is hoped the treaty will be ratified before the end of the month.

AFGHAN RISING DWINDLES.

Mohmand Tribe Decides for King—Legation Rescues Completed.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LAHORE, India, Jan. 3.—All the women and children have been safely removed from the foreign legations in Kabul. Even the Russians felt uneasy about the situation in the Afghan capital, for they have taken their women and children northward by means of the ordinary Russo-Afghan Air Service.

No plane will now fly from India until Wednesday, when mail will be ready for collection. King Amanullah has given permission for a plane to land so that the government can keep in touch with the situation nearer the Indian border.

Business letters received here do not indicate what is happening. The Mohmand tribesmen are prepared to stand by the King and the Shinwaris thus find themselves alone in rebellion. As for the civil war within Kabul, the opinion is expressed that the raiders retreated to the mountains as soon as they obtained enough loot. They are now encamped trying to barter or spend what they have got.

There is little doubt that the Shinwaris are dismayed by the Mohmands supporting Amanullah, although the chieftains of the Shinwaris are still obstinate about yielding. The severest part of the Winter has begun and will keep the rebels helpless, while payment of cash to the Mullahs is expected to keep them quiet. Consequently extensive operations are unlikely before Spring.

NEW DELHI, Jan. 3 (AP).—The airplane which was shot down at Kabul was fitted with a new engine and has returned to India.

The Government of India has issued proclamations along the frontier offering substantial rewards for the detention of Sirdar Muhammed Omar Khan, one of the sons of the late Sirdar Muhammed Ayab Khan of the Afghan royal family. He was on parole at Allahabad, but recently disappeared. There are about 1,200 Afghan refugees in India under government surveillance.

H. L. MAY TO GO TO GENEVA.

New Member on Narcotic Control Board Sails Today.

Herbert L. May, whose appointment by the Council of the League of Nations to the newly created Central Board of Narcotic Control was announced three weeks ago, will said for Geneva tonight. In the meanwhile he is at the Hotel Gotham.

The first meeting of the board will be held Jan. 15. Mr. May was unable to say what the program would be, beyond carrying out the work for which the board was created, to fight against the drug evil. The board is composed of seven other members.

DUTCH ART PROVES RICH LONDON FEAST

920 WORKS ARE ON EXHIBIT

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—The opening of the Dutch art exhibition at Burlington House today gave London its richest art feast within living memory. Two years ago a representative collection of Flemish art was held in the same place, but the present show, with its fifty-one Rembrandt paintings, its thirty Frans Halses and its ten Vermeers, is accepted as the most comprehensive exhibition of its kind ever held under one roof.

George Bernard Shaw was one of the earliest visitors at today's private show and he left an hour and a half later, his white-bearded face a picture of joy. Lord Melchett and his wife came early and saw some of their own most treasured possessions hanging on the walls. Sir Austen Chamberlain with Lady Chamberlain and their daughter, Rudyard Kipling and hundreds of other well known personalities were seen wandering through the long galleries.

By 3 o'clock in the afternoon the crowd was so great that Vermeer's exquisite "little girl's head" only just peeped through the mass of furcoated dowagers and top-hatted men standing before it. Across the room was another, but less known Vermeer, "the head of a young girl," which smiled gayly at the spectators who crowded close to the wall to see it. It was one of the pictures loaned by Secretary Andrew W. Mellon from his Pittsburgh home.

So many world-famous masterpieces are on view here—920 works in all—that the London art critics are suffering from a surfeit and the public is calculating how often it can return to Burlington House on future visits.

There were many comments today about the excellent pictures from the royal collections at Windsor Castle and Buckingham Palace. The best of the King's collections were acquired by George III, and if these works are any criterion George III was a "king" of art collectors. One Vermeer, "Lady and Gentleman at the Virginals," and a superb Rembrandt, "The Adoration of the Magi," are rarely exhibited even in London.

The dominant impression today was one of amazement that such a comprehensive collection could have been gathered to make a London art holiday. The generous American contributions were largely a result of Sir Joseph Duveen's efforts in New York and Pittsburgh. None of the New York Metropolitan Museum's Rembrandts have been sent to England, though the museums of many other nations have contributed unsparingly.

ried on certain ships only when specially addressed to those ships to reduce transfer of mails at ports. Important mail gets the benefit of a fast ship if the sender specifies that it be so carried. Mr. Gammie said that only one person in several hundred goes to this trouble.

The most serious loss will be suffered by the Berengaria but the Andania and the Ausonia will lose considerably. The first order assigned to the Andania the mail to Great Britain and Ireland and Belgium, Cape Verde Islands, Czechoslovakia, Danzig, Estonia, Finland, Germany, Hungary, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxemburg, Netherlands, Persia, Poland, Rumania, Russia and South Africa and mail to other countries if specially addressed to the ship. The Ausonia was to carry mail to France, Aden, British India, Uganda, Ceylon, Egypt, Kenya, Palestine, Portugal, Spain, Switzerland and Syria and mail to other countries if specially addressed.

The order of Dec. 31 said of each ship that it would carry mail to Europe, Africa and West Asia if specially addressed. The Andania will stop at Queenstown and Liverpool and the Ausonia at Plymouth and Havre.

American Ships to Be Benefited.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Orders issued today limiting mail to be carried by the Cunard liner Berengaria may be the forerunner of more sweeping changes designed to favor American ships. Warren I. Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster General, who has jurisdiction over foreign mail shipments, said tonight that orders limiting mail to be carried on the Berengaria, Ansonia and Andania were for issuance by the Postoffice in New York and would not be amplified at this time by any announcement here.

Pressed for a reason for the issuance of the mail-limiting orders, he indicated that the proportion of mail carried in foreign ships had far outstripped the volume carried in American vessels and that corrective measures were necessary if American shipping was to obtain the benefits from this source, considered essential for the maintenance of a permanent American merchant marine.

On their last trips, Mr. Glover explained, the Olympic of the White Star Line carried 15,000 sacks of mail and the Leviathan of the United States Lines 4,500 sacks. He threw no light on whether this was the usual condition of the two ships, although indicating that the illustration could be taken as fairly representative of the general situation.

"We may re-route all our European mail business," he added. "Beyond this the department has nothing to say."

He explained that by "re-routing" there might be a distinct shift of the mail to American ships, although the Postoffice Department would use the best means of transportation available.

Denies Board Caused Order.

Mr. Glover denied the orders had resulted from the shipping war between the Cunard Line and the Shipping Board over the traffic between New York and Havana this Winter.

"That doesn't have any bearing on our action," he asserted. "We don't know anything about that. That is the business of the Shipping Board and we don't know anything about it."

The Postoffice Department, he added, had no contracts for carrying the mail in foreign ships and could route it wherever it wished. It was difficult, he said, to estimate how much mail was shipped across the Atlantic, but it came even from Pacific points, such as New Zealand and Australia, passed across the continent and moved out from New York. In the Christmas rush this volume reached 175,000 sacks, whereas in midsummer it might be as low as 25,000 sacks a week. This included first class mail, prints and parcel post.

Shipping Board officials professed ignorance of the Postoffice Department orders and also said there was no connection between them and the shipping war with the Cunard Line.

The President Roosevelt will leave on Saturday for her first trip to Cuba in the service of the American-owned Ward Line in competition with the Cunard liner Caronia. That shipping war has threatened to spread to other foreign lines, with the Shipping Board determined to place additional American ships in the Cuban trade if conditions demand them.

Pan-American Doctors End Session.

HAVANA, Jan. 3 (AP).—The official sessions of the first congress of the Pan-American Medical Association closed today with a final address by Dr. Francisco Maria Fernandez, Cuban Secretary of Sanitation. It was announced that the next meeting would be held in February, 1930, at the National Theatre in Panama City. The doctors were guests at a luncheon today given by Mayor Miguel Mariano Gomez of Havana at the Havana Yacht Club.

FORD PLANT TO BUILD 2-MILE WATER TUNNEL

$2,500,000 Construction, With Billion-Gallon Daily Capacity, to Be Vested in Detroit City.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 3.—A two-mile water tunnel with a capacity of 1,000,000,000 gallons daily will be built by the Ford Motor Company for the purpose of doubling the size of its electric power plant, the City Council was informed today.

While the tunnel will be used exclusively by the company, title to the structure, which will cost $2,500,000 to build, will rest in the city of Detroit. The entire cost will be borne by the Ford Motor Company.

At present the company is using a tunnel of 600,000,000 gallons a day capacity, whose intake is in the River Rouge above the plant. The water, much of which is used to cool machinery, passes out of the plant into the River Rouge at a point some distance below, but the river flows so slowly that some of the heated used water eddies back into the intake. A consequent increase of 18 degrees in temperature has occurred at times, according to company engineers, and continued recirculation has produced a gathering of dirt and other impurities.

When the new 1,000,000,000-gallon tunnel, which will have an inside diameter of fifteen feet, is completed and put into use the Ford Motor Company will be using twice as much city-furnished water as the entire city of Detroit uses. Whereas Detroit's water is filtered, the company's will be raw river water.

GIANT AUTO MERGER ON FOOT IN EUROPE

Belgian Magnate Appears on the Point of Uniting Leading Companies.

TO COMBAT OUR 'INVASION'

Plan Is Patterned on General Motors Corporation, Looking to Mass Production.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 3.—American officials in Europe are closely observing the efforts of J. Marquet, wealthy Belgian and owner of the largest string of de luxe hotels on the Continent, to organize a European General Motors Corporation with which to check the rapid advances being made over here by the American automobile industry.

The concern would be patterned after the General Motors Corporation of the United States, and by the adoption of mass production and other well-known American methods would attempt to prevent American motor cars from gaining the dominant position which many believe they will soon have in the Old World markets.

For three years M. Marquet has been quietly but effectively working toward the realization of his ambitious scheme, and the first news that his plans are beginning to succeed is contained in a report just issued by the Belgian National Bank.

From this and other authoritative sources it now appeaers that M. Marquet and an unnamed group of backers, including strong financial support, have succeeded in gaining virtual control of the Belgian motor car industry through the acquisition of the stock of the Minerva Company, the Fabric Nationale and the Imperia Excelsior, three companies which constitute the bulk of the Belgian industry.

From this basis the Marquet group is then said to have proceeded to gain control of the powerful Mercedes Benz Company, the leading German automobile firm and one of the oldest makers of cars in the world. According to the same informants, M. Marquet is at present engaged in trying to buy out the Citroen and Voidin companies of France and is negotiating for the inclusion within the corporation of several Italian and British companies.

Opposition by Citroen Firm.

The Citroen company alone expects to turn out 85,000 cars this year, but it is understood that M. Marquet has encountered his greatest opposition from this, the biggest of all the European motor car concerns.

The advantages of such a general grouping of the European motor car industry are many and impressive, and M. Marquet is depending on these to accomplish his purpose. It will be recalled that this is not the first attempt by European motor car interests to combine against the American invasion. Headed by the leaders of the Italian industry, a determined effort was made last year to organize a European motor car trust, with the manufacturers of France, Britain, Germany, Italy and Belgium pooling their interests to meet American competition. After many months of secret negotiation the scheme fell through, largely because it lacked a central authority capable of finally bringing the companies into line. In the Marquet scheme a central authority will not be lacking, for if the plan succeeds, the Belgian hotel magnate will himself wield authority by holding the controlling stock, with his chief participants, in the proposed General Motors Corporation.

In the opinion of American experts the situation never was more propitious for the creation of such a European bloc. In the first place, the motor car industry in Europe is more or less in a process of reorganization and consolidation to meet the needs of mass production and severe competition by American manufacturers.

Much Talk of Mergers.

The whole industry is talking of mergers, especially in France, where more than 155 passenger car and truck manufacturing companies can be counted in a country of but 40,000,000 inhabitants.

Thus, it is declared, the atmosphere is ripe for the General Motors idea. The Marquet group, it is said, would have been unable to progress as far as it has but for this favorable atmosphere.

It is said to be the intention of the Marquet group to start off with an annual production of around 125,000 cars. While this may appear modest, judged by American figures, the fact must not be lost sight of that the successful operation of the projected scheme would be certain to attract other companies, resulting in a short time in a corporation with a total annual production of several hundred thousand cars.

The American industry disposed of about 175,000 cars and trucks in European markets in 1928.

COOLIDGE HAILS MONCADA.

By Tropical Radio to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 3.—President Moncada is receiving congratulatory telegrams from all parts of the world.

Among them is one from President Coolidge extending felicitations to President Moncada and wishing him a prosperous administration.

SAN JUAN DEL SUR, Nicaragua, Jan. 3 (AP).—To Dr. Rodolfo Espinoza, a prominent Liberal, has been offered the Foreign Affairs portfolio in the new Moncada Government, it is learned here.

Dr. Espinoza resides at present in Guatemala City, Guatemala.

He held a similar place in the cabinet of Dr. Juan B. Sacasa during the Liberal leader's Puerto Cabezas Government.

CUBAN SUGAR ESTIMATE.

Official Places It at 4,300,000 Tons This Year.

HAVANA, Jan. 3 (AP).—That the new Cuban sugar crop will not exceed 4,600,000 tons was the belief expressed today by Dr. Juan Machado Mena, executive secretary of the Cuban National Sugar Commission.

"There is every reason to believe Cuba's present sugar crop will not exceed 4,600,000 tons," he said. "Reports from growers indicate that the grinding will result in this output."

Cuba's grinding season opened Jan. 1 under a Presidential decree which lifted all restrictions on the crop and left the marketing of Cuban sugar to the growers and grinders.

The authorities in Wallington and East Rutherford are considering similar action.

REPORTS A SLUMP IN GERMAN TRADE

Our Commercial Attache in Berlin Says the Industrial Decline Is Widespread.

REVIEWS PAST SIX MONTHS

Allport, However, Declares Trade Between United States and Germany Is Increasing.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—A pessimistic view of general economic conditions in Germany has been given to the Department of Commerce in a report from Fayette W. Allport, its Commercial Attaché in Berlin.

The depression which normally occurs in Germany at the close of the year, he declared, is more severe this year than last, as a "result of the cumulative effect of declining activity during the past six months."

The five weeks' shut-down in the steel industry, which came to an end early in December," the report declares, "caused serious dislocation in the industries using iron and steel as raw materials, and also in the coal and coke trades, and has contributed materially to the unsatisfactory character of general business conditions at the present time.

"The increase in unemployment has been more rapid than usual at this season. A few industries, however, notably chemicals and paper, have been able to maintain production and sales, and the artificial silk industry is also well occupied, but conditions in other textile branches are unsatisfactory.

Money Market Is Easier.

"The restricted credit needs of German industry and the increasing supply of foreign short term money have caused continued ease in the money market. The Federal Government has been the leading borrower in the short term market, having 280,000,000 in marks maturities to meet by Jan. 1.

"Coal production in the Ruhr during October reached 1,300,000 metric tons, which was well above the September output, but in November production per day fell to an average of 363,000 tons, as against 377,000 tons in October, reflecting the effects of the steel lockout in that district.

"Total German coal exports during the first ten months of 1928 amounted to 19,400,000 metric tons, as compared with 23,100,000 metric tons in the corresponding period of last year. Imports rose to 6,000,000 tons, as compared with 4,300,000 tons in last year's period. From Nov. 1 to Dec. 1 the number of recipients of unemployment relief jumped from 671,000 to 1,030,000 and the figure for the latter date was 70 per cent above that of 604,000 for Dec. 1, 1927."

Mr. Allport, however, reports a steadily expanding trade between the United States and Germany, stating that both imports from the United States and exports to this market rose during the first nine months of 1928 compared with corresponding periods in 1927 and 1926.

From January to September, 1928, Germany imported American products having a value of $382,917,672, compared with $342,621,626 in 1927 and $254,169,486 in 1926.

During the same period Germany sold to the United States products valued at $146,100,822, as compared with $133,626,842 and $134,068,244 during the corresponding periods of 1927 and 1926.

Berlin Press Lauds Allport View.

BERLIN, Jan. 3 (AP).—Under heavy type captions the Berlin newspapers today published Washington dispatches that Commercial Attaché Allport, in his report to the Department of Commerce on the economic situation in Germany for the second semester of 1928, arrived at conclusions materially different from those made by S. Parker Gilbert, Agent General for Reparations.

The newspapers expressed great satisfaction at Mr. Allport's dwelling upon business depression, labor disputes, unemployment and other economic ills from which Germany is suffering. At the same time they complain that only the German papers in the United States pay any attention to Mr. Allport's views, which they declare are a salutary offset to Mr. Gilbert's "unjustifiable optimism."

SAY TROTSKY IS NOT ILL.

Soviet Authorities Also Deny That He Is to Be Transferred.

MOSCOW, Jan. 3 (AP).—Rumors that Leon Trotsky was sick and that he was to be transferred from Alma Ata to a health resort were denied by the authorities today as well as by persons who recently returned from Alma Ata, where they saw the former head of the Red armies personally.

These travelers said that Trotsky was in good health and was devoting much of his time to writing. He was also hunting in his spare hours.

On Jan. 1, The Associated Press says, the Communist newspaper Volkswille in Berlin published a letter purporting to have been written by M. Trotsky's wife saying that she, her husband and her son were suffering from malaria and cold.

Mother Concepcion Ill In Prison.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 3 (AP).—The Rev. Mother Concepcion, the nun sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment in connection with the assassination of General Alvaro Obregon, is seriously ill at the penitentiary here, it was said today. She is suffering from a lung ailment and a recurrence of an old trouble with one of her feet, occasioned in a fall years ago. The Universal Grafico says gangrene has developed in the injured foot, and the member itself is threatened. In view of the illness she has been moved from the floorless cell in which she was quartered to a more comfortable one.

GEN. BOOTH SHOCKED HEARING OF COUNCIL

"Rather Rough on Me," Is Army Leader's Comment as Family Tells of Conference.

EVANGELINE MEETS NIECE

They Have First Talk Since Former's Arrival—Medical Certificates on Bramwell's Health to Be Issued.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—General Bramwell Booth was considered to be sufficiently improved in health to be informed that the High Council of the Salvation Army would meet on Tuesday to discuss his position as head of the Army. The news came to him as a great shock and he passed a restless night as a result.

An official statement issued at Salvation Army headquarters tonight says his doctors, in view of the further progress shown by the General, thought he was strong enough to be informed of the calling of the High Council without too grave a risk being incurred. The statement proceeds:

"Mrs. Booth and his eldest daughter, Commissioner Catherine, therefore informed the General, although entering as little as possible into details, The General's first thought was for the Salvation Army. He recognized the grave import of this action. He said:

"'I have loved the Army. I have done my best for our people'.

"After some questions and reflection he added:

"'Whatever other people may think about the government of the Army, they must feel this is rather rough on me.'

"Naturally the news came as a great shock and the General passed a somewhat restless night, although his general condition remains hopeful."

American Break Denied.

Alarmist reports were current today that unless the High Council's decision meet with the wishes of the American delegates, there will be a breakaway on the part of the American section of the Army. It is said that the American branch of the Army has long been so restless under the present arrangements that, but for the tact and forbearance of the General, it might have declared its independence, asking for no leadership but that of its present leader, Commander Evangeline Booth.

These apprehensions, however, are not shared by any one in Army administrative circles here. Colonel Samuel Tucker, who favors continuance of the present régime, says: "The Army in the United States and the world over will accept the decision of the High Council and will be loyal to the international spirit of the Army."

The suggestion of a break also is discounted by an officer from America. "There is not even a remote possibility of secession," he said. No section of the Army is keener on the international idea than that in the United States. They regard it as the Army's greatest asset."

Today, for the first time since her arrival in England a week ago, Commander Evangeline Booth met her niece, Commissioner Catherine Booth, daughter of General Booth. Catherine had previously excused herself from meeting her aunt, but today, it is understood, they spent most of the morning in a frank discussion of the situation, with an earnest desire to reach a better understanding.

News Was Told Gently.

LONDON, Jan. 3 (AP).—Commander Evangeline Booth remained at the Army headquarters until a late hour tonight engaged in further conferences with Army leaders, to whom she is explaining her program for changes within the organization.

Despite the care with which the wife and daughter passed the word of the High Council meeting to General Booth, the old man, lying in his lonely cottage on the Suffolk coast, immediately realized the import of the information. He suddenly found himself faced with the probability of removal by the councillors, many of whom he himself raised to positions of authority.

It was said that the 72-year-old leader would naturally consider the whole work of his life was threatened. He has been an active Salvationist since, at the age of 18, he began his organization work under the tutelage of his father, General William Booth, who founded the movement. He became chief of staff at the age of 24, organizing the outposts of the army until he succeeded his father as Commander-in-Chief.

He also administered the work of the vast organization and retained for himself a large part of these duties when he became leader. This latter fact is the foundation of one of the chief complaints of the reform section, which declares that the burden has become too great for any one man to carry.

Medical certificates giving authoritative information on the condition of General Booth's health, will be available at the meeting of the high council at Sunbury-on-Thames next Tuesday, International headquarters of the army announced today.

There is a growing demand in Salvation Army circles for fuller information about the Commander-in-Chief. Only the chancellor of the army's exchequer and the immediate members of his family know just what his condition is.

A high official of the international headquarters declared that the chancellor, who goes frequently to Southwold to obtain the General's signature to documents, had reported that the leader is mentally as capable as ever.

Lieut. Col. Charles Mackenzie, formerly of Boston and now commanding the Salvation Army in Eastern India, arrived with five other delegates from India at Plymouth today. The party included Colonel Trounce, who is woman commander of the Southern India territory. The party was met at the docks by Commissioner Gifford, one of the delegates who accompanied Evangeline Booth from America.

CATHEDRAL CLERIC OUSTED BY MANNING

LINKED TO DEAN'S LEAVING

Question of the Right to Discharge Clergyman Said to Have Caused Robbins's Resignation.

The Rev. Joseph B. Bernardin has been dismissed by Bishop William T. Manning as a member of the staff of clergymen of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. His dismissal followed by a few days his resigning by request as a teacher in the choir school of the cathedral, which is within the cathedral close. The resignation had been asked for by the Rev. William Dudley F. Hughes, headmaster of the choir school, in which there are forty boys.

Mr. Bernardin's resignation had been requested because of "insubordination" or "disobedience," it was said last evening by one close to the situation. Mr. Hughes could not be reached because he was on a steamer on his way back from Newport, R. I.

Mr. Bernardin is on his way back from Kansas City visiting his parents. It is expected he will return to the city, however, as he is taking a post-graduate course at Union Theological Seminary.

The Bernardin episode is said to be the matter that brought to a climax the "differences of opinion" between Bishop Manning and the Very Rev. Howard Chandler Robbins, which caused Dean Robbins to offer his resignation.

It is believed that "the fundamental difference of opinion" between Dean Robbins and the Bishop, which was mentioned in the Dean's letter of resignation, was as to whether the Bishop or the Dean had the right to dismiss a clergyman of the cathedral staff.

Bishop Manning is still ill of influenza. It was said at his home last evening that he was better, however, but that there was no statement regarding the Robbins resignation. At the home of Dean Robbins, it was said that Dr. Robbins would continue to maintain complete silence pending the special meeting of the Board of Trustees that has been called to act on his resignation next Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Bernardin has been a teacher at the choir school since September, 1927. He has been on the cathedral staff since last September. He is a graduate of the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass. His membership is in the Diocese of Western Missouri.

The choir school is a regular preparatory school, and is for the education and training of the boys who sing in the cathedral choir.

Now that the Rev. Dr. W. Russell Bowie, rector of Grace Protestant Episcopal Church, has declined his election as Bishop Coadjutor of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania it is thought that Dean Robbins may be elected to this office. Dr. Robbins had the second highest vote at the special convention in Philadelphia of a fortnight ago at which Dr. Bowie was elected.

BROKER ASKS ANNULMENT.

Percy Healy Calls Wife's Divorce Invalid—She Seeks Alimony.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 3.—J. M. Bernardin of 42 Janssen Place, father of the Rev. Joseph B. Bernardin, said tonight that his son had left Kansas City for New York on an 11 o'clock train, and knew nothing at that time about having been dismissed from the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

Supreme Court Justice Churchill reserved decision yesterday on the motion of Mrs. Edith M. B. Healy for $1,000 a month alimony and $5,000 counsel fees, pending trial of a suit for the annulment of their marriage brought against her by Percy Healy, special partner in Dominick & Dominick, brokers. Mr. Healy maintains that his wife, nineteen years his junior, was already married when their marriage took place last August and that a Reno divorce from her first husband is of no effect in this State.

Mrs. Healy's counsel, Colonel William Hayward, told Justice Churchill that Mr. Healy knew the fact of his client's marriage to a man named Belpusi and of the Nevada divorce. The broker had maintained the defendant in expensive style. Colonel Hayward said, then tired of his bride and is now trying to get rid of her. The attorney denied the existence of an agreement for payment of $250 a month which James E. Duross, the broker's counsel, said had been offered to Mrs. Healy.

"If this was a marriage," Colonel Hayward told the Court, "it is still a marriage. If not, then Healy and his then lawyer led this girl to believe her second marriage was valid."

The broker charges that his wife, for whom he has now rented a $100 a month furnished apartment, was never divorced from Belpusi, as the first husband was never served in the divorce, never appeared and never consented to the decree.

CITY CLUB ELECTS SMITH A MEMBER

Extols His Record as Governor—He Accepts, Pledging Aid to Further Its Policies.

Announcement was made yesterday by the City Club it had elected Alfred E. Smith an honorary member upon his retirement as Governor. This action followed the precedent set by the club in 1910 when it elected Charles E. Hughes to honorary memership upon his retirement as Governor and his designation as a Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

The Board of Trustees of the club in electing Mr. Smith to honorary membership adopted the following resolution:

Resolved, that the City Club of New York expresses to Governor Alfred E. Smith on his retiring from the Governorship, its great appreciation of his services to the State of New York.

During his four terms as Governor, there has been placed on the statute books a mass of progressive legislation. The status of women and children in industry has been advanced; greatly increased and needed appropriations have been made to the State educational system; our State hospitals and other institutions after years of neglect have been or are in the process of reconstruction; our State park system has been extended; the finances of the State through the adoption of the Executive Budget have been put in order and the whole structure of the State Government has been reorganized.

These are great achievements for which Alfred E. Smith deserves the everlasting appreciation of the citizens of New York.

The City Club hereby expresses to him the thanks of its officers, trustees and members for his great service to the State and extends to him an election as an honorary member of the club.

Governor Smith in accepting election wrote Richard S. Childs, president of the club, as follows:

"I received your letter telling me of the gracious action of the board of trustees of the City Club of New York in the adoption of resolutions. It is naturally gratifying to know that it is felt that I did my very best in furtherance of my administrative policies and that my action merits the approval of the club.

"The fact that you extend to me the election of an honorary membership is also deeply appreciated and I want to say that I purpose taking the greatest interest in the club and in furthering its policies in every possible way."

AUTO LICENSES INCREASE.

Number Up to Jan. 1 Was 405,408, as Compared With 380,000 Year Ago

Commissioner Charles A. Harnett of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, 220 West Fortieth Street, yesterday made public figures showing that the number of motor vehicles registered in the metropolitan district in 1928 exceeded 1927 figures by 25,000.

The number of motor vehicles licensed up to Jan. 1, 1929, was 405,408, as compared with 380,000 in 1927. This total includes 294,112 passenger cars, 80,296 commercial vehicles, 20,000 omnibuses, 6,000 dealers' cars and 5,000 trailers. The total 1928 registration was approximately 1,000,000 for the district, half of the total for the entire State. This year the commissioner looks for a substantial addition to that number.

Commissioner Harnett also pointed out that motorists were far more tardy in their applications this year than ever before. On the last day, 80,000 licenses were issued at the main office and branches throughout the district. In 1927 this figure was 40,000.

During 1928 the local offices examined 278,000 new applicants for driver's licenses. Of that number approximately 50 per cent failed in road tests. The year before the number of applicants was 256,000, with the same percentage of failures.

NAMES J. F. MURRAY FOR PORT AUTHORITY

Gov. Roosevelt Also Appoints Gay H. Brown of Utica a Supreme Court Justice.

TREMAINE REAPPOINTS FOUR

G. B. Lansing, Abraham L. Doris and F. Stanley Griffin Remain Deputy Controllers.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 3.—Governor Roosevelt this afternoon announced two appointments, which will go to the Senate, when it reconvenes on Monday. State Controller Morris S. Tremaine, who was also busy in organizing his office, reappointed four assistants.

The Governor named John F. Murray of 169 Rugby Road, Brooklyn, to fill the vacancy on the Port of New York Authority caused by the death of Herbert K. Twitchell of Brooklyn. Mr. Murray is executive vice president of Thomas E. Murray, Inc., consulting engineers, of 55 Duane Street, New York City, and is vice president of the Metropolitan Engineering Company, the Murray Radiator Company and the Murray Conduit Systems.

Mr. Murray, when confirmed by the Senate, will fill a post once held by former Governor Smith and which, it was reported some weeks ago, he might consent to take again. Governor Roosevelt said today, however, that his predecessor in office was one of those to recommend Mr. Murray.

The other nomination made by Governor Roosevelt was that of Gay H. Brown of Utica as Supreme Court Justice for the Fifth Judicial District. He has been a foremost trial lawyer in the district and is a former president of the Bar Association of Oneida County. He is president of the Democratic Club of Oneida County and last Fall was the defeated candidate for the State Senate in that district.

Controller Tremaine reappointed as Deputies Gerrit E. Lansing of Buffalo, Abraham L. Doris of Brooklyn and F. Stanley Griffin of Clinton. He also reappointed as secretary Harold A. Vivian of New York City.

The officers and advisory committee of the State Conference of Mayors, and other municipal officials, representing cities and first-class villages, sent to the Governor and the Legislature today their legislative recommendations for the coming session. These include endorsement of State development of hydro-electric power and the grant to municipalities of the right to construct and operate any public utility of which the product or service is to be supplied to the municipality or its inhabitants.

The recommendations also call for a committee to study the permanent registration of voters, the grant to the cities of a fair share of the revenues of a possible gasoline tax, a revision of the traffic law, amendments to the education law, including permission to a city administration to have a representative at budget meetings of the Board of Education, further home rule legislation and a change in the city planning law to shorten the terms of members of city planning boards.

PLANNED MAYOR'S MANSION.

Rodman Wanamaker Suggested It, but Hylan Declined, He Says.

The late Rodman Wanamaker four years ago planned to build a $2,000,000 mansion to house the Mayor of New York. He did not do so because Mayor John F. Hylan, at that time the Chief Executive of the city, told him that he wouldn't live in it.

Former Mayor Hylan said last night that Mr. Wanamaker suggested the matter to him—and had even gone so far as to have the site of the proposed mansion planned—but he had replied that as far as he was concerned it would never house the Mayor.

Mr. Hylan said that he considered the idea as fine, but he felt that he could not leave his own home, go to the mansion for his tenure of office and then move back home. When he moved, he said last night, he wanted it to be to his own establishment. So the matter was dropped.

The former Mayor also said that after he had given his decision to Mr. Wanamaker the latter asked what he could do for the city. Mayor Hylan suggested that he help some of the younger city employes along and further suggested the name of Grover Whalen. Shortly after that Mr. Whalen entered the Wanamaker organization.

JAILED FOR PEN THREATS.

Postal Clerk Gets Six Months for Annoying Public Officials.

A man who had been deluging public officials with threatening letters for a year, Abraham Rosenberg, 27 years old, of 622 Neptune Avenue, Coney Island, a clerk in the main postoffice at Thirty-third Street and Eighth Avenue, pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct in Jefferson Market Court yesterday, admitted the authorship of the letters and was sentenced to six months in the workhouse by Magistrate Bushel.

Rosenberg's sister, Rebecca, and his brother-in-law, Warner Feddern, a commercial artist of 48 Ninth Avenue, were both arrested for the offense some time ago but were acquitted, Feddern's name was signed to most of the letters.

A recent recurrence of the letters finally led postoffice inspectors to Rosenberg's home, where they found 1,200 threatening letters, together with rubber stamps and other paraphernalia.

EXPLAINS THE FEE CASE INVOLVING UNTERMYER

Louis Marshall Reviews Steps in Litigation Leading to Supreme Court Decision.

Explaining that the illness of Samuel Untermyer prevented his taking part in business just now, Louis Marshall made this statement yesterday with regard to the decision rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States in the action brought against A. Leo Weil, which Mr. Marshall argued before the court:

"Mr. Untermyer represented the claims of unsecured creditors of Josiah V. Thompson of Uniontown, Pa., amounting to about $15,000,000 and constituting nearly 95 per cent of all of the claims of general creditors. Thompson's property was covered by mortgages and other liens. In the interests of the general creditors it became necessary to protect the property from the sacrifice which would have followed forced sales.

"To accomplish that result Mr. Untermyer retained Weil to conduct bankruptcy proceedings and it was agreed that Mr. Untermyer, being the person most conversant with the complicated affairs of the estate, was to cooperate with Weil in performing the legal services necessary to carry through the bankruptcy proceedings and to conserve the estate for the benefit of the creditors. It was further agreed that the fees that were eventually to be allowed to Weil by the court for the services rendered were to be divided upon such basis as Mr. Untermyer should consider just and equitable.

"In consequence of this agreement the assets of the bankrupt were conserved and distributed for the benefit of the creditors, the services covering several years and requiring constant attention on the part of Mr. Untermyer and his assistants. The court allowed $142,000, which were received by Weil for the services thus rendered, and Mr. Untermyer decided that Weil was to retain 60 per cent of this amount and that his share was to be 40 per cent. Weil declined to carry out his contract, and when sued asserted that the agreement was illegal.

"The case was tried before Allen Wardwell of the firm of Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Gardiner & Reed, as referee. He found all of the facts in accordance with Mr. Untermyer's contention and decided that the contract was valid and legal. His decision was confirmed by Judge Henry W. Goddard of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York and later was unanimously sustained by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals consisting of Judges Manton, Learned Hand and Swan, who likewise decided that the arrangement was in all respects legal."

FULLER SPURNS BOOK OF SACCO LETTERS

Retiring Governor Knocks From Radical's Hand Volume Given as He Leaves Office.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 3.—The inauguration of Governor Allen was over, and his predecessor, Alvan T. Fuller, walked down the State House steps this noon, again a private citizen, only to meet a final gesture from the Sacco-Vanzetti supporters, who harassed him almost beyond endurance during a hectic Summer two years ago when radicals the world over fought to save Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted murderers, from execution.

Out of the crowd that saw the Governor leave the State House stepped Gardner Jackson, leader of the forces that fought to save the pair from the chair. He held a copy of a book entitled, "The Letters of Sacco and Vanzetti," but Mr. Fuller, intent only on the smiling members of his family waiting for him at the gate, failed to notice Jackson until the young radical thrust the book toward him.

The former Governor threw a quick glance at Jackson, then at the book and the smile left his face. With an exclamation of contempt he struck the book from Jackson's grasp, and the latter slipped quickly into the crowd, which apparently failed to interpret the little scene.

"Millions of people throughout the world, Mr. Fuller, have come to know your name. They do not know you intimately as we do. They know you only by hearsay. But they will watch all your acts closely for the rest of your life, whether or not you are ever again in official position; * * * and the mention of your name will always call to mind that further admonition of the inward voices of Socrates: 'Now you depart in innocence, a sufferer and not a doer of evil; a victim not of the laws but of men.'

"Victims, not of the laws 'but of men,' were our two friends and men in the highest positions.

"GARDNER JACKSON."

Will Discuss Our Foreign Relations.

"Our International Relations," including the Pact of Paris, the question of preparedness and disarmament and the Hoover tour, will be the topic tomorrow of the first of seven nonpartisan Saturday discussions to be held at the National Republican Club at 54 West Fortieth Street. The speakers will be Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, Rear Admiral Robert Edward Coontz, retired; Professor James T. Shotwell and Professor William Starr Myers.

steamship companies, taxicabs, automobiles, boots and shoes, and so forth."

Mr. Banham then explained that no permanent organization had been effected. He suggested that twelve men be appointed as a committee of plan and scope. A motion to that effect was carried and the chairman was authorized to increase the membership of the committee to fourteen. Mr. Banham said that it would not be "just another committee to meet and pass resolutions." He also suggested that the committee should map out a program which would duplicate no work of existing traffic committees or agencies employed by the city.

"This movement is going to be entirely voluntary," said Mr. Banham. "We are just a small sample of the men who have caused this street traffic problem, and if we don't supply the solution somebody else will, and it may be in the form of a very restrictive ordinance which the city can easily pass."

Mr. Straus proposed that trade unions, particularly those having to do with trucking and building, be invited to serve on the committee.

Mr. Eastman suggested that the Committee on Plan and Scope ascertain what similar committees had done in the Loop District of Chicago and in Los Angeles. Mr. Banham said the committee had invited suggestions from twenty other large American cities, also from traffic experts in Paris, London, Berlin and other large European cities.

"Of course, we are one of the bad boys of New York," said James S. McCulloh, president of the New York Telephone Company. "We tear up the streets. We have to tear them up to lay conduits. Of course, we lay a great many of them at night. We are heartily in favor of this movement, but we would suggest that it be thoroughly non-partisan. We will do what we can to further the movement and to cooperate in every way."

Representatives of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce and the Bronx Chamber of Commerce pledged their cooperation.

EMPLOYERS REJECT CLOAK UNION PLANS

Industrial Council Asserts That Proposals Would Increase Disorganization.

BALKS AT WAGE INCREASE

Agrees With Workers' Charge That Sweat Shops Again Menace Industry Here.

Granting of the demands of the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union for modification of the agreement which expires on June 1 would "increase the disorganization of the cloak and suit industry," according to the Industrial Council of Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers, Inc., which rejected yesterday the proposed terms and made counter-demands for embodiment in the new contract.

"We agree with you that the sweat-shop system has again secured a foothold upon our industry," the employers concluded. "This deplorable condition will be intensified unless the officials of the union, profiting by costly experience, will view the industry's problems in a broader light."

The manufacturers made their formal reply to the union demands at a meeting at the Hotel Pennsylvania with a committee of the union headed by President Benjamin Schlesinger. I. Grossman, president o. the manufacturers' association, signed the letter which answered the union's demands.

Modification of the agreement as suggested by the union, Mr. Grossman said, would place the manufacturers with large shops of their own, known as inside manufacturers, at "a further and hopeless disadvantage in meeting the competition of the less responsible factors in the industry."

Objects to Pay Rise Demand.

Mr. Grossman said the union's complaint concerning reduction in the earning power of the workers was unfounded so far as his members were concerned. To increase the minimum wage scales $5, he said, would make it increasingly difficult for the members of his association to remain with the organized "inside shop" manufacturers, and this would react against the union, because a reduction in the number of "inside shops" would augment the army of the workers employed by the outside group.

"We maintain that the piecework system, duly authorized and hence under formal control, would vastly improve the condition of the workers in those shops which inspire your complaint," declared Mr. Grossman.

Although the union agreement calls for payment by the week, the union complained that hundreds of shops have sprung up in which piecework is the prevailing system.

Replying to the union demand for the establishment of a joint control board under the supervision of the impartial chairman, the manufacturers pointed out that the present agreement provides for such a joint committee, but it has not been made effective because of "the internal weakness of the union."

Dealing with the request for the re-establishment of the unemployment insurance fund, which was suspended when the union negotiated the present agreement, the employers said that while numerically they constituted the smallest group of the industry they contributed the greatest per capita share toward the nearly $3,000,000 paid into the fund. While their members and workers gave more than $1,000,000 to the fund, said Mr. Grossman, "our workers received an insignificant fraction of the unemployment benefit."

Sees New York at Disadvantage.

Mr. Grossman said the inside manufacturers in New York were at a disadvantage in competing with other cloak centres because the forty-hour week is established in the local market "while those whose competition we must meet work under any conditions they themselves choose to inaugurate."

The manufacturers have had to rely on the indulgence of union officials to operate on Saturday in the peak periods of an industry which is highly seasonal, it was said, and demand was made for the right to operate Saturday mornings for at least three months each season.

Mr. Schlesinger, in reply to the manufacturers, said he did not agree with most of the conclusions reached by them but was pleased to learn that both sides were in agreement that the sweat-shop system again menaces the industry and he promised the cooperation of the union in the attempt to eliminate sweat shops.

An adjournment was taken to organize smaller conference committees which will meet soon.

PARIS STATION DAMAGED.

Famous Bois de Boulogne Structure Hit by Dynamite Blast.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 3.—The handsome Bois re Boulogne Railway station, where Woodrow Wilson was received in Paris and which is used only by visiting heads of State and royalty, was seriously damaged today by an explosion of an overcharge of dynamite used in demolishing the old fortifications near by.

The windows of the station and those in many buildings around were shattered, the façade damaged and a large section of the roof destroyed by showers of masonry from the explosion.

One woman was slightly hurt and taken to a hospital.

The foreman directing the blasting took to flight and is being sought by the police.

WHITING HAILS 1928 FOR FEATS IN FLYING

He Says Progress in Year Exceeded That in 25 Years Since Kitty Hawk Flight.

CITES 6,900 AIRWAY MILES

And 35,000 Passengers on Regular Schedules—Commerce Department to Extend Research.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—A forecast that the end of another year promises to see commercial aeronautics established as an integral part of American industry and transportation was made today by Secretary of Commerce Whiting in reviewing the accomplishments of 1928. He said the progress of air transportation had exceeded the advancement made previously in the entire twenty-five year period since Orville Wright made the first successful flight at Kitty Hawk, N. C.

"Commercial aeronautics in the United States," said Mr. Whiting, "has been definitely removed from the realm of experimentation and established as a fact.

"Perhaps we can best visualize the present status of the industry from available statistics, which show authorizations granted to 5,200 pilots with 10,000 student pilots in training; airports of all classes numbering 1,600; 5,700 planes operating; 45,500 miles flown daily; 35,000 passengers carried in airways operations on regular schedule during the year just closed; air mail averaging about 470,000 pounds a month; 6,900 miles of improved airways in operation with an additional 4,600 miles proposed for the near future; production of aeronautical equipment in large volume and expected to double the output of 1927 valued at $21,000,000.

"From this we may reasonably believe that the progress of air transportation during the present year will be in advance of that during the twenty-five-year period since Orville Wright made the first successful flight in a heavier than air, motor-driven plane at Kitty Hawk, N. C.

To Enlarge Aeronautics Program.

"Recognizing this trend, the Department of Commerce, with the confidence and cooperation of the industry, has planned an enlarged program for the early months of 1929 in the promotion and regulation of civil aeronautics.

"At this point I might say that the accomplishments of the aeronautics branch has far exceeded the most sanguine expectations. Those connected with the industry have generously credited the regulations work of the department for the organized way in which civil aeronautics have developed within the past two years.

"The aeronautics work of the Bureau of Standards, which heretofore has been devoted largely to perfecting equipment for the military branches of the government, is now primarily concerned with the commercial aspects of flying.

"The program of work planned for the early months of 1929 contemplates intensive work on the development of radio in air navigation, improvement of lighting equipment for landing fields, reduction of noise in the cabins of planes to add comfort for the passengers, development of more efficient power plants and general stability in planes. Certain other studies will be undertaken.

New Routes to Latin America.

The use of airplanes is rapidly being developed as a modern means of transportation in Central and South America, the Secretary also said. In the first eight months of 1928 the United States exported ninety-nine airplanes with a value of $1,042,676. This is an increase of 225 per cent over that of the same period of 1927. It has been found that the export of airplanes to South America is stimulated by practical demonstrations of our products, he added.

"Since Oct. 28, 1927, the Pan American Airways have operated a daily mail and passenger service from Key West, Fla., to Havana, Cuba," the Secretary said. "The success of this service has been so apparent that the Postoffice Department has contracted with this same company for the operation of mail services between Miami and Nassau, Miami and San Juan, Porto Rico, and Miami to Cristobal, C. Z.

"The service from Miami to Nassau started Jan. 2, 1929. The air mail routes between Miami and San Domingo and Miami and Cristobal will start their services on Jan. 9 and 11, respectively. This will expedite the mail service between North and South America considerably. It is contemplated to operate in the near future a passenger and mail service between Panama and several South American countries. This service will operate along the west coast of South America."

REAPPORTIONMENT NEAR.

Snell Tells Coolidge That Bill Will Be Passed This Session.

Special to The New York Times.

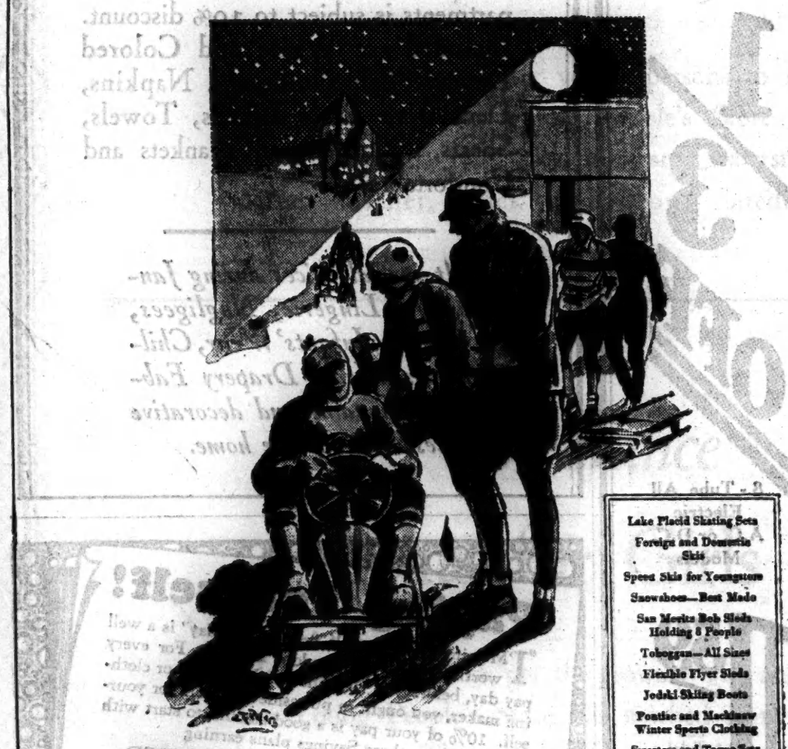
WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Chairman Snell of the House Rules Committee told President Coolidge today that a reapportionment bill would be passed at the present session of Congress. House leaders later took steps to have the measure brought from the census committee. Mr. Tilson asserted that unless enough members of the committee can be found to form a quorum and act on the bill, the Sergeant-at-Arms would be instructed to round them up. No report was made before Christmas because several of the members were sick.

Chairman Fenn of the Census Committee has prepared a call to the committee to meet tomorrow morning, or Monday, if a quorum is not found tomorrow, for the purpose of reporting his bill, which would provide a reapportionment of the House on the basis of the 1930 census.

Upstate Coroner and Niece Missing.

ONEIDA, N. Y., Jan. 3 (AP).—Dr. William T. Tanner of this city, Madison County Coroner, missing since last Friday and believed to have been accompanied by his 28-year old niece, Mrs. Loretta S. Smith, and her young son, is thought by Captain Stephen McGrath, head of Troop D, State police, to be headed for Porto Rico or Cuba.

Dr. Tanner served in Porto Rico as an army surgeon in the Spanish-American War. No warrants have been sworn out and Mrs. Tanner declares that she will do nothing about the case if her husband is found. Mr. Smith is silent as to his plans.



When the first snow falls

The regular "snow-birds" will be out with their snowshoes, skis, coasters and possibly skates, for the first run of the season.

For the new recruits—those who have never realized the fun and health to be found in snow sports—we extend an invitation to come here for clothes and equipment for every winter sport.

A hilly golf course, knee-deep in white, is a wonderful spot for a snow-sport party. The organizing and running of such parties is becoming one of the smart things to do—and we have all the smart things to do it with.

For anything you require for any winter sport, come and use the expert knowledge of our staff.

MRS. ARNOLD NAMED A DEAN AT N. Y. U.

Will Be Adviser to 2,000 Girls at the Washington Square College.

FOUR YEARS ON FACULTY

Graduated From Cornell in 1918—J. H. Prime Elected Director of University Heights School.

The appointment of Mrs. Dorothy McSparran Arnold to an assistant deanship of Washington Square College of New York University was announced yesterday by the executive committee of the university through Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown. Mrs. Arnold's appointment takes effect immediately and gives the university a woman dean for the second time in its history.

This promotion of Mrs. Arnold marks the culmination of a campaign started several years ago by former Dean John R. Turner, now president of the University of Virginia, and Dean James B. Munn, at that time assistant dean, for a dean of women. Among Dean Arnold's functions in this capacity is to continue her former office of adviser to women students of Washington Square College.

Speaking on the appointment, Dean Munn said: "It is impossible successfully to administer to the wants of women of the university without having an administrative dean to care for their special problems. We have approximately 2,000 co-eds in the college now and Mrs. Arnold will continue, as in the past, to be their chief adviser."

Friends of Mrs. Arnold throughout the university call the promotion a reward for her effort as adviser to women. Dean Arnold entered the university as an instructor in English in June, 1924, continuing in this capacity until May, 1926, when she was promoted to assistant professor.

Mrs. Arnold received the degree of A. B. from Cornell in 1918, at which institution she earned the Phi Beta Kappa key. Before she came to New York University she served on the faculties of the University of Illinois, Minnesota, Bryn Mawr College and the Iowa State Teachers College. She also spent some time at Yale and the University of Pennsylvania doing graduate work.

The appointment of Mrs. Arnold at the age of 32 to this position draws attention to the youth of the Washington Square College's administrative officers, whose composite ages are said to be one of the youngest in the country. Dean Munn is 38, Associate Dean Rufus D. Smith is 44 and Assistant Dean Alexander Baltzly is 36.

Two other appointments were also announced, John H. Prime, assistant secretary of the School of Commerce, being named director of the University Heights division of this school, and Millo Hellman was named Professor of Orthodontia in the College of Dentistry.

MRS. DOROTHY McS. ARNOLD,

$100,000 LEPER FUND GIFT.

Ellis L. Phillips Donates to Leonard Wood Memorial for Research.

Ellis L. Phillips, president of the Long Island Lighting Company, has donated $100,000 to the Leonard Wood Memorial for the Eradication of Leprosy of 1 Madison Avenue, it was made known last night by General James G. Harbord, president of the board of director of the memorial. General Harbord announced that Mr. Phillips previously gave $10,000 to the fund.

The campaign was started by the late General Wood, the total amount sought being $2,000,000. Mr. Phillips's contribution is the start of the second million, General Harbord said.

Dr. Wade, the American leprologist at Culiol, has reported to General Harbord that there was a greater advance in the past year in actual results obtained in the treatment of lepers than in any previous year. Work has been started on the building of a station at Cebu, Philippine Islands. Part of General Wood's program was the establishment of a number of stations for the treatment of mild cases. The first of these is the Cebu unit.

BRONX FIGHTS LEVY FOR QUEENS SEWERS

Chamber Says Apportionment of Cost Would Handicap Needed Improvements There.

NEW TRANSIT LINES URGED

Another Resolution Demands That Borough Be Represented on 3 Transportation Boards.

Any proposal to apportion the "excessive" cost of building sewers in Queens among the other boroughs will be fought by the Bronx Chamber of Commerce, that organization decided yesterday in a resolution explaining that such a tax would handicap public improvements in the Bronx by "unjustly taking away money from Bronx taxpayers that should be used in building up the transportation facilities and other public improvements of the borough."

"It has been urged that the taxpayers of this city pay a part of the huge expenses incurred for the cost of sewer improvements in the Borough of Queens," the resolution declared. "Since a great portion of the taxpayers in the Borough of the Bronx are small-home owners, already burdened to the limit of their financial ability with assessments for local improvements, we resolve that the Bronx Chamber of Commerce strongly and unqualifiedly condemn the plan to place any additional financial burden upon Bronx taxpayers by compelling them to pay a part of the cost of sewer improvements in the Borough of Queens."

Wants Transit Relief First.

Adequate transit facilities are the most important need in the Bronx, the Chamber of Commerce declared in another resolution calling on the city authorities to formulate a plan immediately for new rapid transit lines to the Bronx and to have such routes ready for construction as soon as city funds are available for rapid transit purposes.

A third resolution asks Governor Roosevelt and Mayor Walker "to give the Borough of the Bronx representation upon the Public Service Commission, Transit Commission and Board of Transportation by appointing a resident of the Bronx to each of those commissions."

The chamber declared that representation is needed "because the future development of the Bronx largely depends upon the construction of additional rapid transit lines to eliminate the intolerable conditions now suffered by the people of the Bronx upon the present subway and elevated railroad lines and it is most urgent that improved service be obtained from other public utilities."

The three resolutions were adopted unanimously at a luncheon of the chamber at the Concourse Plaza Hotel. Copies will be sent to Mayor Walker, Governor Roosevelt, the Board of Estimate, Board of Aldermen, Board of Transportation and State Legislature.

Sisson Predicts Prosperity.

Francis H. Sisson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company, in a talk on "The Business Outlook for 1929," predicted that prosperity in this country would continue "for an almost indefinite period."

"For this generation at least we may confidently hope that our present era of good times for every one will bring prosperity to every section of our country," he declared. "All factors in industry, trade and business point to that direction."

Among the reasons which Mr. Sisson gave for his prediction of prosperity were a "tremendous" increase in the quantity and value of exports, high standards of living for all classes of Americans and "the fact that the farmer today enjoys the highest buying power he has had since the war.

"The latest available figures show that our people today have more than $90,000,000,000 in life insurance, and more than $28,000,000,000 in bank savings," he continued. "The value of our farms has increased to about $26,000,000,000. Our wage earners are earning annually about $60,000,000,000 and spending only $40,000,000,000 of that, leaving $20,000,000,000 for investments, saving and the purchase of luxuries."

CALLS WOMEN UNFIT FOR PROFESSIONS

Isidor J. Kresel, Lawyer, Wins Clubwomen's Applause for "Limitations" Speech.

ASKS THEM TO REST NOW

Digest Rights Gained, He Urges, but Do Not Try "to Bite Off More"—Lauds Home Influence.

Isidor J. Kresel, New York lawyer, does not believe that women ever will achieve success in law, medicine or kindred professions. He told a few of them, members of the Vacation Camp and Dormitory Club, exactly that yesterday afternoon at the Metropolis Club; explained his views on many other "limitations of the sex," and received vigorous applause for his "temerity."

"Do not abuse your new freedom," Mr. Kresel pleaded. "You have the vote, but certainly are not yet fitted to discharge the duties of high political office or to cope with the great political and economic questions which our law-making bodies are called on to settle."

Pointing out the progress which women had made in the movement for "equal rights" in modern times following centuries of "servitude and subjugation," he called on women to "take a little rest and try to digest the food you have bitten off rather than try to bite off any more right now."

"In the flush of victory over such servility as your sex once was subjected to," he went on, "consider your disabilities as well as your ability. You have made great progress in business, literature, politics and other fields against great odds and great objections, and in some lines of business, such as dressmaking, stenography, telephone switchboard operation, you are no longer a problem but a necessity. But in many respects you are not fitted to lead in what we call the professions. Nature has placed her restrictions on woman and I have not yet known a leader in either law or medicine. The woman lawyer, for instance, is a misfit, particularly in the courtroom. She cannot compete with a man either in forensic effort or in the marshaling of facts before a jury.

"I mean no reflection on your sex," Mr. Kresel explained. "Man has his limitations, too. Each sex must occupy the sphere in which it can accomplish most. For men that sphere is the fight for existence, for women it is the rearing of children, ministering to the poor, the sick and afflicted and aiding in moral movements. Don't try to mimic men or take too literally the battle cry of 'equal rights.' For always a woman has one power greater than all those of man, the power to control her husband's actions and at the same time make him feel he is boss."

The Vacation Camp and Dormitory, which is an auxiliary of the New York Guild for the Jewish Blind, will hear Aaron Shapiro at its February meeting.

WALKER TESTIFIES, LAUDS GRAND JURY

PRESENTMENT DUE TODAY

Investigation Said to Have Bared "Loose Conditions," but No Specific Indications of Graft.

Mayor Walker testified for an hour yesterday before the grand jury which is investigating allegations by William H. Allen, director of the Institute for Public Service, of irregularities in the markets department. The Mayor's appearance was asked by the body the day before, and the request was conveyed over the telephone by Assistant District Attorney Hastings, who had been in charge of questioning witnesses.

It was said that the request was in line with the intention of the grand jurors to file a presentment with Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions today on the evidence. It also was reported that the grand jurors had informed the Mayor of the draft of the presentment and had obtained his views on conditions in the markets department, specifically in the peddlers' license bureau, which appeared to have received particular attention.

There was another report that while no specific evidence of grafting had been uncovered, the investigation had revealed "loose conditions" which should be immediately remedied and the possibility of grafting eliminated.

Mayor Walker refused to comment on his testimony as he came out of the grand jury room, except to say: "I was delighted to find the grand jurors so much interested in the affairs of our city. It is a pleasure to find a group of men of their prominence devoting their time to matters of civic importance and to the betterment of government."

Replying to a question whether he felt that his appearance would be productive of general benefit to the city administration and the markets department in particular, the Mayor said:

"Not only was my appearance before the grand jury valuable to me, but it was of great value to the people of the city."

"Have you any comment to make on the possible grand jury recommendations?" the Mayor was asked.

"They will help greatly," was his reply.

The Mayor appeared in the antechamber of the grand jury room at 11:58 o'clock in the forenoon, two minutes before the time set the day before for his testimony. He was ushered before the body at exactly noon, and came out at 1 P. M.

LOEB CLEARED IN THEFT.

Magistrate Dismisses Charge Made by Winifred Sackville Stoner.

Magistrate Brodsky refused to hold Robert H. Loeb, a member of the New York Stock Exchange with offices at 25 Broad Street, on a charge of grand larceny brought by Winifred Sackville Stoner, author and lecturer, when the case was heard in Yorkville Court yesterday morning.

At a previous hearing Magistrate Brodsky cleared Mr. Loeb of a charge of disorderly conduct brought by Miss Stoner on the night of Nov. 28, when she and Mr. Loeb and Mrs. Russell Kirby of Bronxville had an argument in the lobby of the Sherry-Netherland Hotel. The larceny charge dismissed yesterday involved the alleged theft of an $8,000 necklace.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirby testified at yesterday's hearing.

PERHAPS YOU CAN'T AVOID CROWDS BUT YOU CAN HELP AVOID INFLUENZA

To keep free from influenza the Surgeon General warns against mingling with crowds, especially against coming in direct contact with persons who are coughing or sneezing. Walk to work if possible—the exercise will do you good. Do not use unsterilized towels or napkins. Keep your hands away from the mouth and face. Wash them regularly before each meal. Use plenty of fresh water inside and out.

The frequent and continued use of Vapex has become the standby of many whose common sense tells them to take all proper precautionary measures. Vapex will keep you free from colds and will stop a cold at the start. It is used widely by those who must ride in the subways, the busses, etc. Put a drop on your handkerchief—breathe the vapor. The odor is pleasant. Use it frequently, especially while in crowded places. This ounce of prevention may save you many days of serious illness. Get Vapex from your druggist in the little square bottle and the package with the green triangle.

CASE ATTRACTS A THRONG

Richberg Allowed to Speak as Senate Requested—Three of Taft's Cabinet Among Counsel.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Argument was begun before the Supreme Court today in the famous O'Fallon case, the outcome of which, since it indirectly affects railroad property estimated to be worth $18,000,000,000 to $30,000,000,000, may influence future rate structures.

The issue is regarded as one of the most important brought to the attention of the Supreme Court in years. It involves the method adopted by the Interstate Commerce Commission in valuing railroad property, and has a distinct relation to the rate-making power as well as to the provision of the transportation act under which the government is empowered to recapture one-half of all railroad earnings in excess of 6 per cent.

Distinguished counsel are arrayed on both sides, including three lawyers who served in the Cabinet when Chief Justice Taft, now presiding, was President.

George W. Wickersham of New York, who was Attorney General under President Taft, appears as counsel for the government. Walter I. Fisher of Chicago, who served as Secretary of the Interior, represents the Interstate Commerce Commission. Charles Nagel of St. Louis, Mr. Taft's Secretary of Commerce and Labor, is among counsel for the appellant railroads, which are owned largely by the Anheuser-Busch estate.

Mr. Wickersham and Mr. Fisher were in court today. The former spoke briefly at the opening of the argument over division of time.

Richberg Wins Part in Case.

Another interesting aspect of the case is the appearance in it of Donald R. Richberg of Chicago, general counsel for the National Conference Committee on Valuation of American Railroads, as amicus curiae by request of a Senate resolution passed at the instance of Senator Norris of Nebraska. The railroads objected to Mr. Richberg filing a brief in the proceeding but were overruled. Mr. Richberg is supporting the position taken by the Interstate Commerce Commission in deciding the O'Fallon case.

The court room was packed. Senators, Representatives, officials of the various departments and lawyers crowded into the small court room. Many were obliged to stand. The belief is quite general that if the ideas of value urged by the railroads are sustained the effect, ultimately, will be to advance railroad rates and defeat the purposes of Congress in authorizing the government to recapture a part of earnings in excess of 6 per cent.

The court allowed six and a quarter hours for oral presentation of the case, most of which was taken up today. Unless the court complies with a request of railway counsel for extension of time, argument will be brought to a close tomorrow.

Frederick H. Wood of New York, of the firm of Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, and Daniel N. Kirby of St. Louis, of counsel for the two railways directly concerned, as well as Mr. Richberg, were heard today. Government counsel will be heard tomorrow and brief replies will be made by the railroad lawyers.

The appellant carriers are the St. Louis & O'Fallon Railway Company and the Manufacturers' Railway Company. The issue in point involves the validity of methods fixing valuations under the act of 1913 and the transportation act of 1920, and the question of the extent to which the Interstate Commerce Commission should give weight to current costs of reproduction.

Mr. Wood said the method pursued by the commission in determining valuation "excludes many items of original cost, and, as to others, determines the reproduction estimate upon the basis of conditions then existing and resulting in a decrease below the actual cost of construction under the conditions as they then existed."

Says Arbitrary Formula Was Used.

"The methods pursued in the determination of value," he said, "were established prior to the report and before the increase in prices, which has since occurred. The commission, in addition to determining value by an arbitrary mathematical formula, has adopted under its new theory, that investment should be substituted for present value, an arbitrary formula for determination of original cost by which it cannot possibly be ascertained, and the ascertainment of which was contrary to the original purpose of its adoption.

"Even though, contrary to its previous rulings, this court should hold that original cost is synonymous with and the proper measure of value, the order of the commission in this case is void because that which has been accepted in the opinion to be representative of estimated original cost is unsupported by any evidence whatsoever, and because original cost is not capable of being ascertained by the method employed.

"Congress contemplated that the value of each railroad should be determined by a consideration of all relevant facts and circumstances pertaining to it.

"Aggregate value was to be the sum of values so separately established. The commission on the other hand insofar as it was guided by the consideration named, would first determine aggregate value and then distribute such value among individual railroads upon the basis of the formula employed in the determination of aggregate value, which in turn, under this theory would be fixed at whatever sum would be necessary to produce a predetermined rate result.

"Whether the economic value of all railroad property in the United States equals its cost of reproduction at current prices is a debatable question, the answer to which can have no bearing upon determining the value of this property.

"The economic value of this railroad is clearly equal to its cost of reproduction less depreciation. Based on current rates and their yield, a purchaser obviously would be willing to pay such an amount for its purchase, and would be justified in doing so."

Contends Lines Are One System.

Mr. Kirby argued that the commission dealt unjustly in refusing to recognize that the O'Fallon and Manufacturers Railways are a "single system," a determination which would have resulted in a reduction of the recapture assessment, inasmuch as the O'Fallon property made money and the Manufacturers' line lost money.

One reason why the lower court held that the two lines were not a "single system" was that there was a gap between their rails. Mr. Kirby insisted, however, that the two roads gave continuous service through roads identified with the St. Louis Terminal Association.

While the roads were separate corporations, they constituted "a single system" within the meaning of the law, Mr. Kirby contended. The order of the commission requiring the O'Fallon properties to pay interest for long recapture periods, he said, should be passed upon by judicial authority.

"We contend that in this particular matter the commission was both claimant and judge," he added.

Mr. Richberg contended that the method of valuation devised by the commission was appropriate and that it was up to the railroads to demonstrate that it was inequitable.

The discretion exercised by the commission in determining value, Mr. Richberg said, was not properly subject to judicial review. Value was variable, he argued, and dependent upon many factors, well recognized by courts and economists, and the power to value and make rates comprehended the power to prevent unreasonable profits.

He was in the midst of his argument when the court adjourned at 4:30 o'clock. He will resume it tomorrow.

LEFT MILLION TO CHARITY.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 3.—More than $1,000,000 is left to charitable institutions in the will of William E. Conroy, former member of the glass firm of Conroy, Pugh & Co.

The will directs the building of a Methodist Episcopal hospital adjoining the Methodist Home for the Aged here, and provides $500,000 for the institution.

Other institutions sharing in the estate, after full provision for Mr. Conroy's family, are the Morgan College for Negroes, Baltimore; the European Mission, Brooklyn; the Hamilton Memorial Home for the Aged and the Calvary Methodist Church here; the Christian Missionary University of Cairo, Egypt; Women's Foreign Missionary Society and the fund for retired ministers of the Methodist Church.

TRY TO SAVE COUPLE FACING THE GALLOWS

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 3 (AP).—With their clients standing on the threshold of the gallows, defense lawyers today were making herculean efforts to forestall the hanging, scheduled for Saturday, of Mrs. Ada Bonner Lebouef and Dr. Thomas E. Dreher, sentenced to die for the murder of the woman's husband.

Mrs. Lebouef would be the first white woman to pay the extreme penalty in Louisiana. Last night Governor Long formally announced that he would not interfere, overriding the State Pardon Board which had recommended that the sentence be commuted to life imprisonment.

Defense lawyers won their first skirmish when they persuaded Judge James D. Simon, the trial judge, to grant a hearing at Franklin, La., tomorrow at 10 A. M. to determine whether a sanity commission should be appointed to inquire into the present mental condition of the condemned pair.

Ben J. Daly and L. O. Pecot of defense counsel pleaded before Judge Simon in New Orleans today that both Dr. Dreher and Mrs. Lebouef were now insane and asked for a lunacy commission. If Judge Simon rejects their plea tomorrow the attorneys plan to rush back to New Orleans and seek a mandamus from the State Supreme Court summoning Judge Simon before the court to show cause why a commission should not be appointed.

In some quarters the action of Judge Simon in granting tomorrow's hearing is interpreted as automatically postponing the hanging under the Louisiana law. The defense counsel feel confident that their clients will not die Saturday.

The condemned man and woman were reported by Sheriff Pecot in collapse in the Franklin jail after hearing the news of Governor Long's refusal to commute their sentences. Their first information was received by a villager calling it out in the street near the jail, and when it was confirmed by the sheriff they burst into pleas and moans.

The Governor's action caused a rupture between him and his Lieutenant Governor, Paul N. Cyr, a member of the State pardon board. In a public statement the Lieutenant Governor accused the Governor of "double-crossing" him and declared the hanging of the pair would be nothing short of "judicial murder."

He charged Governor Long with showing favoritism in commuting the sentence of John Pleasant Harris, a gambler, who killed a woman in New Orleans, and refusing to commute the sentences of the doctor and the woman.

"Governor Long deliberately double-crossed me," said Mr. Cyr. "He was to have a final talk with me before making his decision, and I learned from others that he had made that decision and publicly and officially announced it before talking to me. I am convinced that these two poor condemned humans deserve clemency, even a new trial. Supreme Court justices and the Attorney General and eleven of the jurors in the case agree with me."

Woman Dies in Taxicab.

An unidentified woman died in a taxicab yesterday while being driven from in front of 58 West Twenty-eighth Street, where she had hailed the machine, to Twenty-seventh Street and Lexington Avenue, the destination she had given the chauffeur, Irving Ruderman of 1,681 Vyse Avenue, the Bronx. The body was taken to the morgue by Dr. Stumpt of Bellevue. The dead woman was about 55 years old.

COURT REPORTS ON 1928.

City Tribunal Shows $6,968,826 in Judgments Were Filed.

A total of 5,128 judgment rolls, aggregating $6,968,826.74, were filed in the City Court in 1928, according to the court's annual report made public yesterday by Clerk Harry C. Perry. The report also discloses the recording of 8,903 notes of issue and 2,714 executions.

Trials numbering 1,168 were held in the various special and trial terms of the court last year and 404 inquests. The resumé notes 3,562 causes of action dismissed, discontinued and settled; 45,522 orders signed and 43,737 parties sworn in special term. Other special term figures include 14,582 contested motions, 1,150 opinions and decisions, 133,805 ex parte orders, 85 orders of arrest, 300 attachments and 291 changes of name.

City Court Justices signed 655 bonds and undertakings totaling $457,414.78. The report says the court received and paid over to the City Chamberlain fees aggregating $35,401.79 and that $7,265.99 in trust funds were paid in court and deposited with the City Chamberlain.

IT'S difficult enough at most any time of the year; during the Flower Show, for instance, or the Rust-proof Grommet Manufacturers' Exhibit.

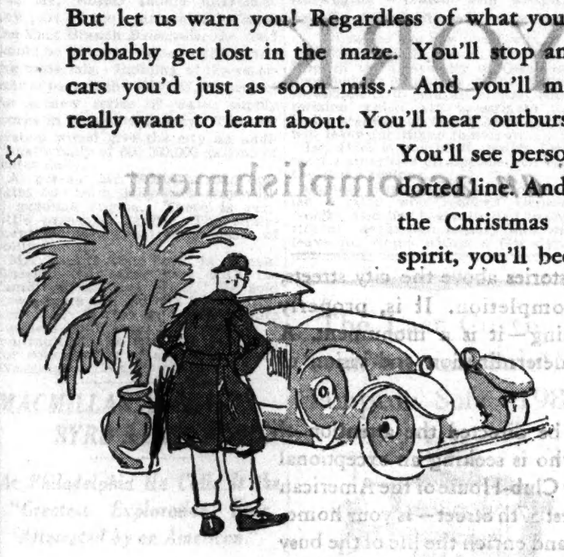
But from January 5th to 12th—Automobile Show Week—Grand Central Palace takes on the appearance of a gleaming, colorful pageant which has just halted for your inspection—to give you a pre-view of that proud parade which will grace our highways and boulevards in 1929.

Cars to the right of you—cars to the left of you. Big cars and little. Dignified cars and rakish. American cars and foreign. Town cars that are frankly snooty. Roadsters that are just as frankly collegiate.

All the cars that are new. All that are improved. 1928 had to be surpassed. That was attempting the impossible; but they did it—these automobile manufacturers. Higher speed, greater horsepower, more ingenious appointments, more graceful lines, more arresting color combinations, more luxurious interiors.

Of course you're going. No wide-awake New Yorker will miss the Automobile Show. Maybe you'll go to select your next car from the multitude of models and makes on display. Maybe you'll go telling yourself that you're not going to buy a new car this year—that you're just going to look around so you'll be able to talk intelligently on that great American topic—automobiles.

But let us warn you! Regardless of what you go to see, you'll probably get lost in the maze. You'll stop and learn all about cars you'd just as soon miss. And you'll miss cars that you really want to learn about. You'll hear outbursts of enthusiasm.



You'll see persons signing on the dotted line. And, recovering from the Christmas and New Year's spirit, you'll become infected all over again with the automobile-buying spirit. You'll decide that you simply must be among the first to own one of those low, cream-colored phaetons—or one of those limousines that seem as long as a Pullman car.

Or you may fall for a car that whispers of hills to be conquered, when what you need is one that can talk, in no uncertain terms, of traffic to be outwitted. Or vice versa. Or you may get the idea that a certain coupé was built for you, when it wasn't at all. What to do? What to do?

What do you usually do when you want to learn what's new in New York—when you want some straight information on what is really amusing—or really worth while? Where do you usually turn for guidance through the maze of Manhattan offerings?

To The New Yorker, of course.

And for guidance through that maze which is Grand Central Palace, turn, with the same assurance, to this week's issue, with its newsy, unbiased department on "Motors", and its twenty odd pages of automobile advertising. Peruse these twenty odd pages and decide for yourself which of these cars you want to see at the Show.

From among them—or the three or four other cars regularly advertised in The New Yorker, though not appearing in this issue—you will almost certainly choose. Here you will find the very cars which belong in your garage or on the driveway of your country house. Here you will find cars which say tempting things to your pride of ownership—or your check book. Here you will find, at a glance, the finest features of the show. Here's your short-cut through Grand Central Palace.

If you wonder why and how, just consider why the Automobile Show is held in New York.

New York is the style center of the country. Thumbs down in New York means thumbs down in Kokomo. Acceptance in New York means acceptance on the Coast, as well as up and down the Atlantic Seaboard. At this season, as New York goes, so goes the rest of Motordom. The car that wins approval on the Avenue, becomes the most fashionable car on Elm and Main Streets.

That is why these bright automobile men chose New York.

And as for choosing The New Yorker—well, they had to win the acceptance of smart New York first of all, didn't they? And we'll bet they will.

We'll go further—we'll bet that your next car will be chosen from this brilliant array.

ADAMS TESTIFIES IN BOSTON SCANDAL

He Confirms in General Fuchs's Account of Alleged Attempt to Extort Money.

GRAND JURY INQUIRY LIKELY

Prosecutor Expected to Question Accused Official Today on Sunday Baseball Issue.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 3.—Vice President Charles F. Adams of the Boston Braves today related his version of the alleged attempt of city councilmen to wring a bribe from baseball interests for passing the Sunday baseball measure in this city. He also told of being solicited for a Christmas fund donation in a letter from a city councilman, and related how he was dunned to obtain engagements for Dan Carroll's fighters in the new Boston Garden.

Testifying before the City Finance Commission and a throng of 700 spectators who were kept in order by a detachment of State police, Adams said that he thought it was the voice of Councilman Robert G. Wilson Jr. that warned him the Sunday sports order would be tabled until it was cobwebbed unless he paid each of the "bloc" of twelve or thirteen councilmen $5,000.

This statement, made with Councilman Wilson seated but a few seats away, was in answer to a question put by Chairman John C. L. Dowling, asking Adams why he was so persistent in calling Wilson many times a day for a period of days, leaving both his name and telephone number.

"The voice resembled Wilson's so much I called him back repeatedly to check up to see if it was his," Adams said.

Testimony Disappoints Crowd.

"I had met him in October to ask him if he was an ally of Bilodeau's in the latter's opposition to the Sunday sports measure. That ended my connection with him."

The closely packed crowd of men and women that filled Gardner Auditorium in the State House was plainly disappointed because of the lack of anything sensational in the testimony offered by Adams. It was simply a retelling of the testimony of Judge Fuchs the day before, and the vice president admitted that his knowledge of the Copley-Plaza incident was hearsay.

A difference of at least two hours in the time Judge Fuchs testified Carroll and Lynch left his suite at the Copley-Plaza in the early hours of Nov. 24 with Secretary Edmund Cunningham of the Braves and Burt Whitman, sporting editor of the Boston Herald was disclosed by the latter when he testified after Adams left the stand.

Judge Fuchs had placed the time the group left his suite at between 12:30 A. M. and 1 A. M. on Nov. 24. Whitman, on the other hand, testified that the hour as he recalled it was about 3 A. M. To back up his statement, Whitman testified that it took him about twenty minutes to reach his Wollaston home by motor car and that he placed the time of his arrival there about 3:45 A. M.

Meeting With Carroll Revealed.

Whitman testified under cross-examination by Attorney Joseph P. Walsh, representing Lynch and Carroll, that Judge Fuchs and the accused councilman were apparently in good humor and on friendly terms when they parted at the door of the suite. He also denied that Judge Fuchs told him Lynch sought a bribe.

At a hockey game on Dec. 18, at the Boston Garden, Adams testified that a young man he did not know touched him on the arm and told him Dan Carroll wanted to meet him. He said he went down the corridor and after being introduced to Carroll the latter informed him that Lynch had changed his mind and that the Sunday sports order would pass the council unanimously. Adams admitted that he later ordered a ban on Carroll's boxers at the Boston Garden lifted.

He admitted that he had called Carroll on the telephone on Dec. 26, asked him to meet him in his office on Water Street, and said that he was served with the summons from the finance commission while Carroll was in his office.

Accused Men to Be Called.

He denied that he asked Carroll at that meeting to have Lynch intercede with the other councilors so that he would not be questioned if the council decided to call him in connection with the issuance of a license to the Braves.

"I called Carroll on the telephone because I resented the statements concerning the so-called 'blackjacking methods' I was being accused of in my fight to have the Sunday sports order pass the Council by a number of the Councilmen."

The accused councilmen's stories may be reached tomorrow. Summonses have been issued for the thirteen councilmen named by Adams and Fuchs, while District Attorney William J. Foley was reported making preparations for a grand jury investigation. At the same time Attorney General Warner was reported ready to investigate Councilman Lynch's alleged statement that the Council had nothing to fear from a Suffolk jury prosecution as "we draw our own juries." The Attorney General said he was not empowered to investigate anything yet disclosed at the hearing, but that he was in duty bound to aid all District Attorneys and would back Foley to the limit.

ROME ACCEPTS VOLKOFF.

Naming of Bulgar General to Legation There Is Linked to War Plane.

Wireless to The New York Times.

SOFIA, Jan. 3.—The agreement of the Italian Government to the appointment as Minister to Rome of Volkoff, who resigned yesterday as Minister of War, was received in Sofia today. Foreign Minister Buroff today informed the British and French Ministers that it had been decided to send General Volkoff to Rome.

The reasons were not made public, but it is considered that the transfer may be to enable General Volkoff, who is held by many to have been responsible for the Bulgarian counter-revolution against Stabulisky in 1923, to devise schemes for military cooperation with Italy in case of necessity, or that he is entrusted with the mission of arranging the betrothal of King Boris and Princess Giovanni, which has often been discussed as probable.

Agreement Reached Giving Progressive Advance to Five-Day Week.

An accord has been reached between the Photo Engravers Union and the Photo Engravers' Board of Trade for a six-year agreement expiring Jan. 1, 1935. A progressive advance toward the five-day week is part of the new arrangement. It is expected to be signed in a day or two.

Under the plan which has been agreed on by subcommittees, the photo engravers will work two months in 1929 on the five-day basis, three months in 1930, four months in 1931, five months in 1932, six months in 1933, while 1934 is to be wholly on the five-day week basis.

No change will be made in the present $68 wage scale for day men. The night men who now receive $68 a week will receive $70 and $73 in 1930. The wage clause of the agreement can be reopened after the second and fourth years of the contract.

The agreement involves about 2,000 men in commercial shops. Wage negotiations are proceeding in Philadelphia, Newark, Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit and the Middle West generally.

BERLIN AMERICAN MISSING.

Detectives Search Forest for Former Philadelphian.

Wireless to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Jan. 3.—The mysterious disappearance of an American-born woman, Bessy Moss of Philadelphia, married to a wealthy Czechoslovakian wine dealer, Ignatz Thoman, and living in Berlin's fashionable West End, has baffled the police in the past week.

Tonight detectives were searching the extensive Grunewald forest with bloodhounds, believing the woman, who speaks only broken German, has been victimized.

Bessy Moss came to Berlin some time ago to nurse Thoman's sick wife, who had been confined to bed for a long time. Mrs. Thoman, however, died and Thoman married Bessy Moss about a month ago.

At 10 A. M., Dec. 28, she went to the Dahlom market place, carrying with her 60 marks and a small basket for victuals. She told the maid she would not be back soon. Since then she has not been heard of.

NICARAGUAN DEPUTY KILLED

Eight Companions Injured as Car Swerves to Avoid Calf.

By Tropical Radio to The New York Times.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 3.—The recently elected Nicaraguan Liberal Deputy, Juan Martinez Rubi of El Viejo, was killed and eight of his companions were injured, two seriously, when the chauffeur of their car, in order to avoid hitting a calf crossing the highway, swerved aside and struck a concrete telegraph pole near Porte Zuelo last night.

Senor Rubi was instantly killed and there is little hope for the two seriously injured. The car was completely smashed.

Buckley Takes Office.

Charles A. Buckley, Democratic leader of the Eighth Assembly District of the Bronx, was sworn in by Mayor Walker in the City Hall yesterday morning as City Chamberlain to succeed Edward J. Flynn, who resigned to accept the post of Secretary of State in the cabinet of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt.

MANY POLICE GUARD BALBO AT CITY HALL

OUR AVIATION WINS PRAISE

Italian Under-Secretary, Back From Long Tour of Fields, Declares America Leads in Air.

General Italo Balbo, Under-Secretary of State for Aviation in the Mussolini Cabinet, was received officially at the City Hall yesterday by Mayor Walker. During the last seventeen days he had been visiting important military aeronautical centres in the United States.

General Balbo's arrival at the City Hall was accompanied by a formidable display of police protection. There had been threats of hostile demonstrations and even of violence by anti-Fascisti.

Before the arrival of the General several hundred men had gathered on the City Hall Plaza. Some flourished circulars inscribed, "Italo Balbo—Wanted for Murder!"

A battalion of policemen, who arrived before 2 o'clock, soon herded them back toward Broadway and Park Row and cleared the entire plaza in front of the City Hall steps.

Cheers and Boos Mingled.

There were cheers mingled with boos when the Fascist leader and his party, under the escort of motorcycle policemen and detectives from the bomb squad, drew up in several automobiles. Sitting with General Balbo was Emanuele Grazzi, Italian Consul General. As the party alighted, an Italian reception committee, headed by Count Ignazio T. Di Revel, who had been admitted to the City Hall steps, cheered and raised their right arms in the Fascist salute.

The Anti-Fascisti answered with a volley of "boos" and a few of them swung aloft placards bearing such legends as "Workers of the World, Unite!" and "Down With the Murderer of Matteotti!" Detectives and policemen seized the placards, while Police Commissioner Whalen from a commanding position on the plaza smiled his approval. There were more "boos" and a few shouts of "Down With Mussolini!" But order was soon restored.

Commissioner Whalen, in his capacity of Chairman of the Mayor's Reception Committee, greeted the guests and escorted them to the Mayor's reception room. Mr. Whalen turned over the further formalities to his committee colleague, Judge Francis X. Mancuso.

Introducing the Italian Air Minister to the Mayor, Judge Mancuso said that of all the famous visitors whom the Mayor had greeted from "the land of romance and poetry" none was more distinguished than General Balbo, one of the four Fascist leaders in the march on Rome six years ago.

Walker Recalls Trip to Italy.

Mayor Walker, grasping the hand of General Balbo, welcomed him in the name of New York City, "the largest Italian city in the world." The Mayor, recalling his visit to Rome eighteen months ago, asked General Balbo to take back with him the New York Mayor's best regards to Mussolini. The Mayor said he understood that Mussolini's audiences with foreign callers were commonly limited to a maximum of ten minutes.

"You will understand how proud I am, General, of the fact that Il Duce gave me forty-six minutes of his time, and I enjoyed every one of those minutes," he added.

General Balbo replied in Italian and his remarks were translated into English by Consul General Grazzi. He said an Italy remembered pleasantly the visit of the Mayor of New York, and that Mussolini recalled their meeting in Rome with particular pleasure.

"I have made many visits to study aviation in various countries," he continued, "but there has been none that will be of so much benefit to my own countrymen as has been my visit here. America's position in aviation is second to none."

After the reception the police lines were held unbroken until the General and his escort were well on their way uptown. At the Ritz-Carlton, where he is stopping, he was under the protection of detectives of the bomb squad.

Made Trip to Pacific Coast.

General Balbo, accompanied by members of his staff, visited the Aeronautical Exposition in Chicago and then went to Dayton with other delegates to the International Civil Aeronautics Conference, where he met Orville Wright and inspected the army laboratories at Wright Field. From Dayton he went on to Detroit and saw the Ford and Packard plants and then started westward.

General Balbo praised the naval pilots at San Diego, Cal.

"Their tactical exhibition was the best I have ever seen," he said. "The men themselves were most daring and wonderful pilots and their tactical training was perfect."

The naval units stationed at San Diego and with the Pacific fleet put on a display in which 200 planes went through manoeuvres at one time. The General piloted a navy plane to Los Angeles. From there he went to San Antonio, Texas, and went through the army flying school and then visited the naval school at Pensacola, Fla. He then visited the naval station at Hampton Roads, Va., and flew from there to Washington.

While in the capital he conferred with William P. MacCracken Jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, on the possibility of a reciprocal arrangement with Italy whereby certificates of approval for American commercial aircraft might be granted in Italy and similar licenses granted to Italian aircraft here.

PROTEST BALBO'S VISIT.

500 Meet to Hear Denunciations of Fascist Cabinet Minister.

A meeting to protest the visit to America of General Italo Balbo, Fascist Aviation Minister, was held last night under the auspices of the International Labor Defense Committee and the Anti-Fascist Alliance of North America at the Irving Plaza, Fifteenth Street and Irving Place.

The speakers, who denounced Balbo as a "murderer," and "imperialist," and called Coolidge, Hoover and Mayor Walker "tyrants," were William Weinstone, secretary of the Workers' party; Carlo Tresca, editor of Il Martello; Vanni Montana, editor of Il Lavoratore, and Norman Tallentyre, secretary of the International Labor Defense Committee.

Captain William H. Ward of the East Twenty-second Street station and six patrolmen were present at the meeting in expectation of disorder, but the crowd which numbered 500 was quiet.

Walker Greets Naval Aviator.

Lieutenant James E. Dyar, naval aviator, holder of the Herbert Schiff trophy for 1,251 hours of flight without accident, was received by Mayor Walker yesterday afternoon in the City Hall. Lieutenant Dyar was accompanied by William Schiff, donor of the trophy; Rear Admiral L. R. de Steiger, commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard; Lieut. Col. H. C. Pratt of Mitchel Field and Commander L. W. Hesselmen of the Naval militia. The aviator, who is stationed at San Diego, Cal., will fly back to his post at once, bearing with him a message from Mayor Walker to Mayor Clark of San Diego.

CROPSEY CENSURED BY HIGHER COURT

UPSETS $15,000 VERDICT

Says Child Seeking Damages for Injuries by an Auto Now Is Without Redress.

Severe criticism of the manner in which Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey in Brooklyn conducted the trial of a negligence action in which the jury awarded $15,000 to the plaintiff, a 10-year-old girl, who had lost a leg, was contained in a memorandum handed down yesterday by the Appellate Division in Brooklyn.

The verdict was set aside by the Appellate Division, which held that because of Justice Cropsey's "erroneous" rulings, the verdict had been directed against the wrong defendant, and the girl was now prevented from proceeding against the responsible defendant.

The plaintiff, Helen McLaughlin, brought the damage suit through her father, John J. McLaughlin of 1,448 East Seventeenth Street, Brooklyn, against the Audley Clarke Company and the Greiner Contracting Company, Inc. She was injured by a truck operated by Arnold McDonald, secretary of the Greiner company, on Nov. 23, 1921, when she was 3 years old.

The suit was brought jointly against the two companies, but Justice Cropsey dismissed the complaint against the Greiner company and sent the case to the jury as against the Audley Clarke Company. Justices Carswell and Seeger of the Appellate Division in a memorandum handed down with the decision, said:

"As a matter of law, McDonald was not the servant of the Audley Clarke Company, therefore that defendant may not be held liable for his negligence. As a matter of law, the other defendant, the Greiner Contracting Company, Inc., was responsible for McDonald's negligence. This disposition produces an unfortunate result for the infant plaintiff herein. She was entitled to a judgment against either the Audley Clarke Company or the Greiner Contracting Company, Inc. She is now without a judgment against either. This result accrues because the trial court improperly dismissed the complaint as to the Greiner Contracting Company, Inc., and incorrectly held that the Audley Clarke Company, was responsible, as a matter of law, for McDonald's acts. This error of the trial court would be excusable but for the fact that it resulted from the court's improper refusal to examine the authorities which were proffered by counsel for the Audley Clarke Company, which authorities when applied to the facts in this record, require the reversal herein."

Presiding Justice Lazansky and Justice Young concurred on the decision. Justice Cropsey declined yesterday to comment on the memorandum.

'ABIE'S IRISH ROSE' SUIT INVOKES DICTIONARY

Malevinsky, Armed With Several Volumes, Defines Emotions Till Court Interferes.

During his sixth day on the witness stand as a play expert, Meeta L. Malevinsky was again cross-examined yesterday by former Governor Nathan L. Miller, defense attorney in Anne Nichols's $3,000,000 plagiarism suit against Universal Pictures before Federal Judge Goddard.

Mr. Malevinsky appeared in the courtroom on the twelfth floor of the Woolworth Building in the morning armed with several dictionaries and a thesaurus, in compliance with a request made by Mr. Miller on the day preceding that there be no misunderstanding over the exact shade of meaning of any of the emotions extracted by Mr. Malevinsky from characters in "Abie's Irish Rose" and in the film, "The Cohens and the Kellys," against which Miss Nichols has charged piracy.

A definition of "humanistic" was read by Mr. Malevinsky, as some doubt had been expressed the day before over what the word meant. When questioned by Mr. Miller concerning the meaning of "disdainful," Mr. Malevinsky started to look it up, but was interrupted by Judge Goddard.

"This trial is not being held altogether for educational purposes," the judge remarked with a smile.

Leaving the dissecting of emotions, Mr. Miller discussed the matter of the play's crudities. He read from Mr. Malevinsky's own book, "The Science of Playwriting," which has frequently appeared in the case, in which the crucible of the play "Polly Preferred" is at first stated to be business and later as the promotion of a corporation with a girl as principal asset. Mr. Miller charged the witness with having made the crucible more specific later because he was the defense counsel in a piracy suit against the author of the play. This was denied by Mr. Malevinsky.

Mr. Miller will continue questioning Mr. Malevinsky this morning.

Goodyear Calls Off Blimp Trip.

AKRON, Ohio, Jan. 3 (AP).—The Puritan, the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company's pony blimp, will not go to Florida this Winter. Plans which have been under way for some time for flying the ship to either St. Petersburg or Miami have finally been abandoned, it was announced today. The Puritan is now being used here as a training ship for lighter than air pilots.

HELD FOR FORGING PEGGY JOYCE CHECK

Former Hotel Cashier Arrested in Denver After He Is Traced Through Other Cities.

HAD GOOD RECORD HERE

Served Big Hotels in Philadelphia and Boston Also—Mother Says He Was Shell-Shocked.

Joseph E. Bolton, 35 years old, former cashier at the Hotel Dorset, 30 West Fifty-fourth Street, was arrested in Denver, Col., on Wednesday night, charged with forging two checks, one for $188 and another for $200, on the account of Peggy Hopkins Joyce, the actress, it was learned yesterday. Miss Joyce has an apartment at the hotel.

The arrest of Bolton, who is under indictment for a forgery, was revealed in telegraph advices to the Guaranty Trust Company, 140 Broadway, and was the result of a tracing process started last October, after he had left the city, engineered by J. N. Nye, executive assistant secretary of the trust company.

Bolton was arrested when he tried to register at a Denver hotel, and a search of his person, according to the telegram, uncovered copies of the signatures of eight important depositors of the Guaranty Trust, together with a supply of blank checks on that bank.

In the indictment Bolton is alleged to have forged an indorsement of a check made out by Miss Joyce, a guest of the hotel at the time. Several days later he is alleged to have forged her own signature on a check made out to himself for $250. Both checks he cashed with funds of the hotel, it is charged. His disappearance several days later caused the inquiry which disclosed the fraud.

Mr. Nye said he soon got word of similar forgeries of checks for $200 each through hotels in Akron, Ohio, and Detroit and one for $250 through the Drake Hotel in Chicago. The variety of penmanship displayed, he said, was remarkable.

An intercepted telephone call from Bolton in Chicago to his wife, in which he expressed a plan to go to the Pacific Coast, caused Mr. Nye to send warnings to police chiefs of several Western cities.

Bolton, it was learned, had an excellent record for the last six years, while serving as cashier at the Parker House and Ritz-Carlton in Boston, and the Pennsylvania, Biltmore and Lorraine in this city.

His mother, Mrs. George Bolton, who resides at 214 West Ninety-second Street, when informed yesterday by a reporter that her son was under arrest, said she had not heard from him since he left New York last Fall.

"My son suffered from shell shock during the war," she said, "and this must be the result of that, if the charges be true."

Mrs. Bolton said she was a widow and dependent upon Bolton and another son for her living. Bolton was divorced from his first wife, she said, and had two young sons by his second marriage. His wife and children were staying with her parents in Akron at present, she believed.

MENDEZ PLANE CRASHES.

Colombian Down 75 Miles From Goal on Trip From New York.

GIRARDOT, Colombia, Jan. 2 (delayed) (AP).—The dream of Lieutenant Benjamin Mendez, American-trained chief pilot of the Colombian air service, of flying from New York to Bogota, ended here today in a crash, a scant 75 miles from his goal.

Lieutenant Mendez, who took off from Mitchel Field Nov. 23 on his 4,600-mile flight, left Girardot late this afternoon, but a few minutes afterward the plane crashed into a tree and was destroyed. The forced landing was said to have been due to a poor grade of fuel preventing his motor from functioning rapidly. The flier was too close to the earth to manoeuvre the plane to a safe landing.

Lieutenant Mendez was not injured and later took off for Bogota in an army plane which was sent to his aid.

Lieutenant Mendez had completed his flight as far as possible with a seaplane when he arrived Sunday at Girardot, the nearest point to Bogota where he could make a water landing. At Girardot he changed his plane's pontoons to wheels and the attempt Wednesday was in the craft reconstituted into a land plane.

WALDORF EMPLOYES DANCE.

Hotel Gives Last Annual Entertainment for Its Staff.

Scrubwomen sat in gallery boxes in the grand ballroom and maids in evening clothes danced with bellhops and waiters to the music of a sixteen-piece orchestra at the annual reception and dance given by the management of the Waldorf-Astoria to the hotel employes last night.

Oscar Tschirky led the grand march with his wife, Augustus Nulle, managing director of the hotel, and William F. Taylor Jr., manager, represented the management as interested spectators.

As the hotel has been sold and comes down next June, the dance was the final event of its kind. More than 2,000 employes and their families attended, augmented by about 500 more of the staff at the change of watch at midnight. An extra ballroom was provided for the dancers. A buffet supper was served in the Rose Room and Empire Room.

OPPOSE ROOSEVELT ON FOUR-YEAR TERM

By W. A. WARN.

mittee, it would be exceedingly difficult to persuade men of the required calibre to accept appointments at the head of the reorganized administrative departments for a period as short as two years.

Under the new plan of administration appointments to such offices run only for the Governor's own term of service and under the circumstances violent interference with the continuity of governmental activities would inevitably be of biennial recurrence at the Capitol unless the Governor's own term was extended beyond two years.

Pressure on Republicans.

With so much support within their own party for the proposed change, the Republicans in the Legislature, although sentiment among Republican politicians ran heavily counter to the proposal, were compelled to submit the matter in the form of a constitutional amendment. But this provided for Gubernatorial elections in years when Presidents are elected, contrary to the best opinion among students of the proposal who called for such elections in off years when national issues would not enter to complicate the State issues upon which Governors and other State officers should be elected.

Governor Smith went on the stump in opposition to the proposed amendment when it came up for ratification at the polls and convinced the voters that it should be scrapped.

Subsequently he urged that the proposal be submitted again, with provision for Gubernatorial elections in off years, as urged by him in messages to the Legislature. This demand which now has been renewed by his successor, the Republican leaders of the Legislature ignored, professing to accept the defeat of their own proposal as evidence that the people of the State were opposed to having Governors elected for four years.

Governor Reiterates Views.

Governor Roosevelt declared today what he already had set forth in his message that he was not in accord with this interpretation but insistent that the voters should have their opportunity to vote on the Democratic proposal. If a popular referendum is submitted he wants the question put to the voters to embody the proposal in the Democratic form, "Are you in favor of electing governors for four years, with elections held in political off years? Answer yes or no."

"In the event that the Republicans should consent to submission of the question without mention of the time when elections should be held, would that be agreeable to you?" the Governor was asked.

"No," he replied; "I would be opposed to it. That would not be a fair way to submit it. The voters have had their chance to vote on the proposal with elections fixed for Presidential years, now they should be given an opportunity to vote for it with elections fixed for off years. That would be conclusive and we would know where we stand."

"Are you prepared to make a campaign in the Fall when Assembly members are elected, with a view to bringing about the election of an Assembly friendly to your proposal?" was asked.

"I certainly am," the Governor replied.

"It would mean then that this would be the dominant issue in the Assembly elections this Fall?"

"I do not know that it would be the dominant issue, but it would be one of the important issues," was the Governor's reply.

Smith's Appeal Recalled.

The Republicans contend that the defeat of the proposed four-year term amendment to the State constitution in the form they submitted it was conclusive evidence that the people did not want Governors to serve so long.

Furthermore, they say that this conclusion was borne out last year when Governor Smith made a State-wide radio appeal with a view to having pressure brought to bear on the legislative leaders of the Republican party in favor of the Democratic version of the four-year term amendment and only a surprisingly small number responded, and among these no one of any particular prominence in either the Republican or the Democratic party.

Hence they feel that they would be on pretty safe ground in resisting the Governor's demand. They point also to the election of Governor Roosevelt in a Presidential year, when the most popular Democrat in the State, running for President, went down to defeat, as evidence that the voters know how to discriminate and are not confused by the injection of national issues.

They insist that the four-year term itself is the only important question involved and the question of when elections should be held merely a collateral issue, deeply tinged with politics, the Democrats demanding off-year elections, because in off years the turnout of voters in the rural sections of the State, where the Republicans have their principal strength, is very small, in proportion to the vote that comes out in New York City and other cities, where the Democrats are strong.

Clubs Will Be Retained.

Governor Roosevelt, as Assistant Secretary of the Navy during the years of the World War, learned to appreciate the importance of preparing for war in times of peace and is applying that knowledge at the Capitol. He made it known today that the large number of Roosevelt-Lehman clubs that were organized throughout the State during the campaign would be perpetuated as Democratic clubs.

This is a move incidental to the drive now being made for the upbuilding of the Democratic strength up-State in time for the Assembly campaign next Fall, but the fact that these clubs might lend themselves readily to the Governor as agencies through which pressure can be brought to bear on Republican lawmakers from up-State districts in any impending struggle between the Democratic Chief Executive and the Republican Legislature is not being overlooked.

That is clear especially, in the light of other measures taken by the Democratic State Committee under the Governor's leadership for the establishment of the principal headquarters of the State Committee and a Democratic publicity bureau at the Capitol, to supply up-State newspapers with trustworthy news of what the Democratic Governor and the Republican Legislature are doing.

Thus there is a distinct prospect that Governor Roosevelt in any coming fight will have at his command forces which did not show on the firing line at any time in the protracted conflict between his Democratic predecessor and the Republican Legislatures of the latter's regime.

John G. Duffy, it was announced tonight, would be appointed head of the Democratic bureau of publicity at the Capitol, with a number of assistants, indicating that the publicity work is to be carried out on a scale of great magnitude. Mr. Duffy for ten years has been executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce in Utica, where M. William Bray, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, resides.

Governor Sees Leaders.

The Republican legislative leaders today had their first conference with the new Governor. Routine matters relating to the presentation of the Executive budget were discussed. Lieut. Gov. Lehman, Senate Leader John Knight, Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies of the Assembly, Eberly Hutchinson, chairman of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee; Maurice Bloch, Democratic leader of the lower house, and A. Miner Wellman and Fred B. Hammond, clerks of the Senate and Assembly respectively, attended.

The general verdict of the Republicans was that Governor Roosevelt would be easier to get along with than his predecessor. They found his manner very pleasing. Where Governor Smith had been in the habit of submitting to them plans worked out in advance, inviting them to "begin shooting," Mr. Roosevelt had presented the problem and asked them to help work out a solution. They commented also on his ready grasp of every proposition involved in the discussion.

Strike at Republicans.

Governor Roosevelt has already pledged himself to seek no personal or partisan advantage through the performance of the duties in the Governor's office. Democrats at the Capitol today accused the Republicans of attempting to take advantage of the Governor's willingness to subordinate his own personal and political interests to the common good of the State.

One instance, they said, was their promulgation of a legislative program of their own, anticipating a good many recommendations contained in the annual message before this had been presented, and they pointed to a joint statement issued by Senator Knight and Speaker McGinnies today announcing a conference on tax relief measures with the farmers when the agricultural societies of the State hold their meetings here on Jan. 16 as another instance.

Women
NEW YORK

An announcement of an accomplishment

TOWERING twenty-eight stories above the city streets, a building is nearing completion. It is, properly speaking, more than a building—it is a monument. A monument to the courage, determination and vision of American women.

To this building should now be directed the attention of every woman in New York who is seeking an exceptional place to live. Here—at the new Club-House of the American Woman's Association, 353 West 57th Street—is your home, constructed to fulfil the needs and enrich the life of the busy New York woman. Charming bedrooms, each with bath. Great lounging rooms, with chairs grouped before huge fireplaces. Intimate little drawing rooms. A lovely, spacious fountain court for tea. A completely equipped library. Sun parlors. Gymnasium and swimming pool. Roof gardens. A ballroom. Shops. Beauty specialists . . . . . .

On January 5th one entire sleeping floor will be thrown open for public inspection. Rooms ranging in price from $10-$24 per week ($10-$15 rooms reserved for those who are or become members) may be seen, completely and charmingly furnished.

Come in tomorrow. You will be most welcome.

ROSOFF'S RAILROAD COST HIM $1,000,000

Delaware & Northern, 50 Miles Long, to Be Extended to Tap Coal Region.

OWNER A SUBWAY BUILDER

His New Line Lies in Part on Land Which City May Acquire for a Reservoir.

In 1900 a youthful candy "butcher" on the New York Central Railroad heard a passenger remark, "And keep on keeping on, for you are judged by the record you make, not by your ability to make a record."

Yesterday the erstwhile candy "butcher" and newsboy, Samuel R. Rosoff, subway builder and contractor, took over the management of a railroad in Delaware County, N. Y., the Delaware & Northern Railroad. The road has no more than fifty miles of track, running between East Branch and Arkville, but Mr. Rosoff plans to run it into the anthracite country of Pennsylvania and build up a coal traffic.

Mr. Rosoff was reached over the telephone last night at Margaretsville, N. Y., and was asked if he was arranging to buy the small road.

"I took title the first of the year," he replied. "The road began operating today under the new management."

Mr. Rosoff said that he paid "something less than a million dollars" for the short line, but he said it was a "good speculation." He bought the line, which had been in the hands of the receivers for years, at 10 cents on the dollar. The value of the road was estimated at about a million dollars.

Tracks on Reservoir Project.

A little less than two-thirds of the Delaware & Northern's trackage is on land which may be acquired by New York City for the large reservoir projected along the east branch of the Delaware River. The city has drawn up plans for this project, but these are awaiting an opinion as to the right of the city to dam the river branch. It was reported yesterday that John W. Davis, who was retained by the Board of Estimate to determine whether the Delaware River might be used as an additional source of water supply, had reached a decision favorable to the city. Charles E. Hughes, retained at the same time as Mr. Davis, is expected to give the city a formal answer soon.

"The water supply project had nothing to do with my buying the property," said Mr. Rosoff. "It's a good speculation. I expect to operate into the coal country and make some money."

If the city should carry through the dam project it would have to buy about nineteen miles of the road's property. In this event Mr. Rosoff would be obliged to detour his trackage. He said last night that he was not planning any action along this line and that such matters usually took a long time to mature. If the city bought part of his right of way he would swing his road in another direction, he said.

Rosoff Called Sole Buyer.

Mr. Rosoff was said to be the sole purchaser. This obviates approval of the Public Service Commission. So far as could be learned the city obtained no option on the road. Such action, it was said, could not be taken on a project as indefinite as the one under consideration.

If Mr. Rosoff should undertake any part of the contract of building the East Branch Reservoir, the road would be of great value in transporting materials. Building of the reservoir is part of the $272,587,000 project for a new series of water supply works in Delaware County. The new system would give the city an additional supply of 600,000,000 gallons of water daily.

At present Mr. Rosoff's road operates one train daily each way with a gasoline engine. There is very little passenger traffic. The equipment includes about sixty pieces of rolling stock.

Mr. Rosoff was born in Minsk, Russia, and came here with his family at the age of 12. He sold newspapers and did odd jobs at first and later drifted into the granite business and eventually became a contractor. His firm bid $4,600,000 for construction of a section of the Washington Heights subway.

MACMILLAN ACCLAIMS BYRD'S EXPEDITION

At Philadelphia He Calls It the "Greatest Exploration Ever Attempted by an American."

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 3.—Great interest in Commander Byrd's expedition to the Antarctic, which he declared "the greatest exploration ever attempted by an American," was expressed by Commander Donald B. MacMillan, polar explorer, who is in Philadelphia lecturing before the Geographic Society of this city.

"I have read every line of the stories coming up by radio. I find them the most interesting news being published nowadays, to me, at any rate," he said.

"The radio certainly is a marvelous aid to explorers. It helps to keep up the morale of the men. You know, one of the principal annoyances when shut in for the Winter is seeing too much of the same thing and hearing the same voices too often. Men simply talk themselves and each other out.

"The radio certainly has changed that. Last Winter in Labrador we heard concerts from home every night, got the time signals, heard returns of all the big boxing bouts, received news broadcasts, and many of the men even heard voices of members of their own families. One man in our expedition heard his little girl talk every Thursday night.

"Commander Byrd's expedition should prove of invaluable aid to science. He will fly over uncharted lands and seas. He will undoubtedly succeed in mapping large areas never before known to man."

DOCTOR SAYS HERRICK WILL QUIT BED TODAY

Ambassador Is Fast Recovering From Bronchial Attack—Paris Voices Gratification.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 3 (AP).—Myron T. Herrick, Ambassador to France, was well on the road to recovery tonight from an attack of asthmatic influenza.

Dr. John Phillips, who has been attending the veteran diplomat since he experienced a sudden sinking spell early yesterday morning, promised Mr. Herrick he would be allowed to rise from his sick bed and move about his estate at Gates Mills by tomorrow.

The Ambassador has been making steady improvement, Dr. Phillips said, and has been spending his time reading, listening to the radio and eating heartily.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 3.—News of the pronounced improvement in the condition of Ambassador Herrick was received in France today with great relief. Yesterday's dispatches reported Mr. Herrick as fighting for his life and because of his advanced age his friends here feared he would not pull through.

Norman Armour, Chargé d'Affaires at the American Embassy, issued the following statement this afternoon:

"The American Embassy this morning received several telegrams from Mr. Parmely Herrick, son of the Ambassador, reporting a very decided improvement in his father's condition. The last telegram stated that the Ambassador probably will sail on Jan. 12."

The embassy again was besieged with inquiries, and from government officials, members of the diplomatic corps and a host of other friends of the Ambassador, the embassy received expressions of sympathy and hope that Mr. Herrick will now be able to carry out his original plan of sailing on Jan. 12 to resume his post.

CROAT HEADS WILL SEE KING

Coalition Instructs Matchek and Pribitchevitch for Audience.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, Jan. 3.—Dr. Matchek and Sevetozar Pribitchevitch, the Croat Peasant and Democrat leaders in Zagreb, have received telegrams from King Alexander's Court Chamberlain summoning them to audiences with the King. Dr. Matchek will be received tomorrow morning and M. Pribitchevitch tomorrow afternoon.

A special sitting of the Croat Peasant-Democrat coalition this afternoon fixed the final instructions for its two presidents, who left tonight for Belgrade. The demonstrations expected at Zagreb on this occasion have not occurred.

In Belgrade the King's consultations with party leaders continued all day.

SAO PAULO LACKS WATER.

Siphons Break on Delivery System Creating Shortage for City.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAO PAULO, Jan. 3.—The City of Sao Paulo is suffering from a water shortage, which resulted from two breaks in the siphons. Feverish efforts are being made to repair them. New installations were begun recently, to provide for future demands.

The present shortage of water has resulted in a peculiar incident. Candida Fernandes, weary of life, determined to commit suicide. She left the house and went to the canal, and jumped in. But the low water had reduced the level of the canal, making the act of suicide difficult. Senhora Candida's husband went looking for her. He pulled her out and carried her to the police station.

TO AID ITALIA INQUIRY.

Norwegian Professor and Swedish Captain Accept Rome's Invitations.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 3.—Dr. Adolf Hoel of the University of Oslo, has accepted an invitation of the Italian Government to join an official commission which will investigate the Italia tragedy of last Summer. He will leave for Rome tomorrow.

Dr. Hoel is one of Norway's foremost authorities on Spitsbergen and the polar regions.

Captain Einar Lundborg, the Swedish aviator who reached General Nobile, also has been invited to testify at the Italian inquiry and will leave for Rome within a few days.

Rangers and Pittsburgh Play 2-2 Overtime Tie Before 8,000 on Garden Ice

PIRATE SIX PLAYS RANGERS TO 2-2 TIE

New Yorkers Gain Deadlock by Scoring Twice in 3d Period Before 8,000 in Garden.

CROWD WILD OVER RALLY

With Rangers Trailing, 2-0, Keeling and Thompson Score in Quick Succession to Even Count.

By GROVER THEIS.

Unleashing a raging attack in the third period last night, the world's champion Rangers gained a 2-2 tie with the Pittsburgh Pirates after having trailed during the first two periods at Madison Square Garden before a crowd of 8,000.

Les Patrick's men came to life with a suddenness that left the fans gasping and the confident Pirates were swept aside with vigor, even if the Rangers' attack did not bring victory.

After Tex White and Hal Darragh had scored for the Yellow Jackets in the first and second periods respectively making it look dark for the blue shirts, Butch Keeling and Paul Thompson dashed through the Pirates in the third period and in a little more than two minutes had nullified the advantage of the Benny Leonard team.

It was a blinding attack that the Rangers uncorked in that third period and the spectators saw the champions at their best. Although the New York team maintained a fast pace in the overtime period they could not penetrate the Pirate defense. When the saves were added up they showed fifty for John Ross Roach and thirty-seven for Joe Miller.

Paul Whiteman put up his trophy for the individual point scorer for the present season and then the action started. Bill Cook stole the disk in middle ice from three Pirates and made a drive that looked like a sure goal, but he skidded and fell. Immediately afterwards he and Boucher made a sortie against Joe Miller, but the visiting goalie came out of the net and fended off the shot.

Cotton Draws First Penalty.

The first penalty came when the period was half over and the Pirates were making a vicious drive on Roach. As the players clashed around the Ranger net, Cotton was sent off for hooking. Hardly had the excitement subsided when Drury was sent off for slashing. With the opposition down to four men the Rangers tried their utmost, but to no avail.

Finally, after a Ranger drive on Miller, Tex White, a Pirate reserve, broke loose from the Rangers and put over the first score of the game by a beautiful solo dash in 17.05. He got the disk in centre ice, fooled the Ranger defense neatly and pulled Roach to one side, switching the disk sidewise to graze the goalie's pads.

Bill Cook opened the second period with a daring thrust at Miller, but the goalie was equal to it. Recovering the disk the Pirates drove back at Roach, and Frederickson had a fine position for a shot right in front of the goal. Roach set himself in time and made a good save.

Pirates Make Second Goal.

Hardly had the Rangers taken the disk back to centre ice before Frederickson stole the disk and the second Pirate score went in in 2:22 when Darragh took a pass from Rogers Smith. The pair forged into Ranger territory and after a succession of short passes the shot went over Roach's shoulder.

As the Rangers strove to get into striking distance, Bun Cook was sent off for two minutes for holding. Ranger reserves came out in a hurry and Murray Murdock and Butch Keeling combined for several assaults that almost connected. Meanwhile, the Pirates showed a great passing game that had the Rangers at bay.

Just before the period ended Thompson and Murdock made a great sally on Miller, but he outwitted them. The saves for the period were Roach 11; Miller 12.

For the second time in recent games the lights went dim as the third period started and play was suspended a few moments after the opening of the third session.

When action was resumed the Rangers carried the play desperately into the Pirate territory but to no avail. Once the Pirates got the disk away, Frederickson and Cotton set forth for the Ranger net and Frederickson all but counted on a rebound from Cotton.

Bun Cook was sent off for charging. When he got back on the ice he made his presence felt as he and Keeling dashed forth and got one of the tallies back as Keeling took Bun's rebound and shot a Ranger goal in 7:08. It was a daring play, with the Rangers going at full tilt.

The excitement caused by this goal had scarcely passed before Paul Thompson and Murray Murdock broke away and evened the count in 9.52, Thompson getting the goal.

Rangers Press Attack.

The Rangers went ahead at full steam and had the Yellow Jackets completely bewildered, while the crowd went wild, throwing newspapers out on the ringsiders and cheering themselves hoarse.

With only two minutes to go, Keeling was sent off for cross-checking and the Rangers finished the furious action with one man shy.

As the overtime got under way Oatman got free on one occasion and carried the disk up to the mouth of the Pirate net in a brilliant dash and nearly put his own rebound past Miller.

Except for occasional drives defensive play prevailed, though Cotton gave Roach a great deal to worry about as he took a pass from Milks and sent a sizzler at the Rangers' goalie.

Shore Makes Only Goal of Contest—Stewart Draws Major Penalty and Fine of $50.

CANADIENS-OTTAWA TIE, 1-1

Clancy and Leduc Score in First Period—Toronto Sextet Defeats Chicago, 2 to 0.

MONTREAL, Jan. 3 (Canadian Press).—Penalties proved costly to the Montreal Maroons here tonight in their National Hockey League game against the Boston Bruins, and the visitors skated off the ice after sixty minutes of thrilling hockey with a 1-to-0 victory.

The only goal of the game was scored by Eddie Shore, Boston defense man, in the second period when the locals were short, Stewart and Hicks, both of whom were doing time in the penalty box. Stewart was serving a major penalty for having cracked Gainor over the head with his stick, and after the game, the Montreal left winger was fined $50 for passing several uncomplimentary remarks to Referee O'Leary as the latter skated off the ice.

The Bruins were hard pressed in the final session to protect their slim margin when the Maroons unleashed their most dangerous offensive of the game. With the aid of sterling work by Thompson, their goalie, the visitors managed to hang on until the final bell.

Canadiens and Ottawa Tie, 1-1.

OTTAWA, Jan. 3 (AP).—The Montreal Canadiens and Ottawa Senators, hockey's oldest rivals, hooked up here tonight in a sensational National League encounter before 6,000 roaring fans and after 70 minutes of fast hockey two tired teams trailed off the ice with the count deadlocked at 1-1.

Both goals were registered near the end of the first period. Ottawa scored first when Clancy caught Hainsworth napping with only a minute to go. Within 30 seconds, however, Leduc evened the count when he rammed Joliat's rebound behind Goalie Connell.

Toronto Beats Chicago, 2-0.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3 (AP).—The Chicago Black Hawks dropped their third straight National League hockey game tonight, falling before a superior band of passing and checking by the speedy Toronto Maple Leafs. The score was 2 to 0.

Bill Carson counted the first Toronto score after eleven minutes of play in the second period, taking a pass across the ice from Ace Bailey. The third period was only two minutes old when Andy Blair, the 20-year old Toronto rookie, flashed down the centre of the ice on a four-man combination, took the disk from Bailey and beat Gardiner with a hard drive.

CONTRACTS MAILED BY NEW YORK CLUBS

Giants, Yanks and Robins Start Annual Round-Up for Coming Campaign.

BUSY TASK FACES McGRAW

Roush Lone Holdover From 1928—Eight Yankee Stars in Fold—Vance to Seek Advance.

By JOHN DREBINGER.

The period of Yuletide cheer having expired, Greater New York's major league baseball clubs returned yesterday to the more prosaic affairs of life and within the next few days some hundred or more athletes will know in hard, cold figures what their respective clubs think they are worth, for the time has arrived for the mailing of contracts, and if any one believes this is not a very serious piece of business, at least to the athletes, he has never made the personal acquaintance of a ball player.

Secretary Jim Tierney of the Giants and Secretary Ed Barrow of the Yanks sent the important documents on their way in the mails yesterday, and Secretary John Gorman of the Robins will do likewise within a day or two. All three secretaries announced that the figures in the contracts have been written in a large, bold hand; but even so, it is feared that some of the athletes will experience difficulty in making them out. For this is the one time in the year when ball players have no compunction about complaining of failing eyesight.

Roush Sole Giant Holdover.

To the Giants will fall the task this Spring of rounding up their entire squad, with the exception of one player. He is Ed Roush, whose present contract still has one more year to run. The contracts of all the others, however, expired last Fall, so that all of last season's players, along with the newcomers on the roster, will have to sign new ones between now and the beginning of the training campaign.

As has always been the case in the Giants' affairs, John McGraw was the chief consulting engineer in drawing up the Giant contracts, and with this laborious task now out of the way McGraw announced yesterday he was ready to take his annual vacation in Havana. He will sail tomorrow.

The task of the Yankees will be a trifle lighter this Spring, for though they have thirty-five players on the roster, eight of these have holdover contracts. What is even more important, some of the most outstanding players on the club are included in the eight.

Holdovers of the Yankees.

The holdovers are Lou Gehrig, whose contract still has two more seasons to go; Babe Ruth, Earl Combs, Waite Hoyt, Mark Koenig, Tony Lazzeri, Herb Pennock and Wilcy Moore, all of whom have one more year to run on their present figures. The Yanks, therefore, are not looking forward to any serious holdouts marring an otherwise pleasant stay at St. Petersburg this Spring.

In the Dodger camp every one on the roster will have to sign a new contract, as the Robins' board of directors adopted a rule two years ago to issue no more contracts beyond a one-year term. The last holdover Robin contract was Dazzy Vance's three-year document, which expired last Spring.

Vance, incidentally, is expected to provide the only Robin problem this year. Last season Vance received $20,000, and though this gained him the distinction of being the highest salaried pitcher in his league, it is reasonably certain he will demand another substantial increase on the strength of the recent official records for 1928, which revealed him as the top-ranking hurler in the National League.

On good authority it is learned that the Brooklyn directors already have voted to give Vance an increase, but whether it will meet the approval of the Dazzler, who is known as a shrewd business man well able to drive a hard bargain, probably will remain a secret until the Robins report at Clearwater.

Giants Part With Ray Foley.

Just before the Giant contracts were mailed yesterday, one prospective McGrawman had his mind eased without further ado. He was Ray Foley, former Catholic University outfielder, who was sold to the Bridgeport club.

With McGraw busy packing his grips, preparatory to sailing for Cuba tomorrow, even the die-hards, who have been positive for weeks the Giant pilot would swing a deal, are beginning to concede that McGraw intends to stand pat on what he has. McGraw still admits he would like to fall heir to a right-handed pitcher, but thus far has not been successful in talking any rival manager out of one.

Still, it will be recalled that it was on the eve of lighting out for Cuba a year ago that McGraw amazed the baseball world by shipping Rogers Hornsby to Boston. He might have a jolt or two for the experts within the next twenty-four hours.

In the Yankee camp, Secretary Barrow frankly admits that Manager Huggins has been stymied in all attempts to swing a deal. All negotiations with various American League clubs are off, so unless an unexpected change sets in the Yanks will have to seek their fourth straight pennant with what they have.

SMEATON HAS BROKEN LEG.

Referee Found to Have Fractured Fibula in Tuesday's Hockey Game.

It was announced last night at the Garden by Les Patrick, manager of the Rangers, that Cooper Smeaton, chief referee of the National Hockey League, had broken the fibula of his left leg in the rush of Canadien and American players which spilled him in the second period of Tuesday night's game at the Garden.

The break is about the same as Ching Johnson suffered earlier in the season in Montreal. Incidentally the injured Johnson was a spectator at last night's game.

The injury to Smeaton will keep him out of the game as an official for at least six weeks, it was said. Fans and players united last night in expressing their admiration of the official's courage in finishing the game on his skates. Smeaton is now at the Waldorf-Astoria but expects to leave for Montreal today.

Ruth Starts Workouts in Gymnasium; Weighs 234½ but Seems in Fine Form

Home-Run King Just 15 Pounds Overweight—Insists He Will Be in Majors Five More Years and Opposes 10-Man Team Idea—Physical Marvel, Says Trainer McGovern.

By The Associated Press.

Wham! The little rubber handball, propelled by the swinging southpaw of a big man with a bigger waistline, smacked the end of the court and streaked back.

Wham! Perspiration streamed down his flushed face as he lunged after a low one.

"Think I'm getting too old, hey? or too fat and slow? Watch that one."

Wham!

That's a cross-section of the way Babe Ruth started the new year yesterday with his first workout in preparation for the 1929 baseball campaign. It is the earliest he has begun any systematic training since 1926, when he made his famous come-back.

But to even the most casual observer who watched the Yankee slugger go through an hour's workout under the direction of his physical adviser, Artie McGGovern, it was apparent that he is already close to playing condition.

Tips Scales at 234½ Pounds.

Ruth tipped the scales at exactly 234½ pounds. This is some fifteen pounds from his best playing weight, but low enough to testify that his rounds of golf and hunting in the past few weeks have helped keep him in condition. The famous waistline, which has been a matter of national concern on several occasions, is ample but not unusual for the Babe.

Between vicious swipes at the handball and growls at the trainer massaging his girth, Ruth grew a bit indignant.

"Did you see that piece in the papers about me fattening up to 250 pounds, being about through and that this would be my last year?" he said. "That's hot stuff, and a fine lot of bunk.

"Say I feel more like a kid than ever. I'm not getting any younger but I will only be 35 next month and I've got a lot of baseball left."

It was recalled to the Babe that three years ago when he actually scaled around 250 and seemed near the end of his career before staging a come-back, he predicted he would still be in the big leagues at 40.

"That gives me five more years, hey? Well, I guess I'm still good for it," was his comment.

Trainer Explains Secret.

The real secret of Ruth's ability to retain good condition in spite of a tendency to take on extra weight quickly, is that he "shows good sense now in the way he lives."

That is the opinion of McGovern, who has kept a watchful eye on the Babe's waist-line for four years.

"Ruth takes better care of himself now than he ever did," said Artie. "He doesn't fill himself up on pie and coffee any more. He exercises the year around and is careful about his diet. He has done it so long now he likes it. He's a physical marvel and I don't see any reason why he shouldn't be good for five years more."

Ruth doesn't think much of the ten-man team proposal under which an extra man would bat for the pitcher, although it has been suggested that such an innovation would give the Babe almost a lifetime job in the majors.

"That would take a real scientific feature away from the game, I think, and spoil a lot of strategy," said Ruth.

"It would make it too tough for the opposing pitcher. He's entitled to at least one break in the line-up but with a regular hitter in there, he would never get a soft spot."

PRINCETON SIX BEATS NICHOLS CLUB, 3 TO 2

Captain Jones Scores All of the Tigers' Goals—Losers Tally in Last 2 Minutes.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 3.—Princeton University defeated the Nichols Hockey Club at the Peace Bridge Arena, 3-2, tonight.

Captain Graham Jones, who tallied all three of his team's counters, opened the scoring after six minutes of the first period. The second session was rather tame, but the storm broke loose in the final chapter. Jones counted in the first minute of this period and boosted the margin to three goals shortly thereafter.

Facing practically a lost cause, the Nichols players threw everything into the attack in the closing minutes and scored two goals in as many minutes.

The line-up:

NEALE TO HELP CARDS.

To Leave for South About Feb. 15, Manager Southworth Says.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 3 (AP).—Billy Southworth, new manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, announced here tonight that Earl (Greasy) Neale, football and baseball coach at the University of Virginia, will be coach of the National League team next season.

Neale will leave for the Cards' training camp at Avon Park, Fla., about Feb. 15 with the advance guard of players, Southworth said, staying at Charlottesville, Va., until that time.

Neale, who formerly played for Cincinnati and Philadelphia, was rumored today to have asked to be relieved of his duties at the university so that he might join some major league team.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3 (AP).—The 1929 Spring training schedule of exhibition games to be played by the Chicago American League baseball team was announced today. Two games are scheduled with the New York Giants, the first to be played on March 30 at Fort Worth, Texas and the second the next day at Dallas.

Other games scheduled with local teams, to be played in all cities listed, include:

Dallas, March 3, 9, 10, 18, 20, 22, 23, 24, 27; Fort Worth, March 13, 16, 17; Wichita Falls, April 5, 6, 7; Dallas, 8; Memphis Tenn., 9; Louisville, Ky., 10; Terra Haute, Ind., 11; Indianapolis, Ind., 12, 13, 14; Springfield, Ill., 15.

FIGHTS MAR HOCKEY GAME.

Four Players Receive Fines as Newark Defeats Providence, 4-1.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 3 (AP).—Scoring three goals in an overtime period, the Newark Bulldogs defeated the Rhode Island Reds, 4 to 1, here tonight in a Canadian-American League hockey game, marred by two fist fights between rival players. Goal tender Murray and Larochelle of Providence and Garipy and Laroche of Newark received major penalties and $10 fines each.

The outbreak followed soon after Wasnie scored Newark's second goal in the extra session. Goal tender Murray dropped his stick and gloves and started a fight with Garipy. Before police could intervene Larochelle and Laroche were also involved.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3 (AP).—Northwestern University today completed its 1929 football schedule by booking a game with Wabash College of Crawfordsville, Ind., for Oct. 26 at Evanston.

CORNELL FIVE BOWS TO MICHIGAN STATE

Is Vanquished by 38-24 After Trailing by 20-13 at Half—Lewis Stars.

Special to The New York Times.

EAST LANSING, Mich., Jan. 3.—Michigan State College scored its second successive basketball victory over an eastern team here tonight, defeating Cornell University, 38 to 24.

The Michigan seconds opened play against Cornell and the Red and White players were leading 7 to 5 when the regulars went into the battle. The visitors could not match the accurate basket shooting of the Michigan regulars, and were behind, 20 to 13, at the end of the first half.

As the game wore on, the Spartans kept adding to their lead. Cornell staged a rally midway in the second period, cutting the home team's lead to seven points again, 26 to 19. The loss of Lewis and Layton, a pair of stars, near the end of the game hampered Cornell. Both went out because of personal fouls. Lewis was the game's leading scorer, with 11 points.

DIETZ TO COACH HASKELL.

Former Carlisle Star Appointed New Football Head.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Jan. 3 (AP).—William H. (Lone Star) Dietz, former Carlisle star, today was appointed head football coach at Haskell Institute, succeeding John W. Thomas, who had resigned. The new Indian mentor last season coached the undefeated Los Angeles Athletic Club eleven and the season before was first assistant to Glenn (Pop) Warner at Stanford University.

Dietz, who is partly Sioux, was a tackle when he played with Carlisle. From 1915 to 1917 he coached Washington State College, winning the Pacific Coast title two of his three seasons and being runner-up the other. In 1918 he coached a team of Mare Island marines, champions of all service elevens. Dietz went to Purdue as head coach in 1921 and the next two seasons he coached Louisiana Polytechnic Institute. From 1924 to 1927 he was coach at the University of Wyoming.

COLGATE COACH IS ILL.

Watkins to Replace Jordan as Director of Five on Trip Here.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Jan. 3.—Because Lloyd Jordan, head coach of basketball at Colgate University, is confined to his bed with influenza, the Maroon court squad will be under the direction of Razor Watkins, freshman basketball coach, when it leaves for New York tonight.

The team will meet Fordham University tomorrow night and New York University on Saturday night.

MOREY TO COACH AT BATES.

To Be in Charge of Football, Baseball and Hockey Teams.

LEWISTON, Me., Jan. 3 (AP).—David Morey, former football coach at Middlebury and Alabama Polytechnic colleges, has accepted the position of head coach of football, baseball and hockey at Bates College, President Clifton D. Gray announced today. He will start on his new duties in September.

Morey, who first attained football fame while at Dartmouth College, now is taking graduate work in physical education at New York University, where he also teaches classes in athletic coaching.

Reed Named Bucknell Line Coach.

Special to The New York Times.

LEWISBURG, Jan. 3.—John Maxwell Reed, former Bucknell centre, has been appointed line coach for the Bucknell University football team, it was announced here today by the Athletic Council. Reed will succeed Uhard Hangartner, who has had charge of the line for the past two seasons.

N. Y. U. FIVE WINS YALE TOURNAMENT

Conquers Georgetown, 32 to 24, to Triumph in Third Annual New Haven Tourney.

YALE DEFEATS HOLY CROSS

Comes From Behind to Score, 34-20, Finishing in Tie for Second Place With Georgetown.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 3.—The New York University quintet tonight defeated Georgetown, 32 to 24, to win the final of the third annual Yale basketball tournament. In the other contest played Yale defeated Holy Cross, 34 to 20, thereby finishing in a tie for second place with the Washington quintet, each having won and lost one game.

The Violet came through the tournament unbeaten, winning both of its starts.

Georgetown, which had won 20 straight games—until beaten by the Crescents last Saturday, was turned back decisively in tonight's opening half, which closed with the New Yorkers ahead by the safe margin of 23 to 8.

A playing order shake-up during the intermission started the Washington quintet on a terrific spurt in the second half and they crashed ahead until the Violet had only a 28 to 24 advantage. N. Y. U. rallied, however, and by stubborn defensive strategy held Georgetown safe while superb scoring shots by Captain Conroy and Nemecek placed their total beyond the danger line.

Conroy and Christenson Star.

Conroy and Christenson played brilliantly during the first half, Christenson caging four field goals, while Conroy flipped two goals from the field and three from the foul line.

Captain Mesmer of Georgetown, eluding the entire New York defense, at the start of the second half in quick succession caged four goals. Shea and Dutton kept up the attack to reduce the Violet's lead and with the outcome in doubt the teams locked into a scoreless grip for seven minutes, during which time the highest quality of basketball for the tournament was displayed.

McCarthy, intercollegiate golf player, played brilliantly both on the defense and offense for Georgetown, while Newblatt's all-around game stood out for New York University.

Blue in Front at Half, 16-8.

Yale to beat Holy Cross came from behind, the Massachusetts players leading for the first five minutes. The Blue quintet led at half time, 16 to 8.

Yale spurted in opening the second half and increased its lead, but Holy Cross displayed a burst of offensive strength late in the half to partially close the gap. Captain Paul Fodder of Yale led both teams in scoring, caging five field goals and two fouls for a total of 12 points.

GEORGIA TECH ELEVEN LEAVES FOR ATLANTA

Victorious Southern Players Depart for Home, Where They Are Due to Arrive Tuesday.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 3 (AP).—Georgia Tech's undefeated and untied football team left San Diego this morning for Atlanta, after spending yesterday afternoon and last night in this city and Tijuana.

The team, which defeated California in Pasadena on New Year's Day, made the trip here in two special buses. Only one stop, a half day at the Grand Canyon, is to be made by the Georgians, who are scheduled to arrive in Atlanta next Tuesday.

C. C. N. Y. to Play St. Stephen's.

A game with the St. Stephen's College has been scheduled for the City College lacrosse team for May 11 at Anandale. In addition to this game contests are being arranged with New York University, Penn State, Brown and three local club teams, including the New Rochelle, Flushing and New York twelves.

Bouts in Pennsylvania Drew $2,140,000 During Past Year

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 3.—Boxing and wrestling drew total receipts of about $2,140,000 in Pennsylvania last year, according to the preliminary figures compiled for the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission by Secretary Robert H. Young. This is calculated from the total of $107,000 collected by the commission in taxes, representing 5 per cent of the gross receipts reported by the forty-one boxing clubs and one wrestling club in the State.

HARVARD IN 0-0 TIE WITH TORONTO SIX

TORONTO MISSES CHANCES

Is Aggressor in Greater Part of Contest but Fails to Account for a Goal.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 3.—Harvard and Toronto played a scoreless tie game at the Arena tonight, the match going ten minutes over time.

In the last ten minutes Holbrook, Tudor and Giddens kept the disk in enemy territory. During most of the time, however, the Canadians were at the Cambridge end of the rink, but were unable to score.

Toronto was faster and had more scoring chances. Paul, Harley and Stewart all speeded through or around the Harvard defense, but could not get the proper range, while for Harvard, Tudor twice was within a few feet of the goal and then missed. Toronto again was the aggressor in the second period keeping the disk at Harvard's end of the rink practically all the time.

At one time H. Bigelow and Batchelder were off the ice, but the other three men massed in front of Jackson and the drive by Paul, Harley and Whitehead availed nothing. Toronto threatened just as often in the scoreless third period.

The line-up:

Toronto (0).		Harvard (0).

Move to Bar Women From Olympic Games Is Launched Here

WOULD BAR WOMEN FROM THE OLYMPICS

Miss Perrin at Women's Division Meeting, N. A. A. F., Charges Athletes Are Exploited.

OTHERS ENDORSE HER STAND

One Speaker Deplores Physical Effect on Girls—Action on Proposal is Delayed.

Opposition to the participation of women in the 1932 Olympic Games was launched yesterday at the opening of the fifth annual meeting of the Women's Division of the National Amateur Athletic Federation at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

Miss Ethel Perrin, chairman of the executive committee and staff associate of the American Child Health Association, led the opposition and offered a threefold plan for the consideration of the division with the 1932 Olympic Games, which are to be held in Los Angeles, definitely in view. Miss Perrin disapproved of the participation of girl athletes in the games because of the specialization which is entailed in the selection and training of a team and also because of what she termed the exploitation of the athletes, leaving little time for mass competition in athletics, which is favored by the women's division.

"The making and breaking of records has become so tied up with athletics that play for play's sake has been quite lost sight of," Miss Perrin asserted in presenting her suggestions to the 250 present at the meeting, which will continue sessions until noon tomorrow. "We can set ourselves as opposed to an American women's team and we could go forth to do battle against it as crusaders, with the hope of having it abolished in 1932."

Another Proposal Offered.

One other possibility suggested by Miss Perrin was that the Women's Division of the National Amateur Athletic Federation could seek to be included in the planning and running of the women's Olympic games and teams and, if successful, the organization could endeavor to have the policies of its platform carried out. The third part of the plan suggested an educational campaign to keep the girls now in schools and colleges, and all girls of this age, from training for possible selection and participation in the 1932 Olympic Games.

Other speakers at the meeting supported the opposition to participation in the games, but no definite action was taken. It is expected that before the meeting adjourns tomorrow a vote will be taken on the suggestions made by Miss Perrin. Practically all of those who spoke voiced objections to girls taking part in "highly competitive" athletic contests. The general aim of the organization, it was pointed out, is: "Athletic competition for girls and women—more, rather than less, but of the right kind."

Miss Bunting Disagrees.

Miss Helen Bunting of Stanford University took issue with the majority and expressed herself in favor with that part of Miss Perrin's plan which suggested that the organization seek to be included in the planning and running of the games. The United States must be the hostess to the other nations, Miss Bunting declared. There are hundreds of girls competing in Olympics, the Californian pointed out, and the vital thing is organization, supervision and conduct of the games. She urged better dressing facilities and adequate medical examinations to safeguard health.

Miss Bunting characterized the objections as "largely due to prejudice." She asked for an international point of view on the question and said: "I'd like to feel that our organization has a contribution to make toward international friendliness."

Miss Agnes R. Wayman, head of the department of physical education at Barnard College, presided at the meeting in the morning when the objections were brought to the attention of the gathering. She explained that the organization did not disapprove of competition, but did object to highly intense inter-school or inter-group competition, especially where there are no safeguards.

Deplores Strain on Girls.

Miss Helen McKinstry, director of the Central School of Hygiene and Physical Education, New York City, said that she had been told that persons abroad were shocked at the strain the girl athletes underwent in the Olympic Games at Amsterdam. It was the belief abroad, she declared, that it was "outrageous trying to make women pseudo-men."

The women's division has protected girls against "false standards, over-strain, copying boys' athletics and rules and standards totally unsuited to a girl's biological make-up," Miss Signe Hagelthorne said in her discussion. Miss Hagelthorne is associate professor of physical education, New York University, School of Education. The women's division, she said, has also sought to abolish varsity competitions in colleges and schools and substitute intra-mural programs.

A letter from Mrs. Herbert Hoover, vice chairman of the board of directors and organizer of the women's division, was read. The letter, written on board the U. S. S. Maryland, expressed Mrs. Hoover's regret at being unable to be present at the meeting.

Proper clothing for women athletes was discussed by Miss Mabel Lee, director, department of physical education for women, University of Nebraska. She declared her opposition to short track pants and sleeveless blouses and jerseys. The Nebraska University girls, she said, wear black flannel knickers that are not as full as bloomers and black cotton stockings that come above the knees.

Urges a Definite Stand.

N. P. Neilson, chief of the division of health and physical education of the State Department of Education of California, suggested that the organization work out a definite program on the subject of the participation of women in Olympic Games and that it have an unanimity of opinion on the subject. He suggested that it then educate the Olympic committee of California and the A. A. U. on this program.

The women's division of the National Amateur Athletic Federation was organized in April, 1923, following a conference in Washington on athletics and physical recreation for girls and women, called by Mrs. Herbert Hoover. In adopting its platform at the first annual meeting in Chicago in 1924, the organization expressed itself as in favor of the spirit of play for its own sake, and for the promotion of physical activity for the largest possible proportion of persons in any given group, in forms suitable to individual needs and capacities, under leadership and environmental conditions that foster health, physical efficiency and the development of good citizenship.

The sponsors of the Women's Division include the American Child Health Association, the Jewish Welfare Board, the Girls' Scout organization, the National Association of Deans of Women, the American Physical Education Association, the Playground and Recreation Association of America, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the National Council of Catholic Women, the National Information Bureau, the Y. W. C. A. National Board, the Camp Fire Association, the National Congress of Parent-Teachers. The division has 675 members, consisting of individuals, colleges, universities and organizations.

The women's division held its fifth annual dinner at the Pennsylvania last evening. Colonel Henry Breckinridge, president of the national federation, was toastmaster. Dr. John H. Finley in an address complimented the division on its aims, as did Mrs. Frederick Edey, national chairman of the field department of the Girl Scouts, Miss Blanche Trilling and John R. Tunis.

DISCOUNT EFFECT OF PROTEST.

Kirby and Other Officials Think Program Will Be Carried Out.

Olympic and A. A. U. leaders expressed opinions yesterday that opposition by the Women's Division of the National Amateur Athletic Federation to the participation of women athletes in the 1932 Olympic Games would have no effect on the games and that this branch of the games would be held as scheduled.

"I do not think it will have any effect in the least," said Gustavus T. Kirby, past president of the American Olympic Committee and this year chairman of the Committee on the Olympic Games. "There are tens of thousands of girls who demand the right of competition and they are going to get it. The matter was discussed very carefully by the International Amateur Athletic Federation at Amsterdam. Some thought that the events were perhaps too strenuous but statistics showed that the competition of girls and women had no bad effect, with due consideration to their condition at the time.

"Tennis and golf are approved of. What about Olympic fencing? That's all right, they say, yet they have to strain just as much as if they were in a dash, high jump or other event."

Murray Hulbert, who was president of the A. A. U. during the Olympic Games and the American representative on the International Amateur Athletic Federation, said the effect of the disapproval is a matter of conjecture.

"Participation of women in athletics is recognized by all international sports governing bodies," he said. "To what extent women participate in athletics depends upon women themselves. The A. A. U. has been keeping in step with progress and has allowed women the same opportunity as men to compete. Of course they are limited to certain events, and must pass a physical examination. It was on my motion that the 800-meter run was eliminated from the Olympic program for women.

"The international committee put track and field sports for women on the 1928 program and they have also been recommended for the 1932 program. The Women's Division of the National Amateur Athletic Federation has lately set itself up as a rival of the A. A. U."

Daniel J. Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U. and a member of the American Olympic Committee, was outspoken in his comment.

"This is a reiteration of what they said before," he declared. "They did not give us any assistance in the past and perhaps we can't expect it this year. They have no control over anybody. The United States will be represented as it always is."

Frederick W. Rubien, who was secretary of the American Olympic Committee, said he did not think the opposition would have any effect on the games.

FISHER REAPPOINTS WIENER

Named Member of State Athletic Board by Pennsylvania Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 3.—Frank Wiener of Philadelphia was reappointed by Governor Fisher today to a two-year term as a member of the State Athletic Commission. Wiener is chairman of the commission, which supervises boxing and wrestling in Pensylvania, and it is expected he will be re-elected as head by his colleagues at the annual meeting to be held in the Finance Building here next Wednesday.

"I am very glad to be reappointed," said Wiener at his office, "and I will make every effort to keep boxing on a high plane and do everything possible to make all connected with the game live up to the rules and regulations."

REID VICTOR BY DECISION.

Outpoints Brown in 8-Round Bout at 102d Medical Armory.

Stanley Reid, 140, gained the decision from Mickey Brown, 136½, in the feature eight-round bout at the 102d Medical Regiment Armory last night. In the semi-final Billy Henderson, 145, knocked out Walter Handel, 145, in the fifth round.

In a scheduled six-round bout Charles Handsford, 136½, stopped Teddy Anderson, 138, in the fifth round; Buster Moore, 122, knocked out Georgie Carroll, 123, in the fifth round of a six-rounder, and Timmy Quinn, 115, defeated Pete Filo, 111, in six rounds.

Boxers Knock Out Each Other In 19th Round of Tampa Bout

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 3 (AP).—Billy Long of Philadelphia and Al Trout, Cleveland, negro middleweights, agreed to a finish fight here last night and it was that. They simultaneously delivered a knockout blow to each other in the nineteenth round. Lashing out at the same time, Long took a blow on the chin and Trout one in the midsection and the referee counted ten and could have tolled many more before they were up again. They had met several times previously and fought to six draws.

WIDE ARRIVES HERE; COMES AS OBSERVER

To Spend Seven Months in This Country Making Study of Public School System.

WILL COMPETE ON TRACK

Swedish Star Says He Needs Five Weeks to Get Into Shape—Nurmi Applies for Registration.

Edwin Wide, Swedish track star and world's record holder, arrived in the United States yesterday on a business mission and that business is not foot-racing. Wide, who holds a government position as one of the heads of the school gymnasium department in Sweden, will spend the next seven months in the United States studying our public school system in various municipalities, and will incidentally make observations for the Swedish track body in regard to conditions under which the Swedish athletes will have to compete in the 1932 Olympic games at Los Angeles.

However, Wide intends permitting his track observation to be a bit more than a passive one, since he stated unequivocally that he would certainly don his track shoes in competition in the United States before he sails for his homeland on July 26. When and where he will run has not been decided, as Wide's plans are still vague and indefinite.

At any rate, the Swedish schoolmaster will not race before the middle of February, if that soon. He admitted that he had not run since the Swedish championship meet on Aug. 22 and that it would take him at least five weeks to get into satisfactory condition.

May Run in Millrose Games.

This will preclude any possibility of his competing before the Millrose A. A. games at Madison Square Garden on Feb. 9, the first of the feature meets of the season, and if Wide's allowance of five weeks for getting into condition is not a generous one, he may not be in shape for that meet either.

In setting five weeks as his minimum training time Wide evidently took into consideration the fact that he expects to do quite a bit of traveling and that the keen edge he will acquire in training cannot be sustained riding around the country.

Even his stay in New York will be of short duration. He intends leaving for Washington within ten days and then may journey on to Chicago and eventually Los Angeles, stopping at points en route. Wide's limited knowledge of English made it difficult for him to reveal what plans he has already decided upon. He intimated very strongly that New York will be the scene of most of his competitive efforts.

Little difficulty is expected in gaining the permission of the Amateur Athletic Union to run in America, since the Swedish star bears Grade A credentials from the Svenska Idrottsförbundet, the Swedish athletic governing body. His mission is explained in his credentials and none of the unpleasantness which attended his visit in 1927 is looked for.

Bride Accompanies Runner.

Accompanying him is his bride of two weeks, a pretty Swedish miss, the former Alexandria Andersen, whom he married in Paris. Wide's knowledge of English has not improved much since his last visit, and practically all of the information he gave was relayed through an interpreter.

Wide did not reveal where he would train while in New York. One of his bags bore the tag "Edwin Wide, Newark Athletic Club, Newark, N. J.," where he lived and trained during his last trip. However, he is more likely to place himself under the tutelage of Ernie Hjertberg, who coached the Swedish Olympic team in 1912. In 1927 Wide was handled by Carl Anderson of the Newark A. C. Wide spent yesterday in New York. He will report at A. A. U. headquarters tomorrow and will spend at least part of the day visiting friends in Jersey.

The calm gray eyes of the Swedish schoolmaster flashed fire when the word "professional" was used by one of his interviewers. He burst forth in a voluble flow of Swedish. Although unintelligible to his interviewers, there was no mistaking what he was saying. When he quieted down long enough for his interpreter to say a few words, it was reported that Wide scorned professional foot-racing and would never be other than an amateur.

He was jocularly asked what he thought of Nurmi's boast of breaking every record of "100 yards to 100 miles," Wide laughed heartily at the idea. And yet if Nurmi is to fail in his quest it may be Wide who will outrun him.

Nurmi to Run as Amateur.

That Nurmi will compete in the United States as an amateur was settled for the time being, at least, by Nurmi's filing of his credentials and registration blank with the A. A. U. yesterday. Nurmi did not put in a personal appearance in applying for registration.

Adolph Arnold, a member of the registration committee of the Metropolitan A. A. U., was handed Nurmi's credentials and registration blank by Hugo Quist, Nurmi's adviser, on Wednesday and Arnold turned them in to the A. A. U. yesterday. They will have to be passed upon by the registration committee of the A. A. U.

According to Daniel J. Ferris, secretary treasurer of the national body, the papers appear to be in order and no hitch in their acceptance is expected. Nurmi has agreed to start the Mayor Walker Two-Mile Special at the Columbus Council, K. of C. games at the 106th Regiment Armory tomorrow night.

DEMPSEY STILL UNCERTAIN.

Wants to See Rickard Before Deciding on Plans, He Says.

ATLANTA, Jan. 3 (AP).—Jack Dempsey, erstwhile heavyweight champion, said here tonight that his plans for the future are more or less a matter of speculation until he confers with Tex Rickard at Miami Beach, Fla., within the next few days.

Dempsey, interviewed at Nashville today, was quoted in a dispatch as being "virtually certain" that he would try to regain the crown he lost to Gene Tunney at Philadelphia in 1926.

"I'll have to wait until I see Rickard," the former champion said here, however, when asked if he intended to return to the ring to meet the winner of the Sharkey-Stribling bout, scheduled for Miami Beach Feb. 27. "I'm not sure yet that I want to box again."

Chocolate Hailed by Fans at Havana Dinner; Fighter Hero of the Hour Among His People

HAVANA, Jan. 3 (AP).—The dusky little Cuban fighter, Kid Chocolate, who took New York rings by storm after leaving here six months ago with one suit, $6 and a one-way ticket, is back home again, the lion of the hour among his own people.

The "Keed," his wide ivory smile working overtime in a face as black as polished marble, is the hero of the island. His clothes now are of gorgeous hue—lavender and green predominating—and he's the Croesus of his set with a bank balance well over $20,000. All his friends got a $10 note for Christmas—"new and crinkly" ones.

Tonight a dinner in his honor was held with 100 sport fans as guests. His manager told The Associated Press that the number had to be limited or the dining would have to be in relays, so great was the demand to see the little bantamweight who won sixteen battles in New York rings, ten by knockouts.

The island will see much of the youngster whom critics have tabbed a possible titleholder, but not in the ring. The Kid, who can't speak English, has announced that he is through with the bouts here where rounds bring recompense at the rate of $10 each. He will return to New York in February.

WYKOFF IN HOSPITAL, LIES CRITICALLY ILL

Sensational Young U. S. Sprint Champion Operated on Twice After Hemorrhage.

HIS COACH GIVES BLOOD

GLENDALE, Cal., Jan. 3 (AP).—Frank Wykoff, the high school boy who flashed over the cinders last year for a national sprint championship, lay critically ill today in a hospital here, kept alive by blood transfusion from his coach, Norman Hayhurst, and Dick Ryan, also of Glendale and a member of the University of Southern California football squad.

Wykoff, whose feat of beating Charley Paddock in two races on the same day in the Olympic trials, placed the boy, then 18 years old, on a pinnacle of track fame, underwent a tonsil operation last month. A hemorrhage was followed by two operations in an effort to heal his throat, but it was announced today that the young athlete had not eaten in two weeks and was too weak to talk.

Hayhurst and Ryan have been furnishing blood to the patient for the past ten days.

Recovery Is Expected.

Dr. T. C. Young said he had not made known Wykoff's condition, as he did not wish to alarm the young man's friends during the holidays. Dr. Young says the sprinter may recover.

Wykoff skyrocketed to fame last year when he beat all competition in the American tryouts for the Olympics, and placed fifth in the 100-yard dash in the Olympic finals in Holland. Coach Hayhurst, who trained Wykoff at Glendale High School and accompanied the youth abroad, said that he would be so weak upon his recovery that he could not enter competition this Spring.

Hayhurst said that Wykoff might be able to meet Percy Williams, the youngster from Canada who won the sprints at the Olympics, in Denver in July, but that should Wykoff fail to regain strength rapidly he would not run at all this year.

His Running Consistent.

Wykoff, in winning the 100-meter dash and qualifying for the American Olympic team at the final tryouts at the Harvard Stadium on July 6 last year, achieved one of the greatest sprinting feats in all history when he raced 100 meters four times in preliminary and final tests and on each occasion equaled the Olympic record of 10 3-5 seconds.

SCHMELING-SEKYRA WILL CLASH TONIGHT

German Heavyweight Will Appear in Garden Feature—Dundee Also on the Card.

Max Schmeling will make his second American appearance when he tackles Joe Sekyra of Dayton in the main bout of ten rounds at Madison Square Garden tonight. The German heavyweight, who created a favorable impression in his initial fight here by knocking out the rugged Joe Monte of Boston, will be closely watched tonight, as he is expected to be tried to the utmost by Sekyra, who has performed capably against a number of sterling fighters.

The Dayton boxer, who only recently entered the heavyweight ranks, scored an impressive victory over Cuban Bobby Brown last Friday night and is eager to continue his success by defeating Schmeling.

Rivaling the feature attraction in interest will be the ten-round semi-final between Johnny Dundee, former champion of both the featherweight and junior lightweight divisions, and Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, one-time ruler in the bantamweight class. The bout will be fought at the lightweight division limit of 135 pounds.

Rosenberg has fought only once since his bout with Bushey Graham two years ago. He engaged in a six-round match with Harry Scott last March, and, although he won the decision, the former bantam champion was not satisfied with his showing, and seriously contemplated retiring from the ring.

The first ten-rounder will be a heavyweight struggle between Johnny Grosso and Jack Gagnon. A six-rounder between Jack Shaw and Jackie Saunders and a four between Spike Webb and Joe Oliver complete the card.

Matty Mario of Staten Island will meet Irish Tommy Jordan in the feature ten-round bout at the 106th Infantry Armory, Brooklyn, tonight. Billy Franklin and Frank Konchina will clash in the ten-round semi-final.

Ice Cream, lightweight, and Harry Ferry of Brooklyn will clash in the main event of ten rounds at the 22d Engineers Armory tonight.

Offers Match to Victor.

The winner of the ten-round bout between Irish Jackie Pilkington and Sid Terris, scheduled for the St. Nicholas Arena for Monday night, will be invited to participate in the proposed lightweight elimination tournament contemplated by Matchmaker Eddie McMahon.

HARVARD CLUB WINS IN SQUASH RACQUETS

Beats Montclair A. C., 5-0, and Is Certain of at Least a Tie for First in Met. League.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

The Harvard Club squash racquets team, playing its next to last match in the Metropolitan Squash Racquets League, assured itself of at least a tie for first place in the championship tournament last night, when it defeated the Montclair A. C. on the latter's courts in New Jersey. The Crimson players made a clean sweep of the five engagements and have a perfect standing of four matches won and none lost.

The Rockaway Hunting Club, which was idle last night, is the only club which has a chance to finish in a tie with Harvard. The Long Island team meets Montclair on Feb. 5, while Harvard faces Nassau the following day.

If Rockaway should win and Harvard lose, the final standing would show four victories and one defeat for each of the two. However, Harvard seems almost certain of taking the title, since Nassau has not won a match in three starts.

Racquet and Tennis Club Wins.

In the other engagement last night the Racquet and Tennis Club administered another setback to the University Club on the Racquet Club courts, 3 to 2. Richard Peabody, H. I. Caesar and Louis F. Bishop Jr. were the winners for the home team, all in five games, while L. I. Grinnell and Henry Mills scored for University, Mills winning by default.

The feature match at Montclair brought together George Debevoise of Harvard and P. K. Keenan. Debevoise has been playing his best squash this season since he graduated a few years ago, and his victory over the hard-hitting Montclair player was a notable triumph for him.

It was only by the margin of a point in the fifth game that the match was won and Debevoise had to fight an uphill battle all the way, losing the first and third games. The final score was 11—15, 15—11, 12—15, 15—13, 18—17.

Pease in Five-Game Struggle.

Larry Pool won the No. 2 match for Harvard in three games, while Lathrop Haskins likewise disposed of D. J. Bunce in 1-2-3 fashion. Perry R. Pease was carried to five games by G. L. Millington and John W. Allen triumphed over C. S. Moore after another five-game struggle, 17—18, 15—10, 15—8, 15—17, 15—8.

The summaries:

Racquet Club 3, University 2.

Richard Peabody, Racquet, defeated Darwin P. Kingsley Jr., 15—11, 10—15, 0—15, 15—12, 15—10; H. I. Caesar, Racquet, defeated A. E. Ellis, 15—5, 15—18, 15—17, 16—15, 15—12; L. I. Grinnell, University, defeated S. L. Underhill Jr., 12—15, 15—11, 15—17, 15—10, 15—9; Henry E. Mills, University, won from H. R. Hoyt by default; Louis D. Bishop Jr., Racquet, defeated W. H. Woolverton, 11—15, 15—8, 10—15, 15—10, 15—12.

Harvard 5, Montclair 0.

George D. Debevoise, Harvard, defeated P. K. Keenan, 11—15, 15—11, 12—15, 15—13, 18—17; Larry Pool, Harvard, defeated W. L. Coyle, 15—13, 15—8, 15—12; Lathrop S. Haskins, Harvard, defeated D. J. CUP MATCH PLAY TO OPEN.

Lockett Trophy Event to Start Tomorrow at Cedarhurst.

The annual three-cornered match for the Lockett Cup will be played tomorrow and Sunday on the new squash racquets courts of the Rockaway Hunting Club at Cedarhurst, L. I. Boston and Philadelphia will meet tomorrow, and on Sunday New York will play both of the visiting teams.

New York has an excellent chance of wresting the cup from Philadelphia, in spite of the fact that it is doubtful whether Herbert N. Rawlins of the Racquet Club, the national champion, will be in the local lineup. Rawlins has been abroad and it is not known definitely whether he will be available.

If the champion does not play, the local combination will consist of George Debevoise, Larry Pool, P. K. Keenan, Lathrop Haskins, R. F. De Voe, Perry R. Pease and Elliott Pratt.

PENN TRACKMEN REPORT.

Get First Workout of Winter Under Robertson and Meredith.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 3.—Coach Lawson Robertson and his new assistant, Ted Meredith, greeted a dozen or more University of Pennsylvania trackmen who reported today at Franklin Field for the first workout of the Winter season.

Among the candidates were Harold Lamborg, shot-putter, from Brooklyn; Joe Dodson, runner, from Yonkers; Barney Berlinger, all-around athlete and member of the 1928 American Olympic team; Fred Steiner, California weight thrower; Ben Merambeck, distance runner; Martin Babb, javelin candidate, and Norman Saxer, Jack Montgomery, Johnny Ball and Charley Giles, runners.

AUSTRALIANS SCORE 351 IN 2D INNINGS

Get Only Four Runs for Last Two Wickets at Melbourne in Third Cricket Test.

ENGLAND NEEDS 332 TO WIN

Starts Second Innings With 417 Against Opponents' Total of 748 —50,000 See Match.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Friday, Jan. 4 (Canadian Press).—England must make 332 runs to win the third cricket test match from Australia. The Antipodeans' second innings was concluded here this morning for 351 runs. They had scored 397 in the first innings while England scored 417. Australia's two-innings' total is 748.

Rain fell before play was due to start today and when J. S. Ryder and A. P. F. Chapman, the Australian and English captains, respectively could not agree whether the wicket was fit to be played on, the umpires ordered the game resumed. Only four runs were added to the Australian total of yesterday, R. Oxenham, not out 39, was bowled by J. C. White, without adding to his score. C. Grimmett, the other not out, scored the four runs before J. Blackie, the last man in, also fell a victim to White's bowling.

England's opening pair, J. Hobbs and H. Sutcliffe, had just started England's second innings when luncheon recess was taken. A crowd of 50,000 was present.

Out of the twenty-six times England has tried to overcome such a handicap in its second innings in the past its players were successful only once, and then at Adelaide in 1902.

Australia in Lead.

The scores at the end of the fifth play yesterday were: England 417; Australia 397 and 347 for eight wickets, giving Australia a lead of 327 runs.

Australia had the greatest day yesterday it has enjoyed in a test match since the last tour of an English team five years ago. Australia lost the rubber and the mythical championship "ashes" in England in 1926, while it was badly defeated in the first two test matches of this season.

Yesterday, after a bad start and with four of their best batsmen gone, the Australian players gave a demonstration of grit and determination in their effort to raise the Antipodean total to a point where victory might be possible.

The old stager, W. M. Woodfull, known as the most reliable batsman in Australia, withstood the English assaults and made 107 runs.

After he had gone, Australia's youngest batsman, Don Bradman, went on to score another century, making 112, his first in a cricket test match and at the youthful age of 21. He was the idol of Australian cricket followers yesterday. When he retired he was given an ovation by the crowd of 30,000 which lasted for three minutes.

Woodfull, who opened the Australian innings and saw such good men as V. Richardson, R. L. Hendry, A. Kippax and his captain, J. S. Ryder, depart without contributing anything substantial to the score, played his usual imperturbable game. He was at the wicket four hours and a half and though Tate, the English fast bowler, nearly bowled him twice on Wednesday, there was not a vestige of a mistake in his effort. He hit seven fours.

Bradman batted for four hours and a quarter without giving a chance. He started in a stubborn, stonewall fashion just before lunch, when the English bowling was at its best. After wearing it down he took toll of the attack by forcing strokes. He hit eleven fours and scored mainly by cuts and drives, though his work on the legside was of the soundest kind.

England Misses Larwood.

England was seriously handicapped yesterday by being without the services of Harold Larwood, one of its fast bowlers, who strained an ankle muscle after delivering only six overs. His absence threw a tremendous task on the other bowlers.

England had to field all day under a blazing sun, the heat on the ground being terrific. G. Duckworth, the English wicket keeper, who had a strenuous day of it, asked after stumps had been pulled, "Who set Australia on fire?" The tourists stuck to their job with splendid courage, but at the end they had to admit it had been a disastrous day.

While Duckworth passed more byes than he is wont to do, it was because he was standing close up to the wickets. The fact that he was able to dispose of Woodfull, Hendry and Bradman more than compensated for a few more extras than usual.

The English bowlers were a fagged out lot at the end and R. Oxenham, on the Australian team as a bowler, hit out all over the enclosure.

The scores:

LEWIS RISKS TITLE TONIGHT.

Favorite to Beat Sonnenberg in Wrestling Bout at Boston.

BOSTON, Jan. 3 (AP). — Ed (Strangler) Lewis is expected to have a 35-pound weight advantage on his challenger, Gus Sonnenberg, when they enter the Boston Garden ring tomorrow night to wrestle again for the former's heavyweight title. Lewis weighed 235 pounds today and Sonnenberg was just under 200.

Though Sonnenberg was confident of success, the betting odds favored the champion. Most of the experts agreed that Lewis, who has been wrestling almost as many years as Sonnenberg has months, was too clever and experienced to lose his title to a beginner.

Mike Hall, Star Handicap Horse, to Run in England in Fall

ENGLISH CAMPAIGN SET FOR MIKE HALL

Star Handicap Horse to Be Candidate for Cambridgeshire and Cesarewitch.

JARVIS TO AID IN TRAINING

Man Who Handled Papyrus Here Will Prepare Eastman's Gelding for Debut Abroad.

Mike Hall, one of the leading handicap horses developed in America in recent years, will race in England this Fall, it was announced yesterday by C. J. Fitzgerald. The 5-year-old gelding, which is owned by Robert M. Eastman of Chicago, will be the third American star campaigning abroad this year, as Reign Count and Billy Barton are already in England.

Mike Hall, a gelded son of Hourless and Clonakilty, was bred by his present owner but did not get to the races as a 2-year-old. In the Spring of his 3-year-old year he was sold to Hal Price Headley, and during the last two seasons he has scored a number of notable triumphs in Headley's colors, his earnings totaling nearly $100,000. Only recently was he bought back by his breeder.

The son of Hourless climaxed his three-year-old campaign with a triumph in the Latonia Cup race, and repeated this victory last season. Last year he also included in his successes the Dixie, Washington and Great Lakes handicaps and the Lincoln Fields Special.

It is planned to name Mike Hall for several fixtures in England, including the Cesarewitch and Cambridgeshire, the classic handicaps which will be decided at Newmarket in October.

Jarvis to Help Trainer.

Basil Jarvis, who trained Papyrus, which won the English Derby in 1923, and then came to America to race this country's reigning 3-year old, losing to Zev at Belmont Park, will help train Mike Hall. During a recent trip to England Fitzgerald made arrangements to have Mike Hall receive his final preparation for his début in England under Jarvis at Newmarket.

At present Mike Hall is quartered at the Beaumont Farm of Hal Price Headley in Kentucky, where he will spend the Winter. It is planned to take him up early in May, and he will receive the greater part of his work at Lexington. However, he will later journey to Saratoga along with the other horses under Headley's care. From Saratoga he will leave for his foreign campaign.

It is probable that Mike Hall will be started in one race before the Cesarewitch, which is run over the long route of two miles and a quarter. The last mile and a quarter is a straight run-in, but the last furlong is uphill. Entries for the Cambridgeshire and Cesarewitch close on July 31.

Americans Have Won Before.

A number of American owners have scored in both the Cambridgeshire and Cesarewitch. James R. Keene captured both classics in 1881 with the three-year-old Foxhall and William C. Whitney took the Cambridgeshire with Water Shed in 1901 and with Ballantrae in the following year.

The Cesarewitch went to A. K. Macomber in 1923, Rose Prince carrying his colors home first, and again in 1925, Forseti scoring. The Cambridgeshire of 1925 also went to Macomber, his Masked Marvel getting home in front. Macomber scored again in the Cambridgeshire in 1926, Insight II triumphing.

It is too early to surmise whether Reigh Count, which is a 4-year-old, and Mike Hall will meet in England. Reigh Count, which is owned by John T. Hertz of Chicago, is being pointed for the Ascot Gold Cup. Billy Barton, which finished second in the Grand National Steeplechase last year, is again a candidate for its renewal, the entries for which have just been announced. The jumper is owned by Howard Bruce of Baltimore.

$2,500,000 IS PAID FOR ARLINGTON PARK

EACH MEMBERSHIP $10,000

250 Scheduled to Be Sold to Civic Leaders—Roy Carruthers Is Directing Head.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3 (AP).—Arlington Park, Chicago's largest and most fashionable racing plant, today was taken over by a group of Chicago industrial, commercial and civic leaders through subscription of $2,500,000. In purchasing the tract from the American National Jockey Club the new owners announced it would be conducted strictly as a civic enterprise. Sale of 250 memberships at $10,000 will be made to an exclusive number of civic leaders. Each membership will carry $10,000 in preferred stock. This stock will be retired out of the profits, and the tract of 1,000 acres and buildings will then belong "in spirit to the Chicago turf-loving community," the announcement stated.

The group of owners is headed by Charles A. McCulloch, who announced that while common stock would be issued that it would be sold merely for voting purposes and shall never pay dividends. The new organization also announced it will work in close harmony with Belmont Park and Saratoga.

Roy Carruthers, well known in the Eastern racing world, will be executive director of the new club.

Today's action settled the financial difficulties which have beset the plant since its construction.

PURSE IS INCREASED FOR GWATHMEY 'CHASE

United Hunts Stake to Have Added Value of $12,500—Officers Are Re-elected.

When the barrier is raised for the running of the Temple Gwathmey Memorial Steeplechase Handicap at the United Hunts meeting next Fall the candidates will be competing for the second largest steeplechase purse in the country. This was made known officially yesterday, when the United Hunts Racing Association, at its annual meeting, announced that the purse for the feature would have an added value of $12,500 this year, $2,500 more than last season.

With this increase the gross value of the Gwathmey stake should amount to $20,000. The stake was inaugurated in 1924, with an added value of $2,500. In 1925 the added money was increased to $5,000, and in 1926 to $10,000. J. E. Widener's Fairmount has won this fixture for the past two years.

John McEntee Bowman was re-elected president of the association and F. Ambrose Clark, vice president. The other officers re-elected were Edward M. Weld, treasurer and H. A. Buck, secretary.

The following directors also were chosen: F. M. Alger, John Bosley Jr., Henry W. Bull, Bayard Tuckerman Jr., Frank J. Bryan, William R. Coe, Norris Sellar and Henry O. Tallmadge.

BURNING SUN VICTOR IN BRADLEY SILKS

SPRINTS AHEAD AT START

Romps Home 2 Lengths in Front of Golden West—Four Races Go to Favorites.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 3.—With four favorites winning on a card of seven races, the form players had no complaint to make here today. An upset occurred in the feature at six furlongs, however, Colonel E. R. Bradley's Burning Sun scoring the first victory for his owner of the racing season here, beating Golden West by two lengths. The Bradley colt paid $28.34 for $2, with Zacaweista, the favorite, finishing seventh. Maiden's Choice took the show.

Jockey Coleman, who had the mount on Burning Sun, rode a winning race. Burning Sun got a jump on his field at the break and sprinted ahead. Although Maiden's Choice and Golden West, following in order, were making a strong effort to keep up, Coleman held the colt back for a breathing spell and then, when ready, speeded home by a comfortable margin.

It was a bad start for most of the field, with Zacaweista going into the air and unable to improve his position a great deal after striking his stride.

Opener Won by Betty Ann.

Betty Ann, a rapid breaker and the favorite in the first race, won easing up in the three-furlong dash for 2-year-old fillies. She beat Campion by two lengths, with Hattie Seth third. Betty Ann led all the way, stepping the distance in 0:35 4-5.

Held at $42.66 for $2, Lady Basil took the second event, a claiming affair at a mile and seventy yards. The winner trailed closely behind the early pace and then rushed into the lead in the stretch when the pacemakers tired. Mary Hume finished a length and a half back, with Queen Royal trailing her by the same margin. Sun Ranger, the favorite, wound up fourth.

An exceedingly close finish marked the third race. Pheasant, the favorite, was declared the winner over One Way, although the decision of the judges was disputed by many who argued in favor of the Reichert gelding. One Way took the lead in the first few yards and led almost up to the finish, when Pheasant, with Jones up, came driving ahead. Blue Granite trailed the place horse by four lengths.

The last three races were claiming events and favorites scored in two of them. Blind Hills, the choice at $6.50 to $2, won by a length and a half from Sport Dress, which was three lengths ahead of Sunny Port in the fifth race. The winner trailed the field for most of the way, but came from far back to take the lead in the stretch. My Hobby set the pace, but soon tired.

Easy Victory for Billy Baughn.

Billy Baughn, another favorite, galloped home to an easy victory in the sixth event at a mile and a furlong. Vendeuse was a length and a half behind, taking the place by a like margin from Joe Adams. Billy Baughn, ridden by J. Leyland, lay back of the field until the stretch turn, when he sprinted to take the lead from Joe Adams, and Vendeuse was able to get up to gain the place. Priceman showed a flash of speed in the middle of the race, but then dropped out of contention.

Jockey L. Jones completed a double on Helen E. in the seventh race, having scored on Pheasant in the third. The winner, an outside choice at $12.36 for $2, came from far back to score a sensational victory over Mary B., which trailed by a half length. Otto Berz ran a consistent race and clung to third place all the way, beating Torch, the favorite, by two lengths for the show. Mum Ruffin, an extreme outsider, started off fast, but ran out in the stretch.

SEABACK WINS WITH CUE.

Takes 2 More Blocks a Pocket Billiard Match With Evans.

Charles Seaback increased his lead over James Evans yesterday in the 1,500-point match at pocket billiards at Kreuter's Billiard Academy, taking both blocks. In the afternoon block Seaback was victorious in eleven innings, 124 to 77, having a high run of 45 to 24 for the loser, while in the evening game Seaback won in three innings, 125 to 5. In this block he had high runs of 44, 40 and 41.

The score to date is Seaback 1,000, Evans 777.

Golden, With 215, Wins La Jolla Golf Tourney

LA JOLLA OPEN WON BY GOLDEN WITH 215

North Jersey Pro Triumphs in 54-Hole Tourney on Coast by Two-Stroke Margin.

HORTON SMITH IS SECOND

Scores 69 in Last Round to Finish With 217—Al Espinosa's 218 Is Next—Burke Has 220.

Special to The New York Times.

LA JOLLA, Cal., Jan. 3.—Playing steady golf despite breaks which cost him thirteen strokes on two par four holes, Johnny Golden, Ryder Cup player and holder of the New Jersey State open championship for the last two years, won the La Jolla open here today with a total of 215 for fifty-four holes. His scores by rounds were 70, 73 and 72.

A 31, five under par on the outgoing nine of his final round put Horton Smith in position to score his third victory of the Winter, but the 20-year-old Missouri boy took 38, three over par on the last nine for a 69. He finished second by two strokes with a total of 217.

Al Espinosa of Chicago, P. G. A. finalist last Fall, finished third with 218. Dallas Jeffers of Long Beach, Cal., went into first place with a 69 this morning, but he took 77 on his final round and finished fourth.

Burke Ties with 220.

Willie Hunter, former British amateur champion, and Billy Burke of New York tied at 220 for fifth. Henry Cotton of England, Bill Melhorn of New York and Frank Walsh of Appleton, Wis., were 221.

Chet Beer of Bakersfield, Cal., whose 69 led the field yesterday, acquired 77 and 81 on his two rounds today. His total of 227 tied for last of the eighteen money prizes. The prize money totaled $2,500, Golden collecting $750 for first place.

An unplayable lie on the tenth caused Golden to take a 7 on his morning round. A short second and three putts gave him a six on the third hole in the afternoon.

Golden's cards:

Smith Out in 31.

Smith had one bad hole in the morning, a six on the eighth. His second shot was short of the green, and he took three putts. The Missouri youngster had a great spurt of golf going out in 31 in the afternoon. He pitched four feet from the pin for a birdie on the fourth, laid a mashie niblick shot stone-dead for a 2 on the sixth, holed a chip shot for an eagle on the 533 yard seventh, and placed an iron shot close to the flag for a 3 on the ninth. Missing pars on two holes of the final nine cost Smith his chance to tie Golden. Horton overplayed the fourteenth green and was short on his second shot to the home green.

SAN DIEGO GOLF TODAY.

Diegel and Hagen Among Entrants for 72-Hole Competition.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 3.—The San Diego open, a seventy-two-hole competition, will start at the Chula Vista Country Club tomorrow, when the first eighteen holes will be played. More than 100 professionals, including Leo Diegel, national professional champion, and Walter Hagen, British open champion, are entered.

It will be Diegel's first tournament start of the Winter, aside from one-day appearances at Los Angeles. Diegel won the San Diego open last year, finishing two strokes ahead of Bobby Cruickshank and Horton Smith, who tied for second.

JAMAICA TO PLAY TONIGHT.

Can Clinch P. S. A. L. City Hockey Title by Beating Erasmus.

The second game in the three-game series to decide the P. S. A. L. city hockey championship will be played tonight at the Brooklyn Ice Palace, Jamaica, the defending champion, can gain the title by triumphing over Erasmus Hall tonight, as in the first encounter, played two weeks ago, Jamaica was victorious by 4 to 0. Should Erasmus Hall win, the series will be tied and the third game will be played Wednesday evening. Tonight's contest will start at 7:45 o'clock.

Sports of the Times

By JOHN KIERAN.

IN spite of the certified list of logical contenders for the heavyweight title and the famous Muldoon-Tunney trophy handed out by the committee in charge, this heavyweight tournament is such an open affair that a fighter can get into it—or out of it—in one round or even one punch. Knute Hansen proved that.

Starting from nowhere in particular, Knute bounded blithely into the middle of things by dusting the Garden canvas with Philip Scott of Merrie England some five or six times in one round. This one roaring round put him into the select circle of logical contenders. One punch put him out. During an expedition to Cleveland he was hit on the chin by one K. O. Christner, and when he next opened his eyes the Melancholy Dane was all by himself in the moonlight and well beyond the twelve-mile limit for logical contenders.

James J. Braddock, regarded as merely a good club fighter from the wilds of New Jersey, jumped his stock several hundred points by knocking out Tuffy Griffiths in short order at the Garden some weeks ago. He made considerable progress with that one punch, and if he can drop another such blow on a slightly more prominent chin Braddock will be in a position to bang on the door of the committee room and demand an entry blank for the famous tournament.

Even Joe Sekyra and Max Schmeling, who are on the Garden program this evening, are not out of it yet. No one is out of it except those who have been in and have been tossed out or knocked out. Sharkey, Stribling, Paulino and Dempsey, if he returns, are in, but there can be no real title bout until Summer, and there is still time for a newcomer to whack his way swiftly to the fore.

The Foreign Label.

There's no doubt that the promoters would rejoice if Max Schmeling, the champion of Germany, should smite Sekyra on the chin and lay him low in one of the early rounds this evening. A foreign label is a great asset to a fighter—and to the promoters.

Georges Carpentier, the famous Orchid Man, was no better than several men of his weight in this country, but he was the favorite of France and the champion of Europe. Luis Firpo, the Ox of the Argentine, was ignorant of even the rudiments of boxing, yet he was built up for the great fight with Dempsey. Paulino Upsidedown, the battered Basque, has dropped decisions here and there about the country, but he is still a drawing card and a certified contender for the heavyweight title, according to the list drawn up by the Muldoon-Tunney trophy committee.

As for Schmeling, as yet he has shown little except his passport from Germany and a slight resemblance to Jack Dempsey. Just how far this resemblance to Dempsey extends is the important point. He has the Dempsey cast of features, which is a good start from an artistic standpoint, but if the resemblance extends down the arms to his fists Herr Schmeling will become a prominent person in no time at all. The bout at the Garden this evening should produce some evidence on this point.

Changed Conditions.

There has been plenty of rough criticism showered on modern heavyweights, and it is the belief in this corner that not all of it is justified. There are plenty of poor heavyweights, but there are some fairly good ones, too.

It is due to the modern scheme of conducting boxing that many poor heavyweights are seen in the ring. They are in there because they are big, not because any one thinks they are good. The boxing commissions in various localities insist that the good men of lighter weight fight in their own classes. This didn't hold true in the old days when good welterweights and middleweights were allowed to step out and pick off the lumbering and flat-footed fighters in the heavier class.

Tommy Loughran plans to abandon his light-heavyweight title and dash in among the heavier set. Jimmy Slattery is reported ready to take the same line of action. Mickey Walker has already made a start in that direction. Probably Ace Hudkins, practically a welterweight, could pound his way through a roomful of the poorer grade of heavyweights. Certainly Tommy Loughran could outgallop most of them to take the referee's decision in a ten or fifteen round bout.

Restricting the good fighters to their own classes has left the heavyweight field wide open to men whose only qualification is that they can make the weight. Their futile efforts in the ring have helped to bring about what almost amounts to a wholesale condemnation of the entire class.

In Partial Rebuttal.

It is true that there is no outstanding heavyweight marvel at the moment, but after the dethroning or the retirement of a champion there is usually a slump or what seems to be a slump in most sports. Six months or a year may change the entire situation.

Gene Tunney was just a good light heavyweight a short while before he lifted Dempsey's crown. Dempsey was practically an unknown a year or two before he slaughtered Willard at Toledo. Jim Jeffries was a sparring partner for Corbett before he won the heavyweight championship of the world. It takes a little time for even the best of them to come forward.

With at least ten times as many men fighting now as there were two decades ago, with greater rewards as prizes, with better training methods and the experience of the past as aids to improvement, it doesn't seem logical to believe that the boxers are getting worse all the time.

All other popular sports are on the upgrade. If boxing is the solitary exception, the assembled scientists in this city should look into the matter. From a scientific standpoint, it would be worth investigating.

The key to the apparent riddle may be found in laws in various localities that restrict even championship bouts to ten and fifteen rounds. When the champion of old stood over his battered and helpless opponent in the twenty-third, thirty-fourth or forty-fifth round, he was a great man and was acclaimed to the skies. But the modern winner whose hand is raised to indicate that he received the decision at the end of the tenth or fifteenth round gains merely the polite applause of his own friends and the hints from disappointed rooters that the referee must have been his brother-in-law.

MISS ORCUTT WINS IN BERMUDA GOLF

Eliminates Miss Fordyce by 3 and 1 in First Match Round of Title Play.

MISS HICKS TRIUMPHS

Defeats Miss Pattisson, 3 and 2, While Miss Mackenzie and Miss Quier Are Victors.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 3 (AP). Three Americans and one Canadian survived the first round of match play in the second annual Bermuda women's golf championship at the Riddell's Bay Golf Club today.

Maureen Orcutt, Englewood, N. J., women's metropolitan champion, defeated Miss Louise Fordyce of Youngstown, Ohio, 3 and 1; Miss Helen Hicks, 18-year-old star from Hewlett, L. I., disposed of Miss Eileen Pattison, former Bermuda titleholder, 3 and 2; Miss Edith Quier of Reading, Pa., defeated Miss Betty Guthrie of Buck Hill Falls, Pa., 3 and 1, and Miss Ada Mackenzie of Toronto eliminated Miss Margaret Prescott of Narragansett, 6 and 5.

Miss Orcutt played brilliant golf except on one hole, the fifteenth, where she topped her drive into the woods and played her next into the water. The loss of this hole left the metropolitan champion only 1 up, but she was home in 2 on the long sixteenth and Miss Fordyce was in trouble on the seventeenth and the match ended there.

The cards:

Out—
Miss Orcutt	5	5	3	3	4	4	6	4	3—37
Miss Fordyce	6	5	5	3	3	5	5	4	4—40
In—
Miss Orcutt	5	3	5	4	6	3	4	4
Miss Fordyce	4	4	5	4	4	6	5	5	6

Miss Hicks was out in 38 against Miss Pattison and rounded the turn two up. She lost the tenth, but won the remaining holes, except the fifteenth.

Miss Guthrie won the first two holes of her match with Miss Quier, but the Reading girl got them back before the turn was reached. Both took 43 for the first nine and went into the last half of their match all square. Miss Quier won the twelfth but lost the fourteenth, leaving the match all square with four holes to play. The Reading star won the next three in par. Miss Mackenzie had no trouble disposing of Miss Prescott.

C. C. N. Y. ACTIVE TONIGHT.

Will Meet Rutgers in Swimming, Water Polo and Wrestling.

Three City College varsity sports teams make their 1929 débuts tonight, and all three of them will oppose Rutgers University teams. At home the C. C. N. Y. swimming and water polo teams will open the Intercollegiate Swimming Association season at 8:15 P. M. against Rutgers, who will be making their initial appearance as members of the I. S. A. Out at New Brunswick the Rutgers and City College wrestling teams will grapple in their second annual mat contest.

Rutgers, swimming champion of the Eastern League for the past eight years, is a strong favorite to defeat the Lavender in the swim meet tonight, and with City College's water polo team cripped by injuries and sickness, the Scarlet also may win the water polo contest.

Snyder Settles Salary Row, To Manage Houston Again

HOUSTON, Texas, Jan. 3 (AP).—Frank (Pancho) Snyder, who resigned last October as manager of the Houston baseball club of the Texas League because of salary differences with President Fred Ankenman of the club signed today for a second year as manager of the Houston club. Details of how the differences were patched up were not made public. The Houston club won the Texas League and Dixie Series championships last Fall.

MISS WARING WINS IN MIXED FOURSOME

Teams With Dunlap to Capture Young People's Tourney With Net 71 at Pinehurst.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 3.—Miss Helen Waring of Yonkers and George T. Dunlap Jr., New York, Princeton golfer and recent winner of the midwinter tournament, today won the young people's mixed foursomes tournament held on the No. 1 course, restricted to golfers twenty-five years of age and under. The Waring-Dunlap team returned a net 71, aided by five strokes handicap. Their gross score of 76 tied that of Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, R. I., women's national champion, and Phillips Finlay of Redlands, Cal., Harvard sophomore, who played from scratch.

Dunlap was very long off the tees but was not putting up to standard. Miss Waring played very consistently.

Their card:

Out	4	4	5	4	5	3	3	4	4—36
In	3	4	4	5	5	4	4	6	4—40—76

Finlay was handicapped by several poor tee shots. On the 505-yard 17th Miss Collett and Finlay were on in two. Miss Collett hit a drive of 250 yards and Finlay contributed a magnificent brassie 250 yards uphill onto the green.

Miss Elizabeth Rudel, Montreal girl, and her partner, John S. Chapman of Greenwich took second in the net scoring with 80—16—73 and Miss Cora Swoope of Merion, paired with William O'Brien of Detroit took third, with 92—17—75.

The scores:

Miss Helen Waring, Yonkers, and George T. Dunlap Jr., New York	76—5—71
Miss Elizabeth Rudel, Montreal, and John S. Chapman, Greenwich	89—16—73
Miss Cora Swoope, Merion, and William O'Brien, Detroit	92—17—75
Miss Glenna Collett, Providence, and Phillips Finlay, Redlands, Cal.	76— 0—76
Miss Virginia Stevens and F. C. Stevens Jr., New York	93—17—76
Miss Lillian Ross, Pinehurst, and Forbes K. Wilson, York Harbor, Me.	90—14—76
Miss Jane Thomas Rowe, N. Y., and J. J. Shickering Jr., Boston	87—11—76
Miss Libby Cheatham, Pinehurst, and R. H. Swoope, Merion	94—16—78
Miss Virginia Marshall, West Newton, Mass., and Richard Chapman, Greenwich	90—11—79
Miss Eva Statler, New York, and H. M. Dingley, Auburn, Me.	105—24—81
Miss Carol Hotchkiss, New Haven, and J. S. Ancona, Pottstown, Pa.	100—17—83
Miss Helen Butterfield, Battle Creek, Mich., and Charles Swoope, Merion	104—18—86
Miss Virginia Burrage, Pinehurst, and W. M. Swoope, Merion	102—15—88

SECTION ON GREENS TO OPEN MEETING

U. S. G. A. Division to Hear 5 Reports, Including That of Westover, This Morning.

TO REVIEW EXPERIMENTS

Monteith to Contribute Two Papers at Afternoon Session of Greenkeepers—Other Notes.

A two-day session of the green section of the United States Golf Association will start this morning at the Hotel Commodore. The final business of the meeting will be completed by tomorrow at noon, and at that time, at the same place, the annual meeting of the U. S. G. A. will be held. The election of officers for the coming year is expected to be the chief business at the annual meeting.

For the green section the time has been definitely divided. Starting at 10 o'clock, five reports will be read, including that of H. L. Westover, chairman of the green section research committee. In the afternoon the attending greenkeepers and their assistants will convene at 2 o'clock. A review of experimental work will be the chief item, with Dr. John Monteith Jr. contributing two papers, one of which will pertain to the work at the Arlington turf garden.

Tomorrow's session will start at 9 o'clock, Dr. K. F. Kellerman, who will discuss the Department of Agriculture and the green section, being among the speakers.

According to advices received in the city yesterday, Bobby Jones, national amateur champion as well as a delegate to the meeting of the U. S. G. A. tomorrow, will not be present because of the pressure of business.

The executive committee of the Westchester County Golf Association will meet at the Golfers Club, 102 East Fortieth Street, this evening to set the dates and determine the courses for the various championship events of the 1929 season.

Two additional entries were received yesterday for the national championship of golf club champions, to be contested Jan. 16 to 19 at St. Augustine. They were those of Charles E. Van Vleck, champion of the National Golf Links, Southampton, L. I., and Charles J. Simons, titleholder of the Mountain Ridge Country Club, Orange, N. J.

40 N. Y. U. MEN TO COMPETE

Coach Emil Von Elling of the New York University track team has entered a squad of forty men in the K. of C. games to be held in the 106th Regiment Armory, Brooklyn, tomorrow night. Johnny Trachy is to run in the Governor Smith "500," and Fred Viet in the Mayor Walker half-mile special. Charles Hugenin is to appear in the special sprint series, while Sol Furth will compete in the 100-yard dash.

Captain Phil Edwards, negro middle-distance star, started training yesterday for the indoor campaign. Coach Elling expects to enter Edwards in the one-mile run in the intercollegiates on March 2, and as anchor man on the championship two-mile relay team.

ROBERTS-HART TAKE AMATEUR-PRO GOLF

2 PAIRS TIE FOR SECOND

Hampton's 68 Wins Low Scoring Honors—Sarazen Has a 70—Farrell's Team Has 72.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 3.—C. A. Roberts, Miami amateur, teamed with P. O. Hart of Wheeling, W. Va., and carried off the first prize today by a single stroke in the amateur-professional tournament over the municipal course, which served as a prelude to the Miami open championship, which starts tomorrow, over the same layout. The winning team turned in a best ball of 33—34—67, to lead a select field, which included the national open champion, Johnny Farrell.

Lee Chase of Buffalo, with Eddie Williams of Cleveland as his partner, returned 31—37—68 to gain a tie for second place with Harry Hampton, star Chicago pro, and C. B. Anson, Boston amateur. Chase and Williams clipped four strokes from par on the outgoing nine holes, but faltered on the return journey, finishing with two 5s for a 37, two over par.

Hampton with an individual card of 34—34—68 won the low scoring honors of the day among the professionals. Gene Sarazen, former United States open champion, who will defend his title in the Miami open, tied for second low individual medal score at 70 with H. B. Miller, a local professional.

Johnny Farrell, American open champion, was paired with a Miami amateur, N. P. Lowery and finished in a tie for seventeenth place with a 72.

The best ball card of Roberts and Hart:

Out	4	4	5	2	4	3	4	3	4—33
In	4	4	3	5	4	3	4	4	4—34—67

Hampton's card:

Out	5	5	4	3	4	3	5	5	4—34
In	4	3	4	3	3	5	5	3	4—34—68

The three Turnesa brothers from Elmsford, N. Y., participated. Joe teamed with T. E. Price, Miami amateur, and tied for eighth with 70. Mike Turnesa, playing with Jerry C. Davidson, another local player, had a 72, while Phil finished down the list with a 76, having O. S. Baker, another Miami player, as his partner.

Many Remedies Tried—then Resinol

Cincinnati, Ohio—"For the past year I have been bothered with a skin irritation on my feet and limbs, from which I suffered the greatest agony and found sleep almost impossible. I tried all kinds of remedies, even prescribed treatments, but got no relief. A friend suggested Resinol Ointment and I tried it at once. After applying Resinol Ointment I was able to sleep well all night for the first time in months. I am now entirely well."—(Signed) J. Cal. Wells.

CITY FILES APPEAL ON WNYC ORDER

Contends That Radio Board Has Crippled City Station in Its Public Service.

PROPERTY RIGHTS CLAIMED

Brief Declares That Maine Has Got Two Channels From New York's Legal Quota.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—An appeal from the order of the Radio Commission issued Dec. 15 denying full time to WNYC, the New York municipal broadcasting station, was filed in the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia today by Joseph A. Devery, George P. Nicholdson and Herbert L. Davis, for the city of New York.

The attorneys stated that the city has invested about $50,000 in the station and that its maintenance costs $53,000 annually.

The brief contended that the Commission's order requiring the station to share time with WMCA is invalid and void because it requires the municipal station to surrender its exclusive use of a wave length authorized and assigned to it; that the commission abused its discretion and disregarded public convenience, interest and necessity; that the commission compelled a station operated exclusively for governmental and municipal purposes to share its wave length with a station operated primarily for commercial broadcasting for private profit, and that the order of the commission prevents the broadcasting of orders, directions, news and information respecting the health, safety, education, convenience and well-being of the residents of the city of New York.

Forced to Oppose WMCA.

The city also contends that the rules and procedure of the commission are arbitrary and unreasonable and therefore invalid and void, "in that the appellant, operating a broadcasting station purely for governmental and municipal purposes and having made no complaint or objection against any other station, was compelled to proceed as a complainant against station WMCA and subject its disinterested witnesses offered for the purpose of setting forth the value and the present and future scope of the government and municipal service rendered to cross-examination by antagonistic counsel, representing said station WMCA, whose sole purpose was to belittle and deprecate the said service and the value thereof."

Other contentions in the city's brief are, in part:

That the order cancels the license of the City of New York to operate a broadcasting station as an agency for use at any time of the day or night in the broadcasting of police, fire and other emergency messages and alarms.

Asserts Property Rights.

That the order deprives the city of its rights and property without due process of law, in violation of the fifth amendment of the Constitution.

That the State of New York is entitled to 10.6 "regional service" channels, whereas the actual assignment of channels made by the commission allows only nine in the State.

That Maine has two channels over its legal quota and that if the commission had assigned the "regional service" channels according to the provisions of the radio act and made available to the State of New York its full quota of 10.6 channels, it would have been unnecessary to deprive the appellant of its exclusive channel.

The brief declares that upon the hearing before the commission and over the objection of the appellant "incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial evidence, consisting of newspaper articles and editorials, was admitted into the record and was considered by the commission in making the order appealed from."

Jewish Women Hold Forum.

The New York section of the National Council of Jewish Women held its second legislative forum yesterday morning at 158 West Eighty-second Street. Mrs. Henry F. Hendricks, chairman of the legislative committee, introduced Mrs. Leopold K. Simon, who conducted the forum. Mrs. Simon, a lawyer, outlined the law governing child marriages. Other laws pertaining to women were also discussed.

PLAN POLAR PROGRAMS FOR TOMORROW NIGHT

WBZ and WBZA Will Broadcast Messages and Music for Men in Arctic and Antarctic.

The third Arctic and Antarctic program to explorers, missionaries and traders in the polar regions will be broadcast tomorrow night beginning at 11 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time, over WBZ and WBZA, Springfield and Boston, Mass., according to the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

A large volume of messages from friends, received by George A. Wendt at the Canadian Westinghouse Company, Montreal, Canada, will be broadcast to the Oblate Fathers, Revillon Frères, Royal Canadian Mounted Policemen and Hudson Bay men in the North. The program, including musical numbers, is scheduled to be on the air for several hours over the short-wave stations.

The next broadcast from KDKA, Pittsburgh, is scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 12, at the same hour. Other transmissions will occur on Jan. 26 and Feb. 16 over WEZ and WBZA.

The dedication ceremonies of the new $14,000,000 tunnel through the Cascade Mountains near Seattle, Wash., are scheduled for broadcast on Saturday, Jan. 12, at 9 P. M., over WEAF's coast-to-coast network. Microphones located at San Francisco, New York, Washington, D. C., and at both ends of the tunnel will be linked in turn with the network to carry the proceedings. Mme. Schumann-Heink will be heard from the Pacific Coast, George Olsen's Orchestra from New York, Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern Railway, at each end of the tunnel, and political and engineering speakers from Washington, D. C. The speeches and other parts of the program will be accurately timed with the progress of the Oriental Limited, a Great Northern train, through the eight-mile bore. The speakers will be introduced by Graham McNamee.

A radio telephone and telegraph conversation lasting more than an hour was carried on yesterday between a radio-equipped airplane flying over Newark, N. J., and radio operators at the Radiomarine Corporation stations at Tuckerton, N. J., and Bush Terminal, Brooklyn, according to a representative of the latter station. The wireless code was used in the messages sent to the plane, but voice transmission was employed from the plane to the land stations. It was predicted by an engineer of the Radio Corporation of America that radiophone conversations between airplanes and land stations would soon be the rule rather than the exception.

S. H. Wilcox Co. Case Put Off.

Adjournment was taken until 2 P. M., Jan. 11, in the bankruptcy hearing of S. H. Wilcox Company, Inc., scheduled for yesterday before Referee Oscar Ehrhorn, 280 Broadway. The adjournment was asked by counsel representing the trustee, on account of the illness of Attorney Israel Axelrod, who has been acting in the case.

INFLUENZA INCREASING; OFFICIALS NOT UNEASY

Disease Is Closely Watched as 208 Cases Appear in Day, but Many Are Thought to Be Colds.

Influenza showed an increase here yesterday and is being closely watched, but there is no cause for alarm, it was said by Health Department officials. Two hundred and forty cases were reported during the forty-eight-hour period between 11 A. M. Dec. 31, and the same hour Wednesday. In the ensuing twenty-four hours, 208 cases were reported, indicating a sharp increase.

"Now is the time that we must watch it," said a spokesman for Health Commissioner Wynne. "We do not expect, however, a continued rise at this rate." He declared that while cases had been reported as "true influenza," it was believed that most of them were merely severe colds. In epidemic years as many as 1,000 cases are reported in a day.

Special precautions have been taken at Fort Jay, Governors Island, to prevent the spread of respiratory diseases.

Members of the garrison have been warned in a memorandum to avoid theatres, mass meetings, closed and crowded doors. "There is danger in kissing," it went on, "and in the use of common drinking cups, the roller towel, pipes, soda water glasses, spoons and other objects recently mouthed. The hands should be washed before eating and the fingers kept away from the mouth and nostrils."

The memorandum, issued by Lieut. Col. Paul Freeman of the Army Medical Corps, also cautions against "impure air, dust, drafts, sudden changes of temperature, exposure to cold and wet, over-work, loss of sleep or insufficient rest," and "adenoids, polypus, enlarged tonsils, deviation of the nasal septum or chronic catarrhal conditions."

MOVE TO GET PLAYS OUT OF DOLDRUMS

American Board of the Theatre Will Meet Monday to Help the Legitimate Stage.

Outsider Urges Producing Managers to Open Central Ticket Bureau Under Certain Rules.

The American Board of the Theatre, which the Actors' Equity Association and the Managers' Protective Association hopes to bring into life in a effort to pull the legitimate theatre out of the doldrums, will hold its first meeting on Monday afternoon at the offices of Equity, it was said yesterday. Representing Equity will be Paul Dullzell, Paul N. Turner, Arthur Byron, A. G. Andrews and Florence Nash. The managers' group will be represented by Winthrop Ames, Arthur Hammerstein, Warren P. Munsell, Brock Pemberton and Ralph Long. On behalf of the Dramatists' Guild, the third organization included in the American Board of the Theatre, George Middleton, George Abbott, Louise Sillcox and two playwrights yet to be chosen will be present.

A meeting of the governing board of the Organized Legitimate Theatrical Managers' Association, also a component part of the American board, will be held today in the offices of Joseph P. Bickerton Jr. in the Candler Building.

From a source outside the theatre still another plan to relieve the ailing Broadway stage was made public yesterday. Edward A. Collins, an advertising man, with offices at 1,775 Broadway, has sent a letter to producing managers in which he advocates, briefly, the establishment of a central theatre ticket bureau by the better-class managers. Producers affiliated with this bureau would have to agree to sell tickets only at the box office, and the bureau itself would adopt the rated account plans of advance and deferred payments used by many department stores and merchandising organizations. The bureau would look after the affairs of each theatre affiliated with it, making sure that cash for every ticket sold by it is delivered every week. There would be penalties for non-payment of accounts by customers after a certain period, and a person who lost his credit rating at one theatre would lose it at all. Mr. Collins's letter suggests that such a man as John J. Raskob, "Governor Smith or some one close to Mr. Raskob," should be invited to head the bureau.

The New Playwrights Theatre yesterday issued a statement through its executive director, Em Jo Basshe, in which it charged that Broadway theatrical troubles are due to the greed of real estate speculators and cited its experiences in trying to find an uptown theatre for its production of "Singing Jailbirds."

"What Broadway is witnessing this season is a theatregoers' strike," the statement says. "The theatre audiences will not come back until the prices of seats for worth-while plays are lowered considerably. Fortunately this will have the effect of lowering the values of the Broadway theatre properties. When enough theatres have been dark long enough the speculators will come to their senses and rent their houses for what they are really worth."

CITY COLLEGE'S PLAY.

"All Fools" to Be Given Tonight—Hunter Girls Also to Act.

The Academic Players of City College will give tonight as their annual varsity play "All Fools," an Elizabethan drama by George Chapman, and will repeat it tomorrow afternoon and evening. It will be presented in the College Academic Theatre, Townsend Harris Hall, on the campus, under the direction of Professor Joseph Tynan and under the auspices of the City College Dramatic Society.

The performance will mark the thirtieth anniversary of the society.

Make-Up Box, one of the Hunter College dramatic organizations, will present three plays tonight and tomorrow night in the college chapel. The plays are: Beatrice Mayor's comedy, "Thirty Minutes in a Street"; "Boccaccio's Untold Tale," a tragedy by Harry Kemp, and "The Mourners," a fantasy by James Mahoney. Betty Lubarsky, Sylvia Klein and Mildred Kahn, students, will direct the performances.

Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta, "The Pirates of Penzance," will be given by Hunter College students on Friday and Saturday evenings, next week.

"AIDA" REPLACES "NORMA."

Rosa Ponselle's Illness Brings Opera Change—General Balbo Guest.

Verdi's "Aida" and not Bellini's "Norma" was the opera at the Metropolitan last evening, when General Italo Balbo, the Italian Government's Under Secretary of State for Aviation, was the guest of the house, greeted by many of New York's Italian colony and by special guards posted at all doors of the theatre by the police of New York. The change of opera was owing to indisposition of Rosa Ponselle, who is also to sing at the local Italian Hospital benefit on Saturday of this week and was advised to reserve herself for that occasion.

Lauri-Volpi and Telva of the "Norma" cast were not affected by the jinx that haunts the singing stars of late. They appeared as Radames and Amneris in "Aida," the tenor singing the Eyptian hero for the first time this season. Miss Jacobo again had the title rôle, with Miss Doninelli, Messrs. Basiola, Pinza and Macpherson reappearing as before, and Mr. Serafin conducted.

SOPHIE TUCKER MARRIED.

Singer Weds Third Husband, Abe Lackerman of New York, in South.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 3.—Sophie Tucker of Chicago, well-known singer in vaudeville, who is about to enter the movies, was married in Newport, Ky., on Dec. 14, to Abe Lackerman, merchant, of the Park Central Apartments, New York, by Magistrate Thomas J. Hanly, it was learned today.

This marriage is the third for Miss Tucker. Her first husband was Louis Tuck, to whom she was married in New York in 1903. She divorced him in 1913, and was married four years later to Frank O. Westphal, another merchant. She divorced him in 1917. She has a son, Bert Tucker, 22, who is on the stage.

Texts of Pan-American Arbitration Documents

adopted at Havana, under which this conference has met, proposed that there should be a treaty of obligatory arbitration with respect to judicial questions.

"That at once defines the field. That field is specifically defined in the first article of this proposed treaty. In that article it is stated that the controversies in question are those of a juridical character. They are juridical because they can be solved by the application of principles of law. Then in order to explain even more fully what is meant we find in Article II a specific statement of certain categories. I might say that it is a classical statement of certain categories which are deemed to be susceptible of determination by the application of principles of law.

"That being so, when we come to consider the exceptions which are to be introduced, we have in mind two fields of obligations: Those where the obligations are created in the exercise of sovereignty and which fall within the domestic jurisdiction; and the other obligations which are created by international law and which are not susceptible of final determination through local tribunals without the intervention of an appropriate international tribunal.

"In other words, where a treaty is concerned, for example, or in matters which have given rise to rights under international law, the appropriate resort, if the parties cannot dispose of the controversy amicably, is to an international tribunal. We have sought to provide the means for constituting such a tribunal in this treaty."

Issue as to Reservations.

Most of the reservations entered by the various governments refer to pecuniary claims and domestic affairs, which, they contend, should be submitted to compulsory arbitration only in event of denial of justice by local courts.

This matter was discussed before the arbitration committee by Mr. Hughes, who reminded the delegates that twelve States had ratified the Buenos Aires convention of 1910 on pecuniary claims.

"Perhaps I may be allowed to make the suggestion that under this treaty no State is deprived of any right that it has under international law," he said, "and no State, of course, is relieved of any obligation which it may have under international law. Therefore a reservation, if made with the idea that it would change international law, would be ineffective. It would simply mean that with respect to the matter reserved or excepted from the treaty we decline to have recourse to pacific settlement by arbitration."

Mr. Hughes was also called upon to defend certain articles of the general convention on conciliation, notably Article III, of which he is the author. This article provides for utilization of the permanent commissions of the Gondra Treaty of Santiago de Chile of May, 1923, for purposes of conciliation, and authorizes these commissions to act on their own motion if there is danger of disturbance of peaceful relations.

The Chilean delegate, Dr. Planet Cordero, objected to this article and to Article I of the conciliation convention, which provides for compulsory conciliation of disputes which it has not been possible to settle by means of diplomatic channels. He argued that the convention gave too much power to the permanent commissions, and also that a weak State might impose upon a strong one by demanding compulsory conciliation of a controversy.

Hughes Stresses Timely Action.

Mr. Hughes explained that the whole purpose of the convention was to set up a permanent machinery of conciliation which could act without delay to prevent conflicts.

"It was mere chance," he said, "that the Pan-American Conference on Conciliation was meeting and could extend its good offices when the controversy arose between Bolivia and Paraguay."

Mr. Hughes vigorously defended the wording of the treaty and expressed hope that the articles would stand as written. His stand was supported by Dr. Ricardo J. Alfaro of Panama and by Dr. Gustavo Gutierrez of Cuba, and after a debate of nearly two hours over Articles I and III the remaining articles were approved practically without discussion.

Because of the stand taken by Chile, however, it is believed that that country will enter a reservation regarding the functions of the permanent commissions.

Such reservations as are made by the various governments will be entered at the time of signing and were not announced by all the delegates today. Reservations to the arbitration treaty will be entered in an open protocol and may be withdrawn whenever the governments concerned feel that they can abandon in whole or in part the exceptions from arbitration stipulated in the treaty.

Text of Arbitration Treaty.

GENERAL TREATY OF INTER-AMERICAN ARBITRATION.

The Governments of Venezuela, Chile, Bolivia, Uruguay, Costa Rica, Peru, Honduras, Guatemala, Haiti, Ecuador, Colombia, Brazil, Panama, Paraguay, Nicaragua, Mexico, El Salvador, the Dominican Republic, Cuba and the United States of America, represented at the Conference on Conciliation and Arbitration, assembled at Washington pursuant to the resolution adopted on Feb. 18, 1928, by the Sixth International Conference of American States held in the City of Havana;

In accordance with the solemn declarations made at said conference to the effect that American republics condemn war as an instrument of national policy and adopt obligatory arbitration as the means for the settlement of their international differences of a juridical character;

Being convinced that the republics of the New World, governed by the principles, institutions and practices of democracy and bound furthermore by mutual interests which are increasing each day, have not only the necessity, but also the duty of avoiding the disturbance of continental harmony whenever differences which are susceptible of judicial decision arise among them;

Conscious of the great moral and material benefits which peace offers to humanity and that the sentiment and opinion of America demand, without delay, the organization of an arbitral system which shall strengthen the permanent reign of justice and law;

And animated by the purpose of giving conventional form to these postulates and aspirations with the minimum exceptions which they have considered indispensable to safeguard the independence and sovereignty of the States and in the most ample manner possible under present international conditions, have resolved to effect the present treaty, and for that purpose have designated the plenipotentiaries hereinafter named;

Who, after having deposited their full powers, found in good and due form by the conference, have agreed upon the following:

Article I.

The high contracting parties bind themselves to submit to arbitration all differences of an international character which have arisen or may arise between them by virtue of a claim of right made by one against the other, under treaty or otherwise, which it has not been possible to adjust by diplomacy and which are juridical in their nature by reason of being susceptible of decision by the application of the principles of law.

There shall be considered as included among the questions of juridical character:

(a) The interpretation of a treaty;

(b) Any question of international law;

(c) The existence of any fact which, if established, would constitute a breach of an international obligation;

(d) The nature and extent of the reparation to be made for the breach of an international obligation.

The provisions of this treaty shall not preclude any of the parties, before resorting to arbitration, from having recourse to procedure of investigation and conciliation established in conventions then in force between them.

Article II.

There are excepted from the stipulation of this treaty the following controversies:

(a) Those which are within the domestic jurisdiction of any of the parties to the dispute and are not controlled by international law; and

(b) Those which affect the interest or refer to the action of a State not a party to this treaty.

ARTICLE III

The arbitrator or tribunal who shall decide the controversy shall be designated by agreement of the parties.

In the absence of an agreement, the following procedure shall be adopted:

Each party shall nominate two arbitrators, of whom only one may be a national of said party or selected from the persons whom said party has designated as members of the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague.

The other member may be of any other American nationality. These arbitrators shall in turn select a fifth arbitrator who shall be the president of the court.

Should the arbitrators be unable to reach an agreement among themselves for the selection of a fifth American arbitrator, or in lieu thereof of another who is not, each party shall designate a non-American member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration at the Hague and the two persons so designated shall select the fifth arbitrator, who may be of any nationality other than that of a party to the dispute.

Article IV.

The parties to the dispute shall formulate by common accord in each case a special agreement which shall clearly define the particular subject-matter of the controversy, the seat of the court, the rules which will be observed in the proceedings and the other conditions to which the parties may agree.

If an accord has not been reached with regard to the agreement within three months, reckoned from the date of the installation of the court, the agreement shall be formulated by the court.

Article V.

In case of death, resignation or incapacity of one or more of the arbitrators, the vacancy shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointment.

Article VI.

When there are more than two States directly interested in the same controversy, and the interests of two or more of them are similar, the State or States who are on the same side of the question may increase the number of arbitrators on the court, provided that in all cases the parties on each side of the controversy shall appoint an equal number of arbitrators.

There shall also be a presiding arbitrator selected in the same manner as that provided in the last paragraph of Article III, the parties on each side of the controversy being regarded as a single party for the purpose of making the designation therein described.

Article VII.

The award, duly pronounced and notified to the parties, settles the dispute definitively and without appeal. Differences which arise with regard to its interpretation or execution shall be submitted to the decision of the court which rendered the award.

Article VIII.

The reservations made by one of the high contracting parties shall have the effect that the other contracting parties are not bound with respect to the party making the reservations except to the same extent as that expressed therein.

Article IX.

The present treaty shall be ratified by the high contracting parties in conformity with their respective constitutional procedures.

The original treaty and the instruments of ratification shall be deposited in the Department of State of the United States of America, which shall give notice of the ratifications through diplomatic channels to the other signatory governments and the treaty shall enter into effect for the high contracting parties in the order that they deposit their ratifications.

This treaty shall remain in force indefinitely, but it may be denounced by means of one year's previous notice in advance, at the expiration of which it shall cease to be in force as regards the party denouncing the same, but shall remain in force as regards the other signatories.

Notice of the denunciation shall be addressed to the Department of State of the United States of America, which will transmit it for appropriate action to the other signatory governments.

Any American State not a signatory of this treaty may adhere to the same by transmitting the official instrument setting forth such adherence to the Department of State of the United States of America, which will notify the other high contracting parties thereof in the manner heretofore mentioned.

In witness whereof, the abovementioned plenipotentiaries have signed this treaty in Spanish, English, Portuguese and French and hereunto affix their respective seals.

Done at Washington, on this—— day of January, 1929.

Text of Conciliation Treaty.

GENERAL CONVENTION OF INTER-AMERICAN CONCILIATION.

The Governments of Venezuela, Chile, Bolivia, Uruguay, Costa Rica, Peru, Honduras, Guatemala, Haiti, Ecuador, Colombia, Brazil, Panama, Paraguay, Nicaragua, Mexico, El Salvador, the Dominican Republic, Cuba and the United States of America, represented at the Conference on Conciliation and Arbitration, assembled at Washington pursuant to the resolution adopted on Feb. 18, 1928, by the Sixth International Conference of American States held in the city of Havana:

Desiring to demonstrate that the condemnation of war as an instrument of national policy in their mutual relations, set forth in the above mentioned resolution, constitutes one of the fundamental bases of inter-American relations;

Animated by the purpose of promoting, in every possible way, the development of international methods for the pacific settlement of differences between the States;

Being convinced that the "Treaty to avoid or prevent Conflicts between the American States," signed at Santiago de Chile, May 3, 1923, constitutes a notable achievement in inter-American relations which it is necessary to maintain by giving additional prestige and strength to the action of the Commissions established by Articles III and IV of the aforementioned Treaty, the general text and appendix of which are hereby confirmed;

Acknowledging the need of giving conventional form to these purposes, have agreed to enter into the present convention, for which purpose they have appointed plenipotentiaries as follows:

Venezuela—Carlos F. Grisanti, Francisco Arroyo Parejo.

Chile—Manuel Foster Recabarren, Antonio Planet.

Bolivia—Eduardo Diaz de Medina.

Uruguay—Jose Pedro Varela.

Costa Rica—Manuel Castro Quesada, Jose Tible-Machado.

Peru—Hernan Velarde, Victor M. Maurtua.

Honduras—Romulo Duron, Marcos Lopez Ponce.

Guatemala—Adrian Recinos, Jose Falla.

Haiti—Auguste Bonamy, Raoul Lizaire.

Ecuador—Gonzalo Zaldumbide.

Colombia—Enrique Olaya Herrera, Carlos Escallon.

Brazil—Sylvino Gurgel do Amaral, Arturo Guimaraes de Araujo Jorge.

Panama—Ricardo J. Alfaro, Carlos L. Lopez.

Paraguay—Eligio Ayala.

Nicaragua—Maximo Zepeda, Manuel Zavala.

Mexico—Fernando Gonzalez Roa, Benito Flores.

El Salvador—Cayetano Ochoa, David Rosales Jr.

The Dominican Republic—Angel Morales, Gustavo A. Diez.

Cuba—Orestes Ferrara y Marino, Gustavo Gutierez Sanchez.

United States of America—Frank B. Kellogg, Charles Evans Hughes.

Who, after having deposited their full powers, which were found to be in good nd due form by the conference, have argued as follows:

Article I.

The high contracting parties agree to submit to the procedure of conciliation established by this convention all controversies of any kind which may arise between them for any reason and which it may noto have been possible to settle through diplomatic channels.

Article II.

The commissions of inquiry to be established pursuant to the provisions of Article IV of the treaty signed in Santiago de Chile on May 3, 1923, shall likewise have the character of commissions of conciliation.

Article III.

The permanent commissions which have been established by virtue of Article III of the treaty of Santiago de Chile of May 3, 1923, shall be bound to exercise conciliatory functions, either on their own motion when it appears that there is a prospect of disturbance of peaceful relations, or at the request of a party to the dispute, until the commission referred to in the preceding article is organized.

Article IV.

The conciliatory functions of the commission described in Article II shall be exercised on the occasions hereinafter set forth:

1. The commission shall be at liberty to begin its work with an effort to conciliate the differences submitted to its examination with a view to arriving at a settlement between the parties.

2. Likewise the same commission shall be at liberty to endeavor to conciliate the parties at any time which in the opinion of the commission may be considered to be favorable in the course of the investigation and within the period of time fixed therefor in Article V of the treaty of Santiago de Chile of May 3, 1923.

3. Finally, the commission shall be bound to carry out its conciliatory function within the period of six months which is referred to in Article VII of the treaty of Santiago de Chile of May 3, 1923. The parties to the controversy may, however, extend this time if they so agree and notify the commission in due time.

Article V.

The present convention does not preclude the high contracting parties, or one or more of them, from tendering their good offices or their mediation, jointly or severally, on their own motion or at the request of one or more of the parties to the controversy; but the high contracting parties agree not to make use of those methods of pacific settlement from the moment that the commission described in Article II is organized until the final act referred to in Article XI of this convention is signed.

Article VI.

The function of the commission, in all cases specified in Article II of this convention, is to procure the conciliation of the differences, subject to its examination, by endeavoring to effect a settlement between the parties. However, when the commission finds itself to be within the case foreseen in paragraph 3 of Article IV of this convention, it shall undertake a conscientious and impartial examination of the questions which are the subject of the controversy, shall set forth in a report the results of its proceedings, and shall propose to the parties the bases of a settlement for the equitable solution of the controversy.

Article VII.

Except when the parties agree otherwise, the decisions and recommendations of any commission of conciliation shall be made by a majority vote.

Article VIII.

The commission described in Article II of this convention shall establish its rules of procedure. In the absence of agreement to the contrary, the procedure indicated in Article IV of the Treaty of Santiago de Chile of May 3, 1923, shall be followed. Each party shall bear its own expenses and a proportionate share of the general expenses of the commission.

Article IX.

The report and the recommendations of the commission, in so far as it may be acting as an organ of conciliation, shall not have the character of a decision nor an arbitral award, and shall not be binding on the parties either as regards the exposition or interpretation of the facts or as regards questions of law.

Article X.

As soon as possible after the termination of its labors, the commission shall transmit to the parties a certified copy of the report and of the bases of settlement which it may propose.

The commission, in transmitting the report and the recommendations to the parties, shall fix a period of time, which shall not exceed six months, within which the parties shall pass upon the bases of settlement above referred to.

Article XI.

Once the period of time fixed by the commission for the parties to make their decisions has expired, the commission shall set forth in a final act the decision of the parties and, if the conciliation has been effected, the terms of the settlement.

Article XII.

The obligations set forth in the second sentence of the first paragraph of Article I of the Treaty of Santiago de Chile of May 3, 1923, shall extend to the time when the final act referred to in the preceding article is signed.

Article XIII.

Once the procedure of conciliation is under way, it shall be interrupted only by a direct settlement between the parties or by their agreement to accept absolutely the decision "ex aequo et bono" of an American chief of State or to submit the controversy to arbitration or to an international court.

Article XIV.

Whenever for any reason the Treaty of Santiago de Chile of May 3, 1923, does not apply, the commission referred to in Article II of this convention shall be organized to the end that it may exercise the conciliatory functions stipulated in this convention; the commission shall be organized in the same manner as that prescribed in Article IV of said treaty. In such cases, the commission thus organized shall be governed in its operation by the provisions relative to conciliation, of this convention.

Article XV.

The provisions of the preceding Article shall also apply with regard to the permanent commissions constituted by the aforementioned Treaty of Santiago de Chile, to the end that said commissions may exercise the conciliatory functions prescribed in Article III of this convention.

Article XVI.

The present convention shall be ratified by the high contracting parties in conformity with their respective constitutional procedures, provided that they have previously ratified the Treaty of Santiago de Chile of May 3, 1923.

The original convention and the instruments of ratification shall be deposited in the Ministry for Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Chile, which shall give notice of the ratifications through diplomatic channels to the other signatory governments, and the convention shall enter into effect for the high contracting parties in the order that they deposit their ratifications.

This convention shall remain in force indefinitely, but it may be denounced by means of notice given one year in advance, at the expiration of which it shall cease to be in force as regards the party denouncing the same, but shall remain in force as regards the other signatories. Notice of the denunciation shall be addressed to the Ministry for Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Chile, which will transmit it for appropriate action to the other signatory governments.

Any American State not a signatory of this Convention may adhere to the same by transmitting the official instrument setting forth such adherence to the Ministry for Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Chile, which will notify the other high contracting parties thereof in the manner heretofore mentioned.

In witness whereof, the abovementioned plenipotentiaries have signed this Convention in Spanish, English, Portuguese and French and hereunto affix their respective seals.

BOLIVIA, PARAGUAY SIGN PEACE ACCORD

Protocol Made in Washington Provides for Settling Their Dispute.

COMMISSION TO HEAR ISSUE

United States, Mexico, Colombia, Cuba and Uruguay Will Act With the Disputants.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—What is regarded in diplomatic circles as a milestone in the history of international relations marked the work of the Pan-American Conference on Conciliation and Arbitration tonight, when, after more than three weeks of negotiations, a protocol of conciliation between Bolivia and Paraguay was signed by the diplomatic representatives of the two nations in the presence of Secretary Kellogg, chairman of the conference, and members of the special committee which has been dealing with the controversy between them.

Instructions from La Paz authorizing Señor Diez de Medina, Bolivian Minister in Washington, to sign the protocol, reached the legation this morning, but a few changes in the text were required.

None of the modifications was objectionable to Paraguay, and after a meeting this afternoon for purposes of discussion, an agreement was reached by both parties to sign the document following adjournment of the evening meeting of the committee on conciliation of the conference.

The text of the document also had to be amended to provide for the failure of Argentina and Brazil to accept places on the Commission of Investigation. The decision of President Trigoyen of Argentina not to accept the invitation extended to that country was made known earlier in the day, and Mexico was designated to serve instead. Ambassador Telles, it is understood, obtained the approval of his government by telephone.

Colombia Chosen by Lot.

It was not until the protocol was about to be signed that it became known that Brazil also had declined. It was decided to draw lots between Ecuador and Colombia. The designation fell to Colombia, so that the commission of investigation will be made up of two representatives each of Bolivia and Paraguay and one each from the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Uruguay and Colombia.

Under the protocol the commission will begin its work in Washington and will agree upon its own procedure of investigation. At the request of Bolivia, the time limit has been reduced by suppression of a provision for six months' extension in case of inability to complete work in an initial six months.

Bolivia also demanded a modification in Article 8, which originally provided that the commission of investigation should be empowered to decide upon measures designed to prevent a recurrence of hostilities. The word "decide" was changed to "advise," thus limiting the authority of the commission.

Article 9 stated that "it is understood that the procedure contained in this protocol does not include or affect the territorial question, as contended by Bolivia, and of boundaries, as contended by Paraguay, which exists between the two countries, nor does it include or affect the agreements in force between them." The recurring words "or affect" were inserted today at the request of Paraguay.

The protocol provides that the commission shall undertake to investigate, by hearing both sides, what has taken place in the Bolivian-Paraguayan dispute, taking into consideration the allegations set forth by both parties and determining in the end which of the parties brought about a change in the peaceful relations between them.

Will Report if Agreement Fails.

Once the investigation has been carried out, the commission shall submit proposals and shall endeavor to settle the incident amicably under conditions which shall satisfy both parties. If this should not be possible, the commission shall render its report setting forth the result of its investigation and the efforts made to settle the incident.

After the document had been signed in duplicate by the Paraguayan Chargé d'Affaires, Juan V. Ramirez, and the Bolivian Minister, Señor Diez de Medina, the Paraguayan delegate to the conference, Dr. Eligio Ayala, former President of his country, made a brief address. He thanked the conference for the manner in which it had offered its good offices to bring about a settlement and expressed the gratitude of Paraguay for its work on behalf of peaceful settlement, which he declared was in accord with the desires of his country.

Señor Diez de Medina also spoke briefly, stating that Bolivia, as the partisan of rectitude and justice, was also deeply impressed by the occasion.

Secretary Kellogg then congratulated the representatives of the two nations on their desire to maintain peace. Describing the signing of the protocol as a "momentous occasion," he declared that it had averted "a conflict which might have been disastrous, not only to your two countries but to all of us."

Miss Tobin to Join "Mary Dugan."

Genevieve Tobin, who recently returned from London where she played the leading feminine rôle in "The Trial of Mary Dugan" for forty-four weeks, will join the cast of a touring company on Jan. 14 at the Windsor Theatre in the Bronx. Following the Bronx engagement, "The Trial of Mary Dugan" will open in Boston at the Wilbur Theatre on Jan. 21.

Lina Basquette to Marry.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 3 (AP).—Lina Basquette, film actress, will be married to Peverell Marley, cinematographer, at a Beverly Hills church next Monday, it was announced here today. Miss Basquette is the widow of Samuer Warner, film executive. June Collyer will be bridesmaid.

Reducing may ruin good looks

Extreme dieting is also dangerous to health

A FAMOUS doctor discusses the effects of extreme weight reducing on the skin. Frequently, he says, "the face takes on an anemic look. Healthy color is absent and a sallow tinge gives the distinct appearance of weariness and age." He says that the loss of only a few pounds by a middle-aged person will often "make the skin of the face wrinkled and baggy." After excessive reducing this is noticeable also on the hands.

Besides, skinniness is unbeautiful. "Essentially," says an eminent doctor, "the curve is fundamental to beauty. . . . The really beautiful consists of that which is healthful and efficient." He goes on to warn us that "The craze for thinness is an attempt to modify the process of nature."

Women to be beautiful should be natural and healthy, and it is dangerous not only to good looks but to health for women, girls or men to try to standardize their weights. Eat plenty of varied nourishing foods. Everyone needs a certain amount of fat in the tissues of the body. Don't forget the value of sugar in making other foods tasteful and enjoyable. There is no substitute for sweetness as a food and flavor. In reducing, decrease the quantity of all foods, but enjoy variety. Health is necessary to beauty. The Sugar Institute.

MUSIC
By OLIN DOWNES.

Mahler's "Lied von der Erde."

One of the most impressive performances we remember in five years of music in New York City was given when Willem Mengelberg and the Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra, assisted by Mme. Margarete Matzenauer and Richard Crooks, produced Mahler's "Lied von der Erde" for the first time in the history of the orchestra concerned, yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall. The performance is mentioned in advance of the work itself, because it cast such a revelation upon the music, interpreted by Mr. Mengelberg in a manner which gave unprecedented significance to Mahler's utterance. Whatever may be his ultimate fate as a creative artist—and we do not believe the American public wrong in its comparative indifference to Mahler's huge, jumbled and alliterative symphonies—it now seems probable that "Das Lied von der Erde" will rank as his crowning achievement.

Usually Mahler's intention is much purer and loftier than its execution. Yesterday, at least, the "Lied von der Erde" emerged from this category. It has its weak places, no doubt; it may not wholly bridge the gap between the greatness of the composer's conception and the second-rate quality of much of his invention. But it rings overwhelmingly true; it is pervaded by the conviction and the naked frankness of a man too absorbed and experienced in sorrow to be less than urgent and inescapable with the message that is heavy upon him. These things in the music seized and held silent and absorbed the audience of yesterday afternoon. When the last tone sounded there was an instant of silence, and certainly there were many present who were moved in a way that forbade applause. The occasion drove home, as few performances of this season have, the compelling power of sincerity, humanity, imagination on the part of a composer, even when his invention is of the second rank and the immense creative force that an interpretation, possessed of like sincerity and emotion, can bring to music.

Two modern composers have written works in which they seem to have anticipated the end of life. One is Tchaikovsky, with the incomparable finale of his "Symphonie Pathétique." The other is Mahler, less gifted with musical ideas than the Russian and much more of a philosopher and humanitarian. He found in Hans Bethge's German paraphrases of old Chinese poems, from which he made certain selections, material that seemed fated for his pen. Arranging and in some cases altering the poems to suit his needs, Mahler wove them into a score designed to express "one predominating idea—withdrawal from the world." "The Song of the Earth!" It is the chant of the troubling and illusive beauty of the world and the soil that awaits us.

The poet reflects, and in the depths of realization calls for the cup. The ape grimaces over the graves. Drink, for life and death, too, are dark. And now it is Autumn, the bloom of the lotus is scattered over the surface of the lake. But the third song is the song of youth, and the fourth the song of lovers—the girls by the water-side, casting amorous glances; the boys on horses which prance and rear in Mahler's orchestra. And again the song of the Drunken One, after the poem of Li-Tai-Po, the drunkard who fain would sleep and forget the Spring, and the leave-taking of life. The poet will farewell his friend, whom he will not see again. Winter is at hand. The Spring, which he may not greet, will return to the good blossoming earth, surrounded by clear eternal depths of azure.

To this verse Mahler composed, as though he, too, saw the end of things, as from a tower; as though, in the poignant phrase that Philip Hale employed when he spoke of Schubert, he smelled the mould and knew that the earth was hungrily awaiting him. Yet this is not music of despair. It is not the blackness and the shudder of Tschaikowsky. The expression is of melancholy, dreams, regrets, vain, but very human, and a poignant tenderness. Why speak of this or that verse, or technical details, when the music is so lyrical in its essence, and, whatever its faults, weaknesses, redundancies, so very plain and human? With all the sonorities of the Mahler orchestra, the burden of expression falls, as it should, to the solo voices. Sometimes solo instruments in the orchestra bore almost in themselves the effect of voices, as the English horn in the first contralto solo—the Song of Autumn—or the solo flute, which twice repeats its melancholy commentary in the finale pages.

In all respects this was a memorable performance. Soloists could hardly have done the music more justice. Mme. Matzenauer's voice, which has been especially rich and full this season, was only the vehicle of her consummate musicianship, her taste, her superb treatment of melodic line and establishment of mood. The beautiful and peculiarly youthful quality of Richard Crooks's tenor is admirably adapted to the dramatic spirit and the tessitura of his passages in the composition heard yesterday—passages which are no small test of a concert singer. Could Mahler have heard this performance he would have thanked the interpreters. We cannot imagine his score treated with more insight, or conductor's skill, or profound and communicative spirit, than were exercised yesterday by Mr. Mengelberg.

Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Yesterday, so far as orchestral concerts were concerned, was a day of extremely brilliant conducting, as also of compositions which had unusual interest. The concert given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Serge Koussevitzky conducting, in the evening in Carnegie Hall, introduced as a novelty the piano concerto of Ernest Toch, with Jesus Sanroma as soloist. This concerto is nearly three years old, having been composed in the Spring of 1926, and there were performances in Europe prior to one heard by the writer at the Frankfurt Music Festival of July, 1927. The conducting and the very brilliant interpretation of the work last night were responsible for much that was not made clear by the Frankfurt performance. Toch's concerto, in fact, now appears as one of the most mettlesome and arresting scores that have come in some time from any composer of the modern German school. The sheer certainty and élan of the writing are breath-taking, and these qualities are felt by the listener whether or not his ear and his power of musical analysis are quick enough to follow Mr. Toch's electrical manifestations.

Here is a piece of real modern music—not music composed with the deliberate intention to be modern at all costs, but music written in a language which is the composer's own. To say that Toch had struck a wholly new and individual vein in his work would be overshooting the mark, since he has unquestionably affinities with the later Hindemith, and is well-couched in the ideas of the Schönberg school. But these ideas, and others, have been assimilated in such a way that the piece, which is a whole symphony in three long movements, takes on a very personal character, and indicates a new and extremely vigorous temperament in contemporaneous music.

The music is specifically of the present twentieth century. Of romanticism it has none, although—hist!—there was a passing moment of Debussy, and strange did Debussy sound in that galley! But here is no soft feeling, no sentimental ardors. The accents are rather those of stark strength, with clean, clear, astringent progressions of the voices, as they contend against each other in vigorous play. There is nothing affected, nothing decadent. The dominant note is force and health, and somewhat sardonic humor. Perhaps in a later day we will feel a quality that we recognize as true and deep emotion in the slow movement. Elsewhere there is sweeping, rhythmical power, and the finale is mad waggery. All this with the employment of an immense orchestra, as big as any used by Richard Strauss, including the organ and contra-bass tuba, and a piano part of immense technical and rhythmic difficulty, which was played with complete mastery by Mr. Sanroma, who exhibited as technician and musician a competency which is exceptional and which was imperatively demanded by the occasion.

The rhythmical problems of the Toch concerto are complicated for the piano as they are for the orchestra. Problems of balance were equally difficult, requiring of the soloist the soundest knowledge and musical instinct. Mr. Sanroma, who had studied the concerto with the composer, evidently knew the score as he knew his piano part. He was able to watch the conductor like a cat, which was strictly necessary, and he fully appreciated the fact that the rôle of the piano was that of one important part in a composition pre-eminently symphonic. Mr. Koussevitzky was indeed fortunate in his soloist as the composer was fortunate in his conductor. One trembles to think what a fraction of a slip on the part of any one would have meant with such a score. Again, the thought occurs that the composer should have been present. Mr. Toch, a man who is modest as he is distinguished in music, would have been happy in this performance. The audience, in part, disapproved of the intense modernness of the score of what is assumed to be the synonym of modernity, its dissonance. A majority, however, applauded heartily and persistently an audacious, logically built and very exhilarating concerto-symphony.

The other elements of the program were Handel's concerto grosso for string orchestra, Schubert's B minor symphony—was it because of the year of grace?—and John Alden Carpenter's music for the ballet, "Skyscrapers," which Mr. Koussevitzky has already played here in superlative fashion. The writer cannot speak of Handel's music, played by the strings, in a way that excited admiration from certain individuals of authority who were present. The first movement of the Schubert symphony was given a simple and not unduly individualized reading and Mr. Koussevitzky dared to take the slow movement at a tempo that most conductors who find it difficult to sustain long melodies avoid. But we care less for Mr. Koussevitzky's Schubert than for other of his interpretations. Mr. Carpenter's ballet held its own for brilliancy and effect, in the wake of Toch's concerto, and also gave great pleasure to the audience.

'Serena Blandish' at Morosco Jan. 23

"Serena Blandish," S. N. Behrman's dramatization of the novel of like title, will open at the Morosco Theatre on Wednesday night, Jan. 23. Ruth Gordon will have the title rôle, and the cast will likewise include A. E. Matthews, Constance Collier, Henry Daniell and Hugh Sinclair. The play, which is being produced by Jed Harris, will have its first performance in Philadelphia next Wednesday night.

"Little Accident," current at the Morosco Theatre, will be transferred to the Ambassador on Jan. 21. It is assumed that "Lady Dedlock," now at the Ambassador, will likewise continue its run at another house.

E. H. Sothern's Dramatic Recitals.

E. H. Sothern will give three more dramatic recitals at Town Hall on the afternoons of Jan. 8, 9 and 15. Mr. Sothern's program next Tuesday will include "Macbeth," "Lord Dundreary" and reminiscences of his stage career. Next Wednesday's recitals will be free to school children and will consist of dramatic readings from "Hamlet," "The Merchant of Venice" and "Lord Dundreary." On his last appearance he will offer "The Merchant of Venice" and anecdotes of the theatre.

Mr. Sothern is booked in the West and South until April 12. He also is planning to continue his tour next season.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Claudette Colbert has been engaged for "Dynamo," the O'Neill play, which the Theatre Guild will soon produce.

According to H. S. Kraft, the producer, "Poppa" will not close at the Biltmore Theatre on Saturday night, as reported in yesterday's Times, but will move to the Hudson instead.

Lew Levenson has been appointed supervising director of "Lady Fingers," the musical comedy with Eddie Buzzell and Louise Brown, which Lyle D. Andrews will soon present at the Vanderbilt Theatre.

Edward Downes has succeeded Edward Pawley in 'Street Scene," opening at the Playhouse next Thursday night. Mr. Pawley will be seen in Myron C. Fagan's next production, "The Grand Passion."

The Actors' Theatre has postponed its announced revival of Ibsen's "The Lady From the Sea" until next month.

"The Tenth Man," a Somerset Maugham play, is announced as the next production at the Davenport Theatre in East Twenty-seventh Street, where Butler Davenport is now giving free performances of "Difference in Gods." The Irish Guild Players have taken over the house for a series of Sunday night performances, beginning Feb. 3.

"The Guinea Pig," scheduled to open at the President Theatre on Monday night, will give two preliminary performances tonight and tomorrow at the Beechwood Playhouse at Scarborough.

The annual benefit performance in aid of the Actors' Fund is announced for the afternoon of Friday, Jan. 25, at the Jolson Theatre.

John Murray Anderson announces that the production of his proposed revue, "Murray Anderson's Almanac," has been "temporarily delayed" because of present conditions in the theatre.

SCREEN NOTES.

"Romances of the Underworld," with Mary Astor in the forthcoming attraction at the Roxy.

At the Colony Theatre the next film will be "The Last Warning," with Laura La Plante.

"West of Zanzibar," with Lon Chaney, continues for another week at the Capitol.

Colleen Moore is to be seen in a film called "Synthetic Sin," at the Paramount.

At the Cameo the attraction will be "The End of St. Petersburg."

At the Fifty-fifth Street Playhouse, the attraction will be "Russia 1903," a German film.

"The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari" and "Grass" are to be seen at the Fifth Avenue Playhouse.

Douglas Fairbanks, in "The Jazz Age," will be at the Hippodrome.

"Lucrecia Borgia," a German film, remains at the Little Carnegie Playhouse.

At the William Fox Theatre, in Brooklyn, the screen offering will be "Submarine," with Jack Holt.

"Ten Days that Shook the World," and "His Private Life," will be on view Sunday and Monday at the St. George Playhouse.

DEBUT BY OLGA ZUNDEL.

Young 'Cellist, Naumburg Prize Winner, Cordially Received.

Olga Zundel, a young 'cellist who was a winner of the Walter W. Naumburg Musical Foundation prize, made her New York début last night in the Town Hall under the auspices of the National Music League. A pupil of Willem Willeke, she has pursued her studies in this city and at his Summer school in Pittsfield, Mass., where she has taken part in the ensemble work at the South Mountain Music Colony. Later she was a student at the Institute of Musical Art. Her performance last night gave promise of interesting achievement in her chosen field.

Her program comprised César Franck's sonata for piano and 'cello, a sonata by Pietro Locatelli, Tchaikovsky's "Variations on a Theme Rococo," Op. 33; Mr. Willeke's arrangement of a Mozart Larghetto, David Popper's sprightly "Elfentanz" and "Spinnlied" and Rubin Goldmark's "Adon-Olam." The last-named composer was in the audience and, with the youthful artist, acknowledged the applause of the audience.

Miss Zundel's tone is in general of ingratiating warmth and mellow beauty and her bowing firm and vigorous. In the early part of her program she showed less authority than in the shorter pieces at the close. In the broad measures of the "Adon-Olam" she was particularly effective, as also in the contrasting moods of the two brilliant pieces by Popper, which she played with delicate grace and a fine-spun tone. She was cordially received by an audience of good size. Pierre Luboschutz provided excellent piano accompaniments.

"Three Cheers" Co. to Visit Stone.

Will Rogers and the members of the "Three Cheers" company will visit Fred Stone, for whom Mr. Rogers is substituting, at his home in Forest Hills on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Stone, who is recovering from the injuries he suffered in an airplane accident last August, will leave for Florida the latter part of next week. The company, including Mr. Stone's daughter, Dorothy, plans to put on an impromptu entertainment for him.

"Precious" at the Royale Jan. 14.

"Precious," the new James Forbes play, will open at the Royale Theatre on Monday evening, Jan. 14, where it will displace "Diamond Lil." Rosalie Stewart is the producer of "Precious," the cast of which will include John Cumberland, Hale Hamilton, Dorothy Hall, Cora Witherspoon, Veree Teasdale and Edward Leiter.

THE FINAL ACCOUNTING.

The Republican party ended the recent campaign with a President-elect, Congressional control and a surplus of $355,264.55. The financial part of this rosy inventory is revealed in the complete report of National Committee expenditures made to the House of Representatives. It makes sad reading for the Democratic National Committee, with everything lost and a deficit of $1,500,000. But nothing, as we believe has been said, succeeds like success.

A total of $6,541,748.05 was contributed by 144,124 contributors, and most of it was spent. The probability is that only a small amount, comparatively, stopped permanently in the pockets of any of the party workers. An election which brings out nearly forty million votes shows early surface excitement which induces the political managers to spend great sums recklessly, and both sides engaged in this plethoric enterprise with such intense rivalry that nearly $12,000,000 is officially confessed to have been expended to settle the Presidency and the Congressional campaign. But the probabilities are that the Republicans could have spent much less and still achieved the result which was their goal. And it is generally conceded by observers that the Democrats could have spent twice as much and had no effect on the popular decision.

In the last campaign the personality of the candidates offered such lures to the voters that they would have gone to the polls anyhow. Persons who object to the squandering of vast sums on politics, and suspect evil practices, will promptly be told by the campaign managers that the whole amount was distributed in order to "get out the vote." That is largely true. Yet except for what was spent on radio broadcasting it is not likely that the vote was increased by more than a small percentage as a result of the money applied to that purpose.

It certainly should not cost so much to settle political preferences in this country. Had times been less prosperous it would not have cost so much for the simple reason that the contributions would not have been forthcoming. But whenever there is such a surplus in the pockets of the well-conditioned as existed last Autumn, a hot campaign will obtain the money and rivalry will do the rest.

MISS MAXWELL.

It is related of FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE that when she, a young woman of social position and of means, asked Dr. SAMUEL G. HOWE if he thought it would be a dreadful thing if she were to devote her life to the profession of nursing, he replied: "By no means. I think that it would be a very good thing." This was at a time, said STRACHEY in his sketch of her life, when nursing was looked upon as "a peculiarly disreputable occupation." It was at about this time that Miss MAXWELL was born and in the span of her lifetime nursing has come to be recognized as a profession. More than to any one other human being this change was due to FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE, but the profession has been carried to new heights of skill and devotion in America by such nurses as Miss MAXWELL, who, only a child of 3 when FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE went to the Crimea, came to be known as the Florence Nightingale of America and who died the Dean of American nurses.

Her active life extended over the entire period of trained nursing in this country, as she was one of the earliest graduates of a nurses' training school of the Nightingale system, when neither the public nor the medical profession had as yet come to think of a nurse as more than a servant, even though of a different order and quality from the nurses with whom FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE began in England. Daughter of a Scotch minister, Miss MAXWELL showed her own superior natural fitness for such life work in the care she gave her mother in illness. She had not the austerity of STRACHEY'S "Lady With the Lamp," but she had as compelling a way, queenly in dignity, firm and demanding, yet most gentle, gracious and kindly. She had her brief Crimea in the Spanish War, when she got the oft-quoted citation from an officer who did not welcome her coming: "When you came we did not know what we would do with you! Now we do not know what we could have done without you." She was ready to go to France for active service in the war, but the regulation as to age prevented and the services she could give at home were considered even more valuable, though she made one or two inspection trips to France. Her greatest work was that of training nurses.

At 30 she was head of a training school for nurses in connection with the Massachusetts General Hospital. After seven years she came to organize the St. Luke's Hospital Training School and after three years went to the Presbyterian Hospital, where she remained for thirty years and graduated some 700 nurses. Even after her retirement, at 70, she headed the nurses' campaign in behalf of the enlarged Medical Centre Training School, which she had a leading part in planning and which now has a nurses' residence hall bearing her name. It is a name that will be cherished as long as even one of her graduates lives, and will be written imperishably in the annals of nursing in America.

AFTER RATIFYING.

With the Kellogg treaty now in possession of the right of way in the Senate, its ratification is expected to follow within a reasonable time. There is opposition to it, partly sincere, partly captious, but it can hardly muster enough votes on the final roll-call to defeat the treaty. There is a possibility that reservations, or some form of declaratory statement, may be adopted, though need of anything of that kind would seem to have been obviated by the French and British notes, and by the explanatory speech of Secretary KELLOGG. He also made it plain at the hearing by the Committee on Foreign Relations that he regards all the safeguarding clauses and amendments which have been suggested as quite unnecessary, since they are all implicit in the treaty itself.

If there are any doubts and misunderstandings on these points, they ought to be cleared up in the course of the Senate debate. It should also serve to get rid of misnomers. Many of them have been applied to the treaty. It has been called, for example, a treaty to "outlaw" war. But as Mr. PHILIP KERR remarked in his address before the Royal Institute of International Affairs, the word outlawry cannot be used in strictness of war. You can outlaw an individual or a community, in the sense of depriving him or it of the protection of law. But you cannot outlaw an impersonal thing like arson or murder or war. What can be done is to set up a new reign of international law, or agree to a multilateral treaty which "delegalizes" war, and thereafter you can proceed, if you choose, to outlaw all those who resort to war. This is, in effect, what the Kellogg treaty undertakes to do, though with several limitations.

It does not, for example, undertake to prevent war. It renounces war as an instrument of international policy, but does not deny that hostilities may break out, nor does it set up any agency authorized to interfere at the mere threat of trouble and act so as virtually to forbid two nations to go to war. In this respect it is less positive than the Covenant of the League of Nations, which did not renounce war but devised machinery to avert or stop it. The Kellogg renunciation of war is left, so to speak, in the air, with no hint of means to be made use of against any who violate it. It is like a criminal law enacted without provision of penalties. For its maintenance, it depends not upon the sword, or upon an international police power, but upon the good faith and integrity of the signatory nations.

The peace treaty, even so, marks a great step in advance, but it is a step leading to something more. This is the reason why ratification of the treaty will be regarded in Europe as a sign, or even proof, that the United States proposes to return to closer cooperation with other nations. It is felt that the treaty will lead us, or should lead us, straight into the World Court. That tribunal constitutes one of the great "pacific means" to which we with others have pledged ourselves to resort. And behind the World Court, as its fostering parent, stands the League of Nations, which already exists as an organization able to make practically effective the pious aspirations of peace breathed in the Kellogg treaty. That instrument of peaceful intentions ought to be ratified. But it will be necessary later, in the legal phrase, to "implement" it by proceeding to more concrete measures and international agencies by which it may be made a living and continuous and effective force in the world.

STATE GASOLINE PRICE FIXING.

In 1927 the Tennessee Legislature passed a statute for the purpose of fixing the price of gasoline sold in the State. In an opinion delivered by Mr. Justice SUTHERLAND the Supreme Court has just held it unconstitutional, because its effect is to deprive Tennessee gasoline vendors of their property without due process of law. Sir MATTHEW HALE, Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench, has been dead more than 250 years. A phrase of his, "affected with the public interest," is become, though its definition and application have not always been uniform, the recognized test of legislative power to fix the prices of commodities, use of property, services. Mr. Justice SUTHERLAND restates more briefly the principle of application laid down more at large in the majority opinion in the decision, famous in 1927 but pretty well forgotten now, invalidating the New York law limiting the resale price by scalpers of theatre tickets—the "Anti-Gouging" law.

Affirmatively to be affected with the public interest, a business or property must be such or be so employed as to justify the conclusion that it has been devoted to a public use and its use thereby in effect granted to the public.

Negatively, a business isn't affected with the public interest simply "because it is large or because "the public are warranted in having "a feeling of concern in respect to "its maintenance." This phrase is repeated from the Anti-Gouging law decision. Thence we take this amplification and clarification:

> Nor is the interest meant such as arises from the mere fact that the public derives benefit, accommodation, ease or enjoyment from the existence or operation of the business.

A lot of people use gasoline; but how does their number compare with that of the persons who have to have food, clothing, houses or apartments? Yet only "in a controlling emergency" may a Legislature fix the price of these absolute necessaries. The decision should—but won't—be a lesson to Legislatures willing to furnish law in quantities to suit if they can oblige enough constituents. Mr. Justice HOLMES dissented without writing an opinion. Mr. Justice STONE and Mr. Justice BRANDEIS concurred in the result, if not in all the reasoning by which it was reached.

A CONSTRUCTIVE TRAFFIC PLAN.

The traffic problem in New York is at last beginning to receive the attention it deserves. City officials are seeking expert advice about measures of relief. One civic organization after another is coming forward with suggestions. The latest of these is the carefully worked out plan for new bridges and thoroughfares made public this week by the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce. Its central feature is a "cross-town artery," running not east and west, as a dweller in Manhattan might infer, but north and south, through the heart of Brooklyn and Queens. At the north end it would connect with the proposed Triborough Bridge, which is to link Manhattan, Bronx and Queens over the East River islands. At the south it would ultimately connect with whatever crossing may eventually be agreed upon for the Narrows. It would thus afford not only a new highway between Brooklyn and Queens but a by-pass to relieve street congestion in lower Manhattan, which has its hands full taking care of its own traffic and would be only too glad to get rid of the thousands of cars which at present use its avenues on their way somewhere else.

Such a "circumferential" highway is fully in line with the recommendations of the Regional Plan Committee. The spider web of municipal traffic needs more cross-threads, the wheel more ways along its rim. These should come first, and that is why public improvements like the Hudson River Bridge, the proposed Triborough Bridge and this cross-town boulevard along the East River take front rank. In time more spokes will be required. The Brooklyn Chamber, passing by the Thirty-eighth Street Tunnel, advocated by several Manhattan organizations, proposes a bridge across the East River in the neighborhood of Tenth Street. This is an old project, which received the approval of the Department of Plant and Structures when GROVER WHALEN was commissioner, and has since won the support of the Mayor's Committee on Plan and Survey. It would relieve the congestion on the existing bridges and debouch at a point on Manhattan midway between the two business centres, where tall buildings are few and the cost of approaches might not prove excessive.

If all the proposals for traffic relief advanced during the last few months could be realized over night, Father Knickerbocker would awake some morning to find himself in a city which he would hardly recognize, with new streets cut the length of Manhattan, elevated highways along its edge, by-pass boulevards to east and west, new tunnels and bridges under and over his circumambient rivers, and possibly some of the tops lopped off his skyscrapers. But the city cannot be made over in a day. Great public improvements take money and time. Before the Board of Estimate passes on them it must make up its mind which ones should come first and how they are to be financed. The need for programming this work affords a strong argument for the early establishment of an official planning commission. The board has already referred the question of financing to a special committee. One of its members, President MCKEE of the Board of Aldermen, believes that the city is in a position to go ahead at once with some of the improvements proposed by the Brooklyn Chamber. That conclusion is in line with the findings of the Lehman committee, which reported to Mayor WALKER that ample city funds were available for such projects, in spite of the drain imposed on the treasury by the demands of rapid transit expansion.

THE NATION AND THE WAR VETERANS.

In his message to Congress President COOLIDGE said that "annual "expenditures for all forms of "veterans' relief now approximate "$765,000,000, and are increasing "from year to year." The pension roll is an honor roll, in his opinion. For that reason "it should include "all those who are entitled to its "benefits, but exclude all others." Mr. COOLIDGE added that "because "of the great liberality of the existing law the proposal of any additional legislation dealing with this "subject should receive most searching scrutiny from the Congress." There will be proposals from all the veterans' associations. The day before President COOLIDGE addressed Congress General FRANK T. HINES, Director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, transmitted to the President his annual report for the fiscal year ended June 30.

No other government has been so just and generous to veterans of the World War as that of the United States. It may have made a slow beginning and committed mistakes of organization, even failed to realize the full extent of the disabilities of demobilized soldiers and sailors. But there was much other legislation to engage the attention of Congress. The charge that it did not understand the problem of veteran relief at first and blundered in the solution cannot be refuted. But with the help of the American Legion and other veterans' associations it created a body of legislation designed to provide rehabilitation and relief for every soldier or sailor who had a real claim upon the Government. With the nation's treatment of war veterans EDWARD MCE. LEWIS of the staff of the American Legion deals in an article in January Current History. He makes out a good case against the Government's discharge of its responsibilities up to 1921, when "the United States Veterans' Bureau was born." Scandals in connection with relief agencies, especially those having to do with hospitalization, were deplorable. But with the construction of hospitals to be operated by the Veterans' Bureau "affairs began to improve." Mr. LEWIS admits that "they have continued to improve ever since," but not to the complete satisfaction of the war associations.

The World War veterans' act of 1924, now the basic law governing the affairs of the disabled, a consolidation of all previous laws with "about forty broadening and humanizing amendments," has often been amended, but, says Mr. LEWIS, "a "number of perfecting amendments "are necessary at the present time." Hospitals "have not been granted as rapidly as needed." More are required for the mentally afflicted. The peak in this kind of hospitalization may not be reached until 1947. "A splendid type of hospital is being "developed in an endeavor to cure "those still requiring treatment." There is criticism of General HINES because he is "averse to delegating authority" and passes upon questions that might be left to assistants. So the lesser officials "play safe on new decisions." Those of a generous nature are "the exception and not the rule in the Veterans' Bureau." Controller General MCCARL'S staff has "a long-established record of "discovering reasons why money "should not be spent."

Mr. LEWIS finds flaws in the way government insurance to veterans has been managed. It is true that it had "many sore spots." There is a good deal, however, in the way of large distributions for care and relief that will be found on the other side of the ledger. The Tyson-Fitzgerald act for the relief of disabled provisional officers was a fine piece of legislation. Mr. LEWIS has a right to rejoice over the effect of the soldiers' bonus law, because it has not proved a perilous financial burden. After all, a reading of General HINES'S report increases one's belief that the Veterans' Bureau is doing its difficult work with due regard for the needs of more than 1,000,000 veterans.

A MAN CROWNS THE HOUSEKEEPERS.

When women, or their pioneer leaders, began to take genuine interest in higher education the ardor of some of them gave their critics plenty of opportunity to make fun of them. The sight of women devoting themselves to philosophic, economic, biological or chemical studies threw some men into transports of ridicule. But after a time people began to find a woman's enthusiasm for science no more absurd than a man's. As greater numbers of women have been drawn into the colleges, courses have been modified to suit the increasing proportion of those who are not going to seek careers in business, the professions or scientific work. These newcomers are just as earnest about their study of home making, child-rearing and the attendant specialties as the first women college students were about more general topics. But now men of the same kind as those who made merry over the early bespectacled women undergraduates are finding in these other girl students an easy target for gibes.

One of these satirists, Mr. ARTURO F. RATTI, has busied himself accumulating data on housekeeping courses in American colleges. The article which results from his researches appears in the January American Mercury. The note of his humorous attitude toward the subject is sounded in his first paragraph, in which he calls it ironically "a first-grade science," on a level with "Arctic exploring, vocational guidance and osteopathy." Sometimes his wit is so pungently spiced with malice that one suspects he has recently eaten all his meals in a most unscientific Coffee Pot. He pokes fun at such titles in the curriculum as Home Administration. He calls the girls who study it "nascent home engineers." Under the brilliant light of his intelligence the United States Bureau of Home Economics becomes a "citadel of wisdom." He enjoys a cynical laugh because the girls at the University of Alabama study house planning, including interior decoration and plumbing.

No one will deny that all of these things may have comic aspects. The Department of Agriculture, for example, has sent out some extremely amusing bulletins. But the general view of young women who expect to marry, keep house and bring up a family studying how best to do it is not side-splitting. Their leaders may be getting them into finical debates on the digestibility of potatoes, but a little nonsense will not do them any harm. And neither will a little ridicule from such wits as Mr. RATTI.

UNNECESSARY HOSTILITIES.

An exceptionally articulate champion has found it necessary to fling down the gauntlet before JEHOVAH. First among his proclaimed war aims is the revision of the Ten Commandments in the light of the latest victories of science. His excitement is a bit hard to understand. The American Government has not seriously contemplated an invitation to the British Government to fight the siege of Yorktown over again. Mr. WILBUR WRIGHT is not at the present moment touring the country in defense of his theory that flight in a heavier-than-air machine is feasible. It is late in the day to call for the elimination of theology from the Decalogue. Several centuries after COPERNICUS, a century after the Glacial Theory, seventy years after "The Origin of Species," it is a shock to be reminded, with such emphasis, that Revelation can "no longer be cited in defense of biblical ethics."

The incentive for renewed hostilities, where none are necessary, is not hard to discover. Only the other day the age of the earth was lifted from 500,000 years to 900,000 years. The new 200-inch telescope will extend man's vision into space from a mere 100,000,000 light-years to 400,000,000 light-years. Two knockout blows for the Bible; yet Genesis as a chronicle of fact had its business settled by GALILEO'S original telescope and by the first moderate estimate of the geologists. The crucial decision occurred several hundred years ago when man was ousted from his job as the centre of creation. After that it hardly seems to matter whether man has ceased to be the boss of a universe nine ciphers big or eighteen.

This insistence upon fighting the battles of science all over again has its serious disadvantage. There is always danger in driving a beaten enemy to desperation. In such a mood he may suggest that he's not so sure about the 900,000 years which the earth is old and the 400,000,000 light-years which the 200-inch telescope embraces. He may suggest that the geologists have added 500,000 years to the age of the earth because the organic evolutionists found themselves in need of that extra amount of long-term credit. He will point out that the new physics has been taking on something of a theological cast, and the mysteries of the atom and the quantum are approaching the mysteries over which fought ATHANASIUS and ARIUS. He will quote BERTRAND RUSSELL to the effect that in a universe having no fixed point it is just as correct to say the sun turns around the earth as the earth around the sun. In this new universe of EINSTEIN, which is finite but not bounded, which is spatial in time and temporal in space, in which the past precedes the future, and here is around-the-corner, and everything is anywhere some time, it may yet turn out that Earth and we are the centre of things.

Reflection may yet show that GALILEO'S modest sighting-tube constituted a greater menace to the Ten Commandments than the forthcoming 200-inch telescope will be. Over GALILEO'S shoulder we peep into a universe big enough to shatter ancient authority, but not too big to stagger us. The 200-inch telescope invites us kindly to cast our eyes over 2,700,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 miles of space. After a good look at that sort of thing, the mind is apt to find much comfort in something fairly limited and concrete, like the desirability of honoring one's father and mother, guaranteeing a weekly day of rest to the toiling masses, and refraining from theft and murder.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

By His Gait.

In the Aeneid "by her tread the goddess revealed herself." Some boys have translated this "by her gait the goddess stood confessed," but there are still enough sarcastic Latin instructors to hold down that sort of construing. The point which VIRGIL sought to make is that great folk walk like great folk, and now New York is having a modern illustration in the ambulations of its Police Commissioner.

In The World he "appeared" at police stations and "fingered a yellow tea-rose at his lapel" as he talked of violent things. In The Herald Tribune he merely "entered" a station after Inspector MULROONEY had preceded him as equerry, crying: "Attention, men!" But in THE TIMES the matter of his bearing was definitely dealt with.

Throughout a three-column article Mr. WHALEN "strode." First he was seen by the Broadway crowds "striding along beside O'BRIEN." Then he "strode" into the West Forty-seventh Street station. After that he "dropped in" or "visited," and in THE TIMES he fingered no tea-roses, nor did he "appear" like Aphrodite over the warring armies about Troy, or like the Cheshire Cat in "Alice in Wonderland." But in all the papers he bore himself in a striding sort of way.

Neither Mr. ENRIGHT nor Mr. WARREN could do that. Mr. MCLAUGHLIN can stride a bit when he is out for exercise, and Mr. WOODS could break into a stride if he was so minded. But Mr. WHALEN is undoubtedly the peppiest ambulator of the lot.

Niagara Will Be Preserved.

The treaty between Canada and the United States signed at Ottawa on Wednesday assures the protection and perpetuation of Niagara Falls. The reports of the engineers made two years ago are the basis of a plan which provides for the erection of weirs in such a manner as to insure a greater flow of water over the sides of the "horseshoe." It has been decided that the fear that the Falls were "committing suicide" are unfounded.

Part of the project provides for greater diversion of water for power purposes. The two things are not mutually exclusive. By the proper construction of weirs and deflection dams it will be possible to raise the level of the flow at the Falls while at the same time slightly decreasing the total volume of water. This decrease is to be added to the flow of the power companies and is to be equitably divided between Canada and the United States.

The convention and protocol must be ratified in Canada and the United States. Unless our Senate feels bound to add some sort of reservation—a process which has become almost a habit—there is no reason to believe that work cannot be begun soon and the Falls made safe for the future.

Tree Diseases Neglected.

When a man who has been for thirty years State entomologist of New York makes a statement before a meeting of scientists to the effect that foresters, horticulturists and orchardists are neglecting the study of insect pests and diseases which injure shade trees his words cannot be lightly passed over. Dr. E. P. FELT knows the subject as do few other Americans.

Lack of coordination of effort and of closer cooperation between groups of scientists is largely responsible for this neglect. Individuals in Washington and at the various State agricultural colleges and experiment stations have long studied problems of tree diseases. But the slight comprehension of the subject may be judged not only by the failure to do anything to stem the chestnut blight, but by the responses last Summer when a Long Islander discovered a white grub destroying his Scotch pines, usually supposed to be almost immune from disease.

Federal and State authorities and local nurserymen with long experience on Long Island were unable to identify this grub or to suggest a satisfactory method of getting rid of it. There appears to be no existing system for following up such a discovery, which may be the forerunner of a new pest that will damage one of our hardiest surviving trees.

Home for Suicides.

A real suicide club has been established in Hungary. The government has converted a splendid ducal castle into a pleasant home for those who contemplate suicide. The object is to dissuade them from their fell purpose by giving them a comfortable environment, freedom from worry, and a brighter outlook on life. Books, orchestra music, moving pictures and radio are provided for the guests and, when necessary, mental treatment is given.

Most of the women inmates are said to be victims of unfortunate love affairs. They are attended by women psychologists. A week's treatment is generally enough to bring them round. As for the men, most of them are out of work and have families to look after. The government investigates their cases and endeavors to find jobs for them.

One of the chief difficulties of such an institution must be the problem of insuring an authentic clientele. The poor wretches who are fished out of the Danube or cut down from rafters are obviously bona-fide candidates. All others must be taken at their word, with the odds against them, for most persons who have arrived at the desperate point of suicide will fight shy of anything which might change their desperate decision. It would be a difficult matter to distinguish between the truly disconsolate and the malingerer looking for a new "racket."

QUESTION OF VALUATION.

Judgment of Customs Officials Is Not Always Satisfactory.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES today the Appraiser of the Port of New York said that tourists unwittingly enrich the country by overdeclaring value of foreign goods. The inference is given that it would be better to leave the valuation to the customs officials.

It is to laugh. I have made several trips abroad and found it quite different. Few customs officials will accept the word of the traveler. Some will even laugh at receipted bills, declaring rudely that it is not difficult to get sellers abroad to give one a bill for any amount.

My last trip was of considerably more than a year's duration. Shortly after arriving in England, in the very early Spring, I found that my American-made clothing was too light, so had a suit made in London. During our stay there I had three suits made for me that were found to be too heavy when we went to France the following Spring, so I had two light suits made in Paris.

In each case I retained the receipted bills to use upon re-entering the United States. When we arrived all of the clothing bore indubitable signs of wear. The customs officer waved aside the receipted bills, saying the valuation had to be based upon the cost of goods of equal quality in the United States. Consequently the cost of the suits made in England was doubled and that of those made in France was increased fully 50 per cent. After considerable argument he consented to allow 20 per cent reduction because all of the suits had been worn. It was the same with dresses brought in by my wife. Unless we paid, the alternative was to leave all of our possessions with him until a decision could be had "in a few days, or a week" from some one higher up. We paid. It was better to do so than to be subjected to the annoyance of having one's wearing apparel tied up. We also had trouble making him believe that much of our stuff had been taken with us when we went abroad, otherwise he would have assessed it.

Our experience was not unusual, for many people have made similar complaints. So that is why it makes me smile sardonically when the appraiser advises returning travelers to make no attempt to value the goods they bring in, and leave such valuation to the customs officials.

Conditions in the Antarctic.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

This is in regard to your editorial, "Byrd at the Barrier," in which you give various dates of arrival of other expeditions at the Barrier. Dec. 30, 1910, Scott entered Ross Sea and arrived at Cape Crozier, the western end of the Barrier, on Jan. 3, 1911. On that date Amundsen was 500 miles to the north and had not yet reached the pack-ice. Later on Feb. 3 it was Campbell and not Priestley who found the Fram in the Bay of Whales disembarking Amundsen. Priestley was geologist of Campbell's party, which Scott had hoped to land on King Edward VII Land, but which had met unfavorable ice conditions there—this party on the Terra Nova, was then skirting the Barrier en route to Cape Evans to inform Scott of Campbell's intention to carry out the alternative plan of landing at Robertson Bay or Cape Adare.

Discovery Inlet, so named by Scott on Jan. 29, 1902, very closely checks on Scott's charts with the data sent back by Byrd. The illustrious Englishman records a sounding there of 315 fathoms; the height of the cliffs on the southern side to vary from eight feet to 150 feet, while those on the seaward side attained a height of ninety feet. The "snow peaks to the southeast" discovered by Byrd are clearly shown on Scott's charts of this area, although Scott was the foremost exponent of the theory that the Barrier is afloat.

TO ONE GROWN OLD.

The years make lovelier all things
Lovely at heart—rose gardens known
To sun and dew through many Junes,
Where blossoms long have bloomed and blown.

Old dreaming homes brown with the sun,
Around whose doors the lilacs tell
Of love that lingers, though seasons bring
The Springtime's changing miracle.

Old paintings made by hands long dust,
Yet keeping in each tint and hue
The beauty caught when life was young
And love and fame were visions new.

Cathedrals old whose peace has heard
The centuries in chant and prayer,
Where hearts before the altar's glow
Have knelt and left all burdens there.

The years make lovelier all things
Lovely at heart. . . . So you to me
Are lovelier than youth; you keep Within love's immortality!

SAYS FEE SPLITTING IMPERILS MEDICINE

Dr. Hartwell, Academy's Head, Asserts It Means Possible Disaster to Profession.

DEPLORES ITS SECRECY

He Also Calls for Cheap Hospital Accommodations for Persons With Moderate Incomes.

The practice of fee-splitting among general practitioners and specialists in medicine is an evil which has grown to alarming proportions, Dr. John A. Hartwell, president of the New York Academy of Medicine, declared last night at the annual meeting of the academy at its building, 2 East 103d Street.

"The practice of medicine has become of such complexity," Dr. Hartwell said, "that the general practitioner is required to call upon the specialist for many services that formerly he accomplished himself.

"In essence, fee-splitting amounts to the family doctor receiving a rebate from the specialist for a service for which he is charging a separate fee, without the patient knowing that such a rebate is being paid.

"It results in two evils. First, the selection by the family physician of a specialist who will pay the rebate, which may readily lead to the employing of a less qualified man than would otherwise be obtained; and, second, an increased charge by the specialist to cover the unacknowledged rebate. It is a secret understanding between two professional men which they dare not bring into the open.

"No right-minded man can justify this, and disaster if not disgrace threatens the profession if it is tolerated."

Dr. Hartwell said that another medical problem which should be settled was the supplying of cheap hospital accommodations to persons with moderate incomes. He said that it was clear that the poor and the rich were better situated to receive adequate care than the middle class patients.

In the evening Dr. Hartwell said that the pay clinics, which have been opposed by members of the profession, sometimes provide even better treatment than can be given by the average practitioner. He added that although patients usually prefer the personal relations of a regular physician to the impersonal treatment of the average free clinic, the patronage of the newer pay clinics is increasing and in his opinion the profession should not oppose such developments. In support of this theory he said:

"If we do not provide for this emergency the solution will be forced upon us. The self-supporting clinic may eventually provide a distinct advantage to the whole medical profession."

Dr. Samuel W. Lambert, retiring president, reviewed the work of the academy during the last two years. He declared that its educational activities for physicians had been especially valuable.

DEFENDS PSYCHOANALYSIS.

Dr. Wittels Says It Has Shed Light In All Fields of Life.

Dr. Fritz Wittels of Vienna, in a lecture on "Psychoanalysis and Public Opinion" at the New School for Social Research last night, commented on the remarks of Dr. Knight Dunlap of Johns Hopkins concerning psychoanalysis at the psychology session of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Concerning the charge that psychoanalytic teachings have corrupted college girls, Dr. Wittels said he was "afraid that we have corrupted more than college girls."

"We have corrupted medicine," he declared, "forcing the doctors to admit psychical reasons for many diseases, such as so-called ulcers of the stomach, gall bladder attacks, disorders of the nose and throat and even appendicitis.

"These and many others have frequently been reduced to psychic causes. In the same way we have corrupted the literature of nearly all the countries of the civilized world. If a play, a novel or a poem is interesting and thrilling nowadays it certainly has some analytical oil in it. The works of O'Neill, Cummings, Lawson, in the United States; Proust, Lenormand in France; Arthur Schnitzler and Werfel in Austria are examples, to mention a very few.

"Likewise we have corrupted art and delivered to the artists the theory for their expressionism. Philosophers have had to change their teachings because of our postulate of the unconscious, and we have startled dogmatic religionists by our comparison of dogmas to the compulsion neuroses. We have even penetrated politics by exposing radicalism as a rebellion against the father authority.

"Education, criminology and anthropology have been so greatly corrupted by us that soon there will be no school and no school teacher who will not be thankful for the insight which we have given them."

URGES NEW POWER POLICY.

Gov. Gardiner, in Maine Inaugural, Wants Divorce From Politics.

AUGUSTA, Me., Jan. 3 (AP).—Governor Gardiner in his inaugural address today recommended the substitution of a "pay-as-you-use" for the present "pay-as-you-go" policy in highway construction and the "divorcing" of the subject of water power from politics.

The new Governor, referring to water power, called upon the members of the Legislature to "still the voices that are raised in attempts to subvert economic affairs to political ends."

The Fernald act, passed in 1918, prohibits the exportation of hydro-electric power. Frequent efforts have been made to repeal or amend the act, but they have failed in one of the houses of the Legislature or through veto by the Governor.

Although there is no certainty that the matter will be brought up at this session, a fact-finding committee of the Maine Development Commission, with the aid of a committee from the State Grange, is at work on a survey of the subject. The report will be placed before the lawmakers about the middle of the session, some time in February.

MORE FOR AIR CORPS IN ARMY FUND BILL

Total for All Military Purposes Is $328,338,815, an Increase of $16,937,827.

131,000 OFFICERS AND MEN

200 Lieutenants to Be Taken Into Flying Service—New Construction Authorized at Posts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Army aviation receives $33,578,683 for the fiscal year 1930, an increase of $8,730,121 over the current year, in the War Department appropriation bill which was reported today by the House Appropriations Committee.

For the entire department, the committee recommended $435,428,415, an increase of $35,111,774.50. The total included $328,338,815 for strictly military activities and $107,089,609 for those which are non-military, such as waterways, soldiers' homes and parks and Panama Canal improvements.

The increase for the entire department included $16,937,827.50 for military and $18,173,947 for non-military activities. Part of the increase included $2,272,000 for increased salaries under the Welch act. Increased pay for the army and construction at military posts called for larger appropriations.

The proposed allotment of the funds for the Air Corps, as outlined by the Appropriations Committee, shows the greatest part of the increase to be $5,601,835 for "production and purchase of new airplanes, their equipment, spare parts and accessories."

The appropriation in the current year for production and purchase is $11,837,445 and for the fiscal year 1930 it would be $17,439,280.

Other Provisions for Air Corps.

Other items for the air corps are:

Improvement of stations, hangars and gas plants for the regular army and for such other markings and fuel supply stations and temporary shelter as may be necessary—$3,267,000, an increase of $1,530,381.

Pay and expenses of civilian employes other than those employed in experimental and research work—$3,032,219, an increase of $237,858.

Procurement of helium—$132,000, a decrease of $68,000.

Experimental and research work with airplanes, or lighter-than-air craft, including pay of necessary civilian employes—$2,225,930, an increase of $55,930.

Normal operating expenses, ground equipment and runways—$7,000,000, an increase of $577,157.

Development of substitutes for raw materials—$15,000.

"The large increase for the production of new airplanes," the committee reported, "does not mean that a large number of planes will be purchased. The supplemental estimate for 1929, it is understood, will amount to $3,250,000, which will substantially reduce the margin of difference. The increase may be attributed to the purchase of a larger number of the more expensive types of planes, to the abandonment of the Liberty motor for new planes, and to the fact that, for the first time, we will be getting away from contract authorizations and provide all the money as we go."

Lag Behind Five-Year Program.

The program, it was explained, is to purchase 297 planes during 1930 for the use of the regular army, the organized reserves and the National Guard, twenty-two being intended for the latter.

"Including these proposed purchases," the committee said, "at the end of 1930 it is now estimated that we will be in arrears on the five-year program to the extent of 106 planes."

Technical construction at air corps stations is contemplated with $3,267,000 of the funds. For night flying, lighting systems at several air corps fields, $140,238 is provided. The bill includes a provision for taking 200 additional second lieutenants into aviation from the line of the army to bring up the officer strength.

Under the bill, the enlisted strength of the army remains at 118,750 men. The authorized officer strength is set at 12,820.

Construction Allotments.

Mitchel Field—Barracks, $280,000; noncommissioned officers quarters, $126,000.

Fort Wadsworth, N. Y.—Barracks, $250,000.

Fort Jay, N. Y.—Barracks, $300,000.

The San Antonio primary flying field in Texas receives for officers' quarters, $1,250,000; noncommissioned officers' quarters, $540,000, and baracks, $188,950.

Among the larger items of expenses as proposed are the following: Pay of the army, $133,550,368; subsistence, $24,374,552; transportation of the army, $16,802,731; field artillery armament, $8,322,640; National Guard—Arming, equipment and training, $26,836,47; organized reserves, $5,533,129; citizens' military training, $5,418,975.

RIVERS AND HARBORS GET $96,181,000 IN BILL

$30,000,000 Is to Be Expended for Flood Control Work on the Mississippi.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Improvement and maintenance of waterways, flood control on the Mississippi and other streams and development work on the Panama Canal will cost $96,131,000 for the fiscal year 1930 under the Army Appropriation bill as reported to the House today, of which $50,000,000 is for inland waterway projects, including harbors, and $30,000,000 for Mississippi flood control. Tributaries to the Mississippi would get $800,000 and flood control on the Sacramento River $5,370,000. The Panama Canal share is $10,011,000.

The Hudson River would get $1,100,000 for continuation of the 27-foot channel to Albany. Other improvements in New York provided for are: Glencove Creek, $26,750; Jamaica Bay, $750,000; Bay Ridge and Red Hook channels, $50,000; East River, $925,000; Newark Bay, Hackensack and Passaic rivers, $475,000; New York and New Jersey channels, $809,520.

The allotment for maintenance includes Echo Bay Harbor, $200; New Rochelle Harbor, $200; Flushing Bay Harbor, $20,000; Port Jefferson Harbor, $500; Sheepshead Bay, $300; New York Harbor, $100,000; Bay Ridge and Red Hook channels, $50,000; Gowanus Creek, $500; Wallabout channel, $200; Newtown Creek, $2,150; Wappinger Creek, $200, and Hudson River, $100,000.

The allotments for improvements in New York and New Jersey channels and for Newark Bay, Hackensack and Passiac rivers were for continuation of existing work.

Improvements at the approaches of other large harbors include:

Delaware River, Philadelphia to the sea, $1,400,000; Baltimore Harbor and channels, $255,750.

Air Mail Pilot's Widow Sues For $250,000 in Plane Crash

What was said by officials to be the first damage action to be brought in the Federal Court in Brooklyn for loss of life in an airplane, was filed yesterday by Mrs. Louise Chandler of Westbury, L. I. In the suit she seeks to collect $250,000 for the death of her husband, Harry A. Chandler, an air mail pilot. The action is directed against Richard J. Reynolds, the Reynolds Airways, Inc., the Atlantic Aircraft Corporation and the Fokker Airplane Corporation.

It is alleged that Chandler was killed at New Brunswick, N. J., in a Fokker plane on Sept. 17, 1927, while on leave. The complaint charges the defendants with negligence in that the plane was defective and was loaded beyond the capacity for which it was licensed.

Eye and Ear Specialist Was a Founder of Mount Vernon Hospital.

Dr. Robert T. Howe, for many years the leading eye, ear, throat and nose specialist in Mount Vernon, died Wednesday night at the Westchester Institute, South Second Avenue, Mount Vernon, where he had been a patient for more than a year and a half.

Dr. Howe was born in New York City, Sept. 17, 1852. He attended Columbia University and received the degree of doctor of medicine from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1876. For two years following he was an interne at St. Luke's Hospital, New York City. Dr. Howe came to Mount Vernon in 1884. He later became connected with the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Clinic at the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital.

He was a founder of the Mount Vernon Hospital and for many years was at the head of the eye clinic there. He was a charter member of the Mount Vernon Medical Society and was its president at one time. He was also president of the Westchester County Medical Society and a member of the New York State Medical Society, as well as the Jenkins Medical Society.

JOSEPH WILLARD LEGG.

Expert in Oscillography, a Branch of Electrical Engineering, Dies.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 3.—Joseph Willard Legg, an expert in oscillography, a branch of electrical engineering devoted to the recording and analysis of wave phenomena, died yesterday afternoon in Wilkinsburg from pneumonia. His age was 41.

As a member of the meter engineering staff of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company Mr. Legg was responsible for the development of many electrical devices. He invented osiso, a small portable oscillograph. One is now being experimentally used in St. Louis to help teach deaf persons to speak. Another is with Commander Byrd's expedition in the Antarctic, where it is being used in the study of radio "dead spots" and the reflection of radio waves. Others are being used for measuring intelligence, for measuring nerve response, for studying musical overtones, for locating oil wells, for measuring vibrations on trains, ships and elevators, and for recording the history of transient phenomena in electric circuits.

Another of Mr. Legg's inventions is the polar high-speed camera, which is capable of taking 3,000 photographs per second.

Mr. Legg was born in Worcester, Mass. He left a wife and two children.

CHARLES WILLIAM HUBNER.

Poet Laureate of South, Painter and Musician, Dies at 93.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Jan. 3.—Charles William Hubner, poet laureate of the South, painter, musician and historian, died this morning, two weeks before his 94th birthday. Death was due to pneumonia, which began with influenza.

Mr. Hubner's poems were assembled in eleven published volumes. He began writing poetry at the age of 10, and published his first poem at 16.

In 1852 his mother took the boy to Germany, where he devoted six years to the study of music, literature, art and the languages. At the age of 23 he became a teacher of music in Tennessee. When the War between the States began he enlisted in the Confederate ranks, serving until Appomattox. He was in many battles. At the siege of Atlanta, he was Major in charge of the Telegraph Corps of the Southern forces.

Charles Luman Knapp.

LOWVILLE, N. Y., Jan. 3 (AP).—Charles Luman Knapp, 81 years old, a former Congressman, died of heart disease today.

Mr. Knapp was elected to the New York State Senate in 1886 and served one term. In 1889 he was appointed by President Harrison as Consul General at Montreal, and served throughout the Harrison Administration. In 1901 he was elected to Congress and served three consecutive terms, after which he retired to resume his private practice of law in this village.

He was born at Martinsburg, near here, and was graduated from Rutgers in 1869.

Prof. W. H. Van der Smissen.

TORONTO, Jan. 3.—Professor William Henry Van der Smissen of the University of Toronto died last night in his eighty-fifth year. He was a member of the university senate and professor emeritus of German in University College.

HARRY S. LEHR DIES; ONCE SOCIAL LEADER

Succumbs to a Brain Malady in Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore.

LATE MRS. ASTOR'S ADVISER

Noted for Daring and Originality of His Parties—Married Mrs. J. V. Dahlgren, Heiress.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 3.—Harry Symes Lehr, for many years prominent in society of New York, Newport, Baltimore and Paris, died today of a brain disorder at Johns Hopkins Hospital, where he had been a patient for several weeks.

Nearly two years ago he underwent an operation at the same hospital for removal of a tumor from the brain. He appeared to have recovered and returned to Paris, where he and Mrs. Lehr had made their home for years. Mrs. Lehr is now in Paris.

The first signs of Mr. Lehr's illness appeared in 1923. His brother, Dr. Louis Lehr, went to the French capital to attend him. The patient spent some time in a Paris hospital, where French physicians, his brother and Dr. Walter Dandy, Johns Hopkins surgeon, cared for him. He took Dr. Dandy's patient in his last illness.

For some weeks, it is said, it had been clear that Mr. Lehr could not recover.

Quickly Got Into Limelight.

Mr. Lehr, leader of many cotillons and social adviser of the late Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish and the late Mrs. William Astor, sprang from obscure social origin almost overnight into the position of social arbiter of New York, Newport and Baltimore in the late '90s.

There was a time when his social eccentricities, including bizarre pranks, under the patronage of various wealthy social leaders, made him the most talked about and widely paragraphed man in America.

He gained the favorable attention of the late Mrs. William Astor, then leader of New York's "Four Hundred." He became known as court jester to Mrs. Astor through his playful escapades. Afterward the late Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish was quick to see the advantages of having Harry Lehr run her social entertainments. Society had become bored and wanted to get away from the formal, long-drawn-out dinners. Young Lehr possessed the faculty of bounding from one extreme to another. He always had a little bag of surprises in store, and he performed his social tricks in such a simple and innocent way that not even the strait-laced members of the smart set could take offense.

He set on parties in which he displayed the originality and daring of a Barnum. He performed fancy dances, led cotillons and entertained with repartee. Once he waded in a fountain at midnight in full evening dress, together with several pretty society women in elaborate gowns.

Furore Over "Monkey Dinner" Story.

On another occasion he was reported to have given a dinner at Newport to a monkey. The simian guest, in special-made evening clothes, was said to have become boisterous and to have pelted the guests with champagne glasses. The report of this "monkey dinner" amazed even the sophisticated leaders of the smart sets in London and Paris. As a result, there were sermons from the pulpits of this country against society's decadence and wanton extravagance.

Mr. Lehr denied he ever had given such a dinner, and his friends say he resented the furore that it caused. He seemed to become weary of his sensational social success after this, for his "circus stunts" had caught the popular fancy. Accordingly, he began to drop out of the spotlight.

In June, 1901, Mr. Lehr married Mrs. John Vinton Dahlgren, a widow, the former Miss Elizabeth Drexel, daughter of John Wilhelm Drexel, Philadelphia banker and partner of the late J. Pierpont Morgan. The marriage in St. Patrick's Cathedral was a brilliant social event. The ushers were wealthy social leaders, including George J. Gould, Oliver H. P. Belmont, Arthur Kemp and Elisha Dyer. On the same day, in Grace Church, James A. Stillman married Anne Urquhart Potter.

Several years later Mr. and Mrs. Lehr took up residence in Paris. They gave brilliant fêtes and Mr. Lehr occupied much the same position he had abandoned in America. During the Winter of 1907, when they visited the Emperor of Germany and the Crown Prince it was reported in the newspapers that he had horrified German royalty in the matter of clothes and in his methods of ignoring the stiff etiquette of the German Court.

An Excellent Musician.

Mr. Lehr was the son of a German Consul in Baltimore. As a young man he was rather Teutonic in appearance with a round face, pinkish cheeks and tawny hair. He was an excellent musician and often played the piano with the late Mrs. Astor as his audience in the socially historic mansion at 840 Fifth Avenue, which was demolished two years ago.

As the years passed he grew more serious, and almost outlived his reputation as the court jester of New York society. After going to Paris he embarked on a business career. During the World War he devoted all his time to hospital work for wounded soldiers.

Henry C. Fry Sr.

ROCHESTER, Pa., Jan. 3 (AP).—Henry C. Fry Sr., 88 years old, president of the H. C. Fry Glass Company, died at his home here today. Mr. Fry, known as the dean of Eastern glass manufacturers, rose from shipping clerk to be owner of one of the largest plants in Western Pennsylvania. He was a veteran of the Civil War. A widow, two sons and three daughters survive. Mrs. H. J. Sage of New York is a daughter.

George H. Hindersman.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Jan. 3.—George H. Hindersman, 77, president of the Hindersman Flour Company, died last night. He had been head of the company bearing his name for the last twenty years. Mr. Hindersman was a member of the Knights of Pythias, the Masons and the National Union Society. He leaves a sister, Miss Lillian Hindersman, with whom he lived.

The Rev. Brother Abnis.

TORONTO, Jan. 3.—The Rev. Brother Abnis, one of the best known of the Christian Brothers in Toronto, died yesterday of pneumonia. He was born in County Clare, Ireland, in 1848, and began his teaching career at New York in 1867. His name originally was Patrick McAuliffe.

'MOTHER MACHREE' DEAD.

Mrs. Ball, Who Inspired Son's Famous Song, Stricken Suddenly.

Mrs. Nannie Ball, who was the inspiration for her son's famous song, "Mother Machree," died suddenly on Wednesday night at her home, 1,448 157th Street, Beechhurst, L. I., of heart disease. Her age was 71. Funeral services will be held at the house today at 2:30 P. M. Burial will be in Cleveland beside the son, Ernest R. Ball, who died in like manner nearly two years ago.

Besides "Mother Machree," which has been heard all over the world, Mr. Ball turned out a countless number of ballads. Many years ago, he collaborated with Mayor James J. Walker in writing "Will You Love Me in December as You Do in May?" Among his other songs that were popular are "Let the Rest of the World Go By," "Till the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold," "Boy of Mine," "Garden of My Heart," "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," and "Mother of Pearl."

Julius P. Witmark, Mr. Ball's publisher, was deeply affected by Mrs. Ball's death. "I talked with her over the phone only yesterday," he said. She appeared quite cheerful. The death of her son broke her heart. His song "Mother Machree" came out in 1910 and was originally written for Chauncey Olcott and sung by him in 'Barry of Ballymore.' John McCormack took it all over the world. None of his programs was complete without it."

Mrs. Ball is survived by three grandchildren, Roland, Ruth Mary and Ernest A. Ball.

Henry Barnard Brownell.

Henry Barnard Brownell died late on Wednesday night at the Staten Island Hospital after a brief illness. His home was at 8 Phelps Place, New Brighton.

Born at East Orange, N. J., on Nov. 8, 1865, Mr. Brownell was graduated from Yale University in 1888 and later from the Georgetown University Law School. He was a member of the firm of Bartlett & Brownell, attorney at law at 120 Broadway. He was vestryman of Christ Church, New Brighton.

James Tracey Wheeler.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Jan. 3.—Funeral services for James Tracey Wheeler were held here today. He had spent forty-two years in service on the New York Central as a locomotive engineer, during which he ran some of its most famous trains and traveled more than 2,500,000 miles. Mr. Wheeler, who died of heart disease in his seventy-fourth year, for seven years hauled the Empire State Express, and also for years hauled the Lake Shore Limited. He prided himself on never having lost by death either a passenger or a train hand. He was a Mason. He left a wife and two brothers. He was born in Richmond, Mass. Burial was in Hillside Cemetery here.

Henry Breunich.

Henry Breunich, a retired coal merchant who had long been prominent in Masonic affairs, died Tuesday at his residence, 632 East 231st Street, in his eightieth year. He was a Past Master of Germania Lodge, F. and A. M., Past District Deputy Grand Master, Past Treasurer of Ivanhoe Commandery, Knights Templar, and an honorary member of Columbian Council, Royal and Select Masters. He is survived by his widow, two daughters and seven sons. Funeral services will be held at 8 o'clock this evening in Hopewell Masonic Temple, 641 East 233d Street, near White Plains Avenue. The interment service will be held privately.

Robert A. Speed.

MEMPHIS, Jan. 3 (AP).—Robert A. Speed, 65, veteran riverman and for many years active in the business and political life of Memphis, died today of pneumonia which followed an attack of influenza.

While a clerk on a Mississippi wharf boat, Mr. Speed became personally acquainted with Samuel L. Clemons, who adopted the pen name of "Mark Twain" after retiring as a pilot on the Mississippi River.

Arlington Burial for Anna Maxwell.

Funeral services for Miss Anna Caroline Maxwell, who was for thirty years director of the Nurses School of the Presbyterian Hospital, will be held in the chapel of the Union Theological Seminary, 120th Street and Broadway, at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Burial will take place in Arlington Cemetery, Washington, D. C., at 10:30 Monday morning.

Nathan Poole Gifford.

BOSTON, Jan. 3 (AP). — Nathan Poole Gifford, father of Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, died at his home here today, in his seventy-fifth year. Funeral services will be held on Saturday in Salem, his birthplace.

William Craig Chisholm.

MONTREAL, Jan. 3 (By the Canadian Press).—William Craig Chisholm, general counsel of the Canadian National Railways and formerly City Solicitor of Toronto, died suddenly from a heart attack at his home here early today. He was 65 years of age.

W. C. ADAMSON DIES; 8-HOUR LAW AUTHOR

LONG A POWER IN CONGRESS

Panama Canal Law and That for Physical Valuation of Railroads Largely His Work.

William Charles Adamson, former Judge of the United States Customs Court here and former United States Representative from Georgia, died at 6 o'clock last night in Presbyterian Hospital of pneumonia after an illness of eleven days. He was 74 years old.

For some time before his death, artificial respiration had been resorted to. At his bedside were his wife, his sons Charles, Reese and Ernie; his wife's sister, Mrs. Estelle Haylock; his cousin, Robert Adamson, New York banker and former Fire Commissioner, and Mrs. Robert Adamson.

Mr. Adamson had come to New York for the holidays and stayed at the Robert Fulton Hotel, from which he went to the hospital on Christmas Day. Physicians declared that he displayed remarkable resistance to the disease for a man of his age. Until shortly before death, he was able to recognize persons, and conversed cheerfully with them.

The body will lie in state at the Campbell Funeral Church, Broadway at Sixty-sixth Street, today. Funeral services and burial will be in Carrollton, Ga., on Sunday.

Ran a Farm as a Child.

Mr. Adams was born at Bowdon, Ga., on Aug. 13, 1854. A mere child during the Civil War, he was left nominally in charge of a cotton farm and, with a toy hoe, attempted to "work the crop." As his mother had intended to have him become a preacher, he was required to memorize a hundred passages a week from the Bible. Later he went to college, receiving both the bachelor and master degrees in arts. Uninclined toward the ministry, he entered, at his father's suggestion, the law. He was admitted to the bar in 1876, and practiced in the State and Federal courts and before the Interstate Commerce Commission. From 1885 to 1889 he was Judge of the City Court of Carrollton, Ga.

In 1892 he was a Democratic Presidential elector. He represented the Fourth Georgia District in Congress from 1897 to 1919. During the World War, as chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, he was author of the Eight Hour Railroad bill that became a law. It probably was this bill prohibiting railroad employes from working more than eight hours a day, except in cases of emergency, that first brought him into nation-wide prominence. It made strikes and lockouts illegal, except after ninety-day notice. Under its provisions the President was empowered to take control of the railways during war or other national emergency.

Other congressional activities which made Mr. Adamson one of the outstanding members of the House were Panama Canal legislation, which he drafted and was credited with having engineered through to enactment; the law for physical valuation of railroads and the Interstate Commerce Commission act. He also drew the bill for the creation of the present quarantine system and the Public Health Service, and engineered the passage through the House of the soldiers and sailors' insurance bill.

On Customs Court Bench.

He retired in September, 1917, to accept appointment to the Court of Customs Appeals here, one of the best positions within the gift of President Wilson at that time. He held the post until a year ago, when he withdrew from it to resume his legal practice.

KEEFE BROTHERS DEAD.

Thomas J., Chicago Capitalist, Survives Daniel Only Two Hours.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3 (AP).—Two hours after Daniel J. Keefe, former member of the United States Shipping Board, died in Elmhurst, a suburb, yesterday, his brother, Thomas J. Keefe, retired capitalist, died.

Thomas Keefe started his career with Marshall Field & Co. and later entered the investment business. He is survived by a widow.

The death of Daniel Keefe was reported in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday.

Asher Curtis.

Special to The New York Times.

MANASQUAN, N. J., Jan. 3—Asher Curtis, 81 years old, dropped dead of heart disease in his home here last night. He was a retired sea captain, former Councilman, president of No. 1 Fire Company, treasurer of the Manasquan Building & Loan Association and a prominent Mason. He left three sisters, Mrs. Emma J. Benedict, who lived with him; Mrs. Hudson Birdsall of Manasquan and Mrs. George Vunck of Ocean Grove. Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon.

George Bausch.

Mr. Bausch, the first optician in Syracuse, came to Rochester from his native Germany at the age of 15, working for his uncle at the Bausch & Lomb plant.

Mr. Bausch founded an optical company bearing his name in Syracuse in 1880.

Victor Kleiber.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Jan. 3 (AP).—Victor Kleiber, 71, secretary of the International Moulders' Union of North America, and connected with many labor movements in the United States, died here today.

He was elected secretary in 1909 and was re-elected at every succeeding convention.

Obituary Notes.

EDWARD J. LEARY, who had been city editor of the Evening Herald and Herald-News of Fall River, Mass., died at his home there yesterday. He left a wife, daughter and two sons.

WITHHOLD BOOKS ON SUB-METERING

Witnesses at Public Service Hearing Reluctant to Show Business Details.

THREAT OF PRIVATE PLANTS

These Would Follow Wiping Out of Wholesale Current Buying, Commission Is Told.

Unwillingness by electric sub-metering concerns to furnish books and financial documents of their business to the inquiry before the Public Service Commission into the sub-metering business in New York City was exhibited by officers of such companies called to the stand at yesterday's hearing.

Frank Hecker, director of the Economy Electric Meter Company, Inc., operating in the Bronx, declared flatly that he would not produce certain books of his company which had been subpoenaed by William L. Ransom, counsel for the Brooklyn Edison Company, which is opposed to sub-metering. He finally agreed to supply them to the commission itself, provided they would be treated as confidential by the commissioners, but said he would furnish no documents to "representatives of the public utility companies."

Charles Zeiss, secretary of the Electric Meter Service Corporation, called to the stand for the purpose of producing books of his company, said that he had no such books with him. William A. Clark, counsel for the company, interposed, and explained that while the company wished to give the commission all pertinent information, it did not propose to strip its offices of all books to the extent of causing a complete stoppage of business.

The investigation seeks to determine the legality of the sub-metering concerns operating in the city, which buy current at wholesale from the electric companies, and sell it through sub-meters, at higher rates, to individual tenants of large buildings. Chairman Prendergast said yesterday that the public service law was designed to assure equal rates to consumers, and the investigation would carry to a conclusion the question of whether or not the practice of sub-metering was in violation of the law.

Ralph Dudley, partner in the H. A. Curtis Company, a sub-metering concern, said that large realty holdings might install their own electric generating plants in the event that sub-metering was abolished. The profits from sub-metering to such large holdings aggregated a considerable item, he said, and private plants would be a probability in the event that these profits were wiped out through outlawing of sub-metering.

The eliminating of sub-metering would practically wipe out the wholesale business of the New York Edison Company, Mr. Dudley said. His own company has a number of large clients, including the Trinity Church Corporation, Sailors Snug Harbor Corporation, Vincent Astor, and Columbia University, and his companies' rates, he said, were, in some instances, 40 per cent lower than the Edison Company's retail rates.

Reginald P. Bolton, president of the Electric Meter Corporation, agreed with most of Mr. Dudley's conclusions when he testified later. His company, he explained, does not buy and sell electric current, but confines itself to the installation and upkeep of sub-meters at an annual charge to its clients.

The investigation will be continued Monday morning.

SMOKE INJURES SEVEN IN JERSEY CITY FIRE

200 Persons Flee From Apartment House Blaze—Firemen Work Two Hours to Check Flames.

Seven persons suffered from the effects of smoke and about 200 others were driven to the street early yesterday by a fire in an apartment house at 275 Harrison Avenue, Jersey City. Six companies of firemen fought the blaze for two hours. The apartment was occupied by forty families.

The fire started, according to the police, in a telephone booth in the ground floor hall, rear. It is believed some one using the booth dropped a lighted cigarette on the floor. When policemen arrived the smoke was billowing upward and spreading into the house next door.

Firemen found the flames working upward through the closets on each floor. On the first floor, however, they had passed through the walls and reached the kitchen of a rear apartment.

On one of the upper floors Patrolmen Davis and McFarland found Mrs. Anna Seeley, 40 years old, an investigator for the Hudson County juvenile court, and Miss Harriett Wolfe, 80 years old, who was ill. Both were suffering from smoke inhalation. The policemen administered first aid. On the third floor Patrolman Le Strange found Mr. and Mrs. George Getz and their family of three children, all suffering from smoke.

BERENGARIA 24 HOURS LATE.

Constance Talmadge and Sir Henry Austin Among Passengers.

Delayed twenty-four hours by heavy weather the Cunard liner Berengaria arrived yesterday from Cherbourg and Southampton. She carried 917 passengers, of whom 325 were in the first class. Captain Sir Arthur Rostron, her commanding officer, said that she had encountered large swells but little heavy wind. He said that at times she was slowed to ten knots.

On board the liner was Constance Talmadge, her sister, Norma Talmadge, who in private life is Mrs. Joseph M. Schenck, and their mother, Mrs. M. Talmadge. They have been in France, Italy and Spain.

Miss Talmadge was met at the pier by Townsend Netcher of Chicago, to whom she has been reported to be engaged. Both she and Mr. Netcher denied the engagement.

Also on the liner were Sir Henry Austin, president of the Austin Motor Car Company, Ltd., who has been described as the Henry Ford of England; R. N. Speaight, photographer to the King of Belgium and the Prince of Wales, and a chorus of Prague teachers under the leadership of Professor M. Bolezil.

Sir Henry Austin brought with him several of his 7-horsepower "Baby Austin" cars which he will exhibit at the New York automobile show.

ROCKEFELLERS UNITE TWO PHILANTHROPIES

Foundation and Laura Spelman Memorial Are Merged With Wider Program.

ASSETS ARE $264,602,447

Sum Is Greatest Ever Placed in a Single Endowment Fund of Its Kind.

SCOPE OF ACTIVITIES BROAD

It Will Include Work in Natural, Social and Medical Sciences and the Humanities.

The Rockefeller Foundation and the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial were consolidated yesterday into a new philanthropic corporation, also to be known as the Rockefeller Foundation, with total net assets of $264,602,447, by far the greatest sum which has ever been concentrated in a single philanthropic endowment fund.

The new Foundation, which "will aim primarily at the advancement of knowledge," will include in its activities the public health and medical education and research work of the old Foundation, the social science work of the Memorial and a portion of the program of the International Education Board. The fourth great Rockefeller benefaction, the General Education Board, is not affected by the consolidation.

A statement issued by Raymond B. Fosdick, chairman of a special committee on the readjustment of the relations of the Rockefeller boards, declared that "among the reasons for the consolidation was the desire to avoid overlapping in the work done by the two consolidating corporations and to insure greater unity and cooperation in carrying out the programs which have heretofore been administered under the two boards independently."

Merged for Kindred Purposes.

An order approving the consolidation was signed by Supreme Court Justice Mitchell on petition of George E. Vincent, president of the Foundation, and Arthur Woods, acting president of the Memorial. The petition recited that the organizations had been incorporated for kindred purposes. The written consent of Frank P. Graves, State Commissioner of Education, was also filed with the court.

The petition set forth that the assets of the Foundation totaled $158,090,543.04 and of the Memorial $55,127,585.42, giving the new Foundation assets of a book value of $203,298,503.46. The actual market value of the securities held by the consolidating corporations, however, was listed at $273,841,262.10 and other assets listed are valued at $30,332,868.16, thus furnishing the new fund with assets of an actual value of $313,173,180.26. The liabilities assumed by the new Foundation total $48,671,183.15.

The first act of the trustees of the new Foundation was to set aside from the principal the sum of $35,000,000 to provide for outstanding obligations. This left a net capital fund with a book value of $168,298,503.24 and an actual value of $278,173,180.26, but with liabilities still outstanding of $13,671,183.15.

The old Rockefeller Foundation owned bonds with a book value of $28,791,100.59 and a market value of $29,773,747.81; stocks with a book value of $98,811,080.82 and a market value of $163,803,476.84; land, buildings and equipment worth $422,973.65, and cash, secured loans and receivables amounting to $30,065,408.04.

Its liabilities aggregated $21,781,605.23. The Foundation received in 1928 $9,175,550.18 from interest, dividends and gifts.

Holdings of Memorial.

The Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial included in its holdings bonds with a book value of $33,332,806.13 and a market value of $44,519,199.75; stocks with a book value of $98,811,080.82 and a market value of $163,803,476.84; land, buildings and equipment worth $422,973.65, and cash, secured loans and receivables totaling $3,843,986.49.

The income of the memorial in 1928 was $4,693,069.18. Its liabilities totaled $26,889,577.92.

Dr. George E. Vincent, president of the old foundation, retains that office in the consolidated organization. He will direct its work through an International Health Division, the activities of which will be directly supervised by a group of seven scientific directors and through four directors, one each for the natural sciences, the social sciences, the medical sciences and the humanities.

The members and officers of the new Rockefeller Foundation follow:

Members: James R. Angell, Trevor Arnett, John W. Davis, David L. Edsall, Simon Flexner, Raymond B. Fosdick, Jerome D. Greene, Ernest M. Hopkins, Charles P. Howland, Vernon Kellogg, John D. Rockefeller Jr., Julius Rosenwald, Anson Phelps Stokes, Frederick Strauss, Augustus Trowbridge, Dr. Vincent, George H. Whipple, William Allen White, Ray Lyman Wilbur, Arthur Woods and Owen D. Young.

To Carry Out Fellowship Program.

The new Foundation will, among its other activities, carry out the fellowship program of the International Education Board and will in the future provide aid to the natural sciences abroad which that board has recently been giving. It will also continue the social science program developed by the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial.

A new corporation, the Spelman Fund of New York, has been created to continue the work heretofore carried on by the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial in the advancement and diffusion of knowledge concerning child life, the improvement of inter-racial relations and cooperation with public agencies. The amount of its capital fund was not announced.

The members and officers of the Spelman Fund are as follows: Members, Winthrop W. Aldrich, Cleveland E. Dodge, Raymond B. Fosdick, Thomas W. Lamont, Beardsley Ruml and Arthur Woods. Officers: Arthur Woods, chairman; Beardsley Ruml, executive; Revell McCallum, secretary; Louis Guerineau Myers, treasurer.

The Rockefeller Foundation was established by John D. Rockefeller in 1913 with a gift of $100,000,000, to which he added $25,000,000 in 1917. In its articles of incorporation its purpose was set forth as "to promote the well-being of mankind throughout the world." Its principal undertakings have been in the fields of public health, medical education and research, and the biological sciences.

The Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial was established by Mr. Rockefeller in October, 1918, in memory of his dead wife. Its principal activities have been in the social sciences and the promotion of child welfare.

In his announcement yesterday Mr. Fosdick said:

"Since the four Rockefeller boards, viz., the General Education Board, the Rockefeller Foundation, the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial and the International Education Board, were established their trustees have distributed from capital funds a total of $225,000,000. This is exclusive of appropriations from income. Even when the increase in market value of securities has been taken into account, the appropriations from principal represent a substantial reduction in the endowments of these boards. This is in accordance with the long-established policy of all the Rockefeller boards to spend from principal as well as from income whenever effective opportunities within the limits of their activities are created."

ROBOT BROUGHT HERE BUT SHUNS INTERVIEW

Capt. Richards Says His Mechanical Man Will Come to Life When Through Customs.

Captain W. H. Richards, model engineer, who built and demonstrated in England several months ago a mechanical man which talks, rises and sits down, and which performs various simple operations, arrived yesterday on the Cunarder Berengaria.

His robot accompanied him, but in spite of its undoubted accomplishments, did not grant an interview to the ship news reporters. At the time when it should have been answering questions as to what it thought of the skyline it reposed peacefully in a box about the size of a coffin. However, according to the inventor, when it is through the customs—for it has to deal with these rather than with the immigration officials—it will rise and come to life.

Describing his invention, Captain Richards said that the mechanical man was made of aluminum and weighed about 140 pounds. It looks like a knight in armor, he said. He added that it could talk for four hours and that it was animated by 35,000 volts of electrical current. Its speech, he said, is facilitated by a mysterious set of teeth.

Asked how the man works, Captain Richards said: "Ah, there's the catch. If I were to tell that there would be nothing more to tell. That's my secret and I propose to keep it."

Captain Richards admitted that the robot had one limitation.

"It cannot walk," he said, "for that requires a sense of balance."

And a sense of balance, apparently, is one thing a robot cannot have.

WIDOW OF SMATHERS ADJUDGED COMPETENT

Court Orders Ewing to Turn Over to Her $1,000,000 Estate of Sportsman.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 3.—In a decision filed today by Supreme Court Justice Taylor, Mrs. Anna S. Smathers of Asheville, N. C., widow of Elmer Ellsworth Smathers, wealthy horse exhibitor and sportsman, who died a year ago, was adjudged sane and competent to manage her business affairs and Carruthers Ewing, attorney of 41 West Forty-second Street, Manhattan, was ordered to turn over to Mrs. Smathers property amounting to approximately $1,000,000 left by her husband.

The decision was on an application of Morris, Plant & Saxe of 27 Pine Street, Manhattan, to compel Mr. Ewing, who was formerly Mrs. Smathers's attorney, to turn over to her the property and her power of attorney. Mr. Ewing contended Mrs. Smathers was not competent to handle her own business affairs and charged that if the law firm received control of her property relatives might get hold of it.

While admitting he had no claim or lien on the Smathers property, Mr. Ewing declared he wanted to shift responsibility for the transfer to a Supreme Court Justice. Several weeks ago Justice Taylor sent Leroy N. Mills of Mount Vernon to Asheville with alienists to examine Mrs. Smathers. Under the terms of her husband's will she inherited approximately $1,000,000 in stocks and jewelry and $100,000 a year for life. Forty-seven other legatees received large bequests.

Quaker City Neighbors Ran Community Still at Night

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 3.—The community still has arrived in South Philadelphia, according to a detective who found six barrels of evil-smelling mash in the bedroom of a tenant on Second Street.

The owner of the mash admitted that a group of men and women in the neighborhood had formed a "guild" to make their own liquor. One furnished a portable gas stove, another a boiler, a third supplied a coil, a fourth had a condenser and a fifth the rest of the equipment.

On "meeting nights" they assembled at a member's house, cooked the mash, distilled the alcohol and left in peace.

The police could not arrest any one for possessing a separate unit of the still, but future meetings of the "guild" have been postponed.

SAY FIREMEN STOLE AT CHURCH BLAZE

Tenants of Apartments Report Thefts While Riverside Edifice Was Burning.

CHARGES AROUSE KENLON

He Promises Prison for Any Found Guilty — Banton Continues Hales Death Inquiry.

While officials of the Fire Department continued yesterday their investigation of the death of Norman St. Clair Hales, who died after falling down the firehouse pole in Engine Company 23's quarters at 215 West Fifty-eighth Street early New Year's morning, complaints from tenants of apartments near the Riverside Church that firemen had looted their homes at a recent fire in the church so aroused Fire Chief John Kenlon that he promised terms in Sing Sing to any fireman found guilty of theft.

Firemen ordered tenants of the Dacona, 620 West 122d Street, and tenants at 99 Claremont Avenue to the street when fire was discovered in the adjoining church on the night of Dec. 21. Chief Kenlon, who directed the fire-fighting forces, said yesterday that he had requested a strong police line with picked policemen at the doors of the apartment houses. Tenants in both buildings reported losses of money and jewelry when they returned, and according to one of them no persons were allowed in the buildings except those in uniform until the blaze was under control. They also said their reports to the police were ignored, while Police Headquarters and the West 100th Street station both reported no complaints had been made.

Promises Vigorous Action.

"If there is anything wrong with the Fire Department or any individuals in it, I want to find it out and correct it," he said. "There has never been any question of the men's efficiency and courage, but this infernal charge of pilfering is with us now and always has been. I am going to try to prevent its extending into the future. Every time I've heard this accussation I have been grieved and stunned by it. I have talked to the men about the stain it leaves on the department. If there is a thief in the department I want to get him out. A thief is a thief, whether in a fireman's uniform or citizen's clothes. Any fireman responsible for such a crime should be in Sing Sing."

Chief Kenlon said the Bureau of Fire Investigation would sift the complaints and would also take steps to prevent other trouble. Firemen leaving a building will be required to throw open their clothes in the future, he said, to allay suspicion and discourage petty thievery. He admitted that though departmental records would show which companies were at the fire it would be difficult to prove theft against any individuals. He said the charges of looting were probably true.

Complaints by Tenants.

Complaints were made by Mrs. Sarah E. Stearns, who said she lost three Christmas presents, two fountain pens, three rings, $29 in cash and a Swiss clock; C. W. Ranns, who said he lost two watches, two rings, a razor stropper and a dollar bill; Royce Hubert, who reported the loss of a box of scarf pins, some set with diamonds, a belt, a ring and $5 in cash, and A. J. Postley, who said he lost a $200 ring and a small flashlight. All the complainants lived in the Dacona and had left their valuables on dressers. Postley said he had written to Police Commissioner Whalen and had received a promise of action. Commissioner Whalen said that as there were only uniformed men in the building, he considered it a matter for the Fire Department to investigate. If robbery were proved, however, he said the police would take it up.

Other complaints came from tenants of the Claremont Avenue house, owned by Union Theological Seminary and occupied largely by its students. Charles White, bursar of the seminary, said half a dozen apartments had been robbed. Jewelry and clothes were taken from the apartment of Bruce Curry; $25 and some dress studs from that of William Morgan and $18 from another apartment.

Fire Marshal Thomas Brophy, commanding the Bureau of Fire Investigation, said last night that he would begin active investigation this morning. If he finds crime has been committed by either firemen or civilians, he said, he would inform the police and the District Attorney.

Investigates Hales Death.

District Attorney Banton said yesterday that he had examined sixteen witnesses in Hales's death and had six more to question today. He said that all firemen in the engine house responded to an alarm just at the time that Hales fell through the polehole.

At the office of Fire Commissioner Dorman it was said six charges are to be made against Lieutenant P. Joseph Connolly, suspended on Wednesday for violation of departmental regulations. Connolly will be charged with permitting visitors after 9 P. M., allowing women in the firehouse though they are barred at all times; failure to enter the visitors' names in the house journal, permitting a social gathering in the firehouse, failure to take proper action on violations of rules and failure to report an unusual occurrence to his superiors.

Policeman George McKnight of Traffic C appeared yesterday before Inspector Joseph Loonam on charges that he failed to take proper police action by not reporting Hales's death. Inspector Loonam ordered the policeman before the trial commissioner.

Hales will be buried at noon on Saturday after services at the Campbell Funeral Church. Interment will be in the Actors' Fund plot in Kensico Cemetery.

Yale Will Build Four Residence Quadrangles To House 750 Students in Small Units

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 3 (AP.)—Residential quadrangles, four in number, two to be erected when sites and funds are available for undergraduate accommodations, were decided upon by Yale Corporation at the directors' meeting. This action will be announced by Yale Alumni Weekly tomorrow.

The quadrangles will provide for about 750 students, the number now without adequate dormitory accommodations.

The weekly links up the corporation action with a recent incident which gave rise to misunderstandings, namely: Newspaper statements, first, that Edward S. Harkness, '97, who gave Harvard $3,000,000 for an inner college, did not offer the same to Yale, and, second, that Yale declined the offer.

The weekly says that Mr. Harkness expressed his desire to cooperate with Yale in financing a project to solve the student residence problem, but his offer lapsed because a faculty committee was unable to report by July 1, the time limit set by Mr. Harkness.

The need of relieving Yale's overcrowded undergraduate schools has been under consideration for a long period and various plans have been considered. The weekly adds:

"• • • Harvard University seems to have been facing much the same conditions of student population and was studying its plans for relief. Both Yale and Harvard had come to the same general conclusion, that the English small-college-unit plan was best adapted to American college conditions. The gift to Harvard • • • as the initial fund • • • is a fine gift to American education. This pleased Yale men everywhere."

DEMOCRATS SPENT OVER $5,342,000

RECEIPTS WERE $3,844,958

List of Contributors of $1,000 or More in New York City and State Is Made Public.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The Democratic National Committee spent $5,342,349.89 in its efforts to elect the Smith-Robinson ticket and must yet raise $1,497,391.46 to square its accounts, according to final reports submitted to William T. Page, Clerk of the House of Representatives, today by James W. Gerard, as treasurer of the Democratic National Committee.

The receipts of the Democratic National Committee are listed as $3,844,958.43, but includes $1,600,000 in loans. The book balance is thus $102,608.54.

The loans include $1,500,000 obtained from the County Trust Company of New York City and $100,000 obtained from John J. Raskob, chairman of the national committee.

Deducting these loans from the reported receipts, leaves $3,844,953.43 as the active receipts from contributors.

The collections made by J. R. Nutt as treasurer of the Republican National Committee totaled $6,541,748.05, so the combined receipts of the Republican and Democratic national treasurers were $11,986,706.48.

The Republican National Committee closed the campaign with an actual balance of $285,637.20, while the Democratic National Committee closed the campaign with a "paper" balance of $102,608.54.

$3,375,000 BID BUYS ARMORY AT 68TH ST.

PLANS AMUSEMENT CENTRE

Will Remodel Building Covering a Square Block—Cost of Land and Structure $525,000 in 1890.

The 104th Field Artillery Armory, better known to old New Yorkers as the armory of the Twenty-second Regiment, and the block of land on which it stands at Broadway, Columbus Avenue, Sixty-seventh and Sixty-eighth Streets, which cost a total of $525,000 in 1890, went under the hammer yesterday for $3,375,000 at a public auction on the steps of the new County Court House, Lafayette and Centre Streets.

The purchaser was Max Verschleiser, owner of extensive real estate holdings, with offices at 1,440 Broadway, who emigrated here from Galicia when he was about 16 years old.

Mr. Verschleiser plans to remodel the building, which for nearly forty years echoed to the rattle of rifles and the barking of military commands, into an amusement and convention centre, he said after the auction yesterday.

55,500 Square Feet Sold.

There was no lack of interest in the auction yesterday. The block, according to Joseph P. Day, who conducted the auction, is probably the only block square fronting on Broadway south of Seventy-second Street that was held in single ownership and is one of the most valuable in Manhattan. The land comprises approximately 55,500 square feet, or about one and one-quarter acres. The sale marked the first public offering on record of an entire block of Broadway land.

The auction, held at noon yesterday, attracted a large number of real estate men and about 1,000 spectators. After reading the terms of the sale, which required the highest bidder to pay 10 per cent of the purchase price by certified check at the time of the sale, together with the auctioneer's fee of 1 per cent of the total bid, Mr. Day, with a bang of the gavel, asked for bids.

The first bidder was Charles F. Noyes, who offered $3,000,000. Seemingly undaunted by the huge opening figure, Mr. Verschleiser raised it $50,000. Frederick Brown, another real estate operator, promptly boosted the price higher, but he was outbid a moment afterward by Mr. Noyes. Steadily the figure mounted and on the sixteenth bid, the property went to Mr. Verschleiser.

The auction results were far beyond the expectations of Mr. Day, whose fee for his twenty minutes' work was $33,750, and of Controller Berry. Mr. Berry had two purposes in selling the building, one being to return to the city's tax rolls a valuable parcel of property and the other, to add a surplus to the city's real estate fund. The city has bought a site for a modern armory in Jamaica, Queens.

Purchaser's Plans Indefinite.

After the auction Mr. Verschleiser gave Controller Berry a certified check for $337,500. The balance of the purchase price to be paid at the Controller's office not later than noon of April 3, when the deed will be delivered, the title being in fee simple.

Mr. Verschleiser said that although he had given thought to the matter since the armory was first advertised for sale in November, his plans for transforming it into an amusement and convention hall had not yet taken definite shape. His rough sketches, however, provide space for stores and offices on the Broadway and Columbus Avenue sides of the building. He said he would keep the main floor in condition for use in sporting events, commercial exhibitions and social purposes. A restaurant service is part of his present plans for the building.

Touching on his proposal to use the building for sporting affairs, Mr. Verschleiser said he believed the building would bridge the gap between small exhibition halls and large ones like Madison Square Garden. On the Broadway side of the building there is a basement. Whether this basement would be extended through to the Columbus Avenue side, Mr. Verschleiser said he did not know, as he has not yet engaged an architect. He added that he hoped to complete the alterations in time for September space bookings and that he would run the building as a private enterprise, without incorporating.

102,158 APARTMENTS VACANT IN THE CITY

MANHATTAN IN THE LEAD

65,016 New Law Apartments Added, but Those Vacant Increased by 11,101—Fewer Old Law Houses.

Apartment seekers should have little difficulty in finding a home in New York City, as there were 18,699 more vacant apartments in all the boroughs in December than there were a year ago in the same month, according to figures made public yesterday by William F. Deegan, Tenement House Commissioner.

The report shows that there were 8,498 more vacancies in Manhattan, 2,337 more in the Bronx, 5,693 in Brooklyn, 2,122 in Queens and forty-nine in Richmond. While the total of all apartments in old-law tenements has decreased by 7,126, there has been an increase of vacant apartments in this class of 7,568.

There has been an increase in the total number of apartments in new-law houses by the construction of 65,016 apartments, but the number of vacancies has increased by 11,101 according to the figures. The rate of vacancies for 1928 is shown to be 7.76, while that for 1927 was 6.63, a gain of 1.13 for 1928.

A survey of rentals in Manhattan shows that a large proportion of the lower rentals was in the old-law type of house. In the $5-a-month to the $20-a-month class, 92.02 per cent of the vacancies were in the old-law type, while only 7.98 per cent were in the new-law houses. Apartments renting from $21 to $30 a month included 84.72 per cent of the old-law houses, and 15.28 per cent of the new law.

568,760 Manhattan Apartments.

On Dec. 1, 1928, there were 215,420 new law, 353,340 old law houses in Manhattan, a total of 568,760 apartments. There were 14,479 new law and 35,926 old law vacancies, a total of 50,405 vacant apartments.

On Dec. 28, 1927, there were 565,853 apartments in Manhattan, with 41,907 vacancies.

The Bronx, on Dec. 1, 1928, had 244,363 new law apartments, and 32,221 old law, a total of 276,584. Of these 13,972 new law and 2,343 old-law houses, a total of 16,315, were untenanted.

Brooklyn, on Dec. 1, 1928, had a total of 394,823 houses, of which there were 242,920 new law and 151,903 old law apartments. There were 17,550 new law and 12,053 old law houses vacant, a total of 29,603.

Queens, on Dec. 1, 1928, had 74,033 apartments, 66,803 new law, 7,230 old law. Vacancies included 5,221 new law, 417 old law, or 5,638 apartments vacant. In that borough in 1927 there were 61,611 apartments, with 3,230 new law and 286 old law apartments untenanted.

In Richmond on Dec. 1, 1928, there were 1,857 houses, with 197 vacancies, or 10.61 per cent of the whole. A year previous the borough had 1,845 apartments, with 148 vacancies.

The entire number of new law apartments in New York City is shown in a recapitulation to be 770,154; old law, 545,903, a total of 1,316,057. Of these the report shows 51,291 new law vacancies and 50,867 old law, a total of 102,158 vacancies throughout the city. There were 6.66 per cent of the vacancies in new law houses, and 9.32 per cent in the old law houses, or a total of 7.76 of all houses.

In December, 1927, the city had 1,258,167 apartments, of which 83,459 were vacant. Of these 5.7 per cent were in new law and 7.82 were in old law houses.

Tables for the Boroughs.

The following tables show the vacancies in each borough on Dec. 1, 1928, with the monthly rentals and the percentage of vacancies in each class of houses in the city:

Will Rogers Defends Boy Who Ran the Wrong Way

To the Editor of The New York Times.

Everybody is a-picking on that poor boy out there in California that run the wrong way with that football. If I was an editorial writer I would ask how many out of the hundred and ten million of the rest of us are headed the wrong way? How many out of us have even had presence of mind enough to pick up a fumble? How many grabbed out of the scramble what they think is success and don't know till they reach the goal line whether it's the right one or not.

So come on, preachers, hop on this as your text. All I want is 10 per cent of that Sunday's collection to get this boy a medal for at least doing something different from one million other college boys. Even if it was wrong, his mind wasn't standardized.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

Lord Hailsham Weds Mrs. Clive Lawrence In Abbey Chapel of Henry VII With Secrecy

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—The wedding of the Hon. Mrs. Clive Lawrence and Lord Hailsham, Lord Chancellor of England, the highest legal office in the kingdom, took place amid deep secrecy today in the Chapel of Henry VII in Westminster Abbey. The chapel was closed to the public before and after the ceremony. Inquirers were told during the ceremony that a "special service" was taking place. Ropes had been drawn across the aisles leading to the chapel. Only a few invited guests knew where the service was to be held, and Lord Hailsham succeeded in his attempt to be married without the presence of a crowd.

The bride, who gave her age as thirty-five, was given in marriage by Lord Trevethin. She wore a powder-blue gown, with collar of gray fox. Her small brown velour hat was finished with an osprey tuft, and pinned to her coat was a bunch of lilies of the valley. Her little daughter, holding yellow roses, was an interested spectator. Lord Hailsham's best man was his son, Quintin Hogg.

Before the peerage was conferred on the bridegroom last year, he was Sir Douglas McGarel Hogg. While serving as Attorney General, he established a reputation as one of the most formidable debaters in the Baldwin Ministry.

Lord Hailsham's first wife was the former Elizabeth Brown, daughter of Judge Trimble Brown of Nashville, Tenn. She died in 1925.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Rise Again, Then Break Sharply—Call Money 7%, Time Loans Unchanged.

Both money market and stock market moved yesterday as they are apt to do under such circumstances as existed. Call-money rates continued to decline; they got down to 7 per cent, as against the 10 per cent of Wednesday and the 12 of Monday. But the rate for collateral time loans did not change at all; Wall Street still paid 7½ for borrowings which would run into next July. The stock market began the day in the spirit of Wednesday's jubilant advance, but prices were rapidly swept downward again before the close, under extremely heavy selling for both accounts. It was readily inferred that numerous speculators for a turn, who had bought stocks on last week's rising market with an eye to the outside public's return on the first day of the new year, had seized the opportunity to "realize."

To the casual observer, such action might no doubt seem illogical at the moment when money rates had begun to fall in earnest. It is possible, however, that the sellers of yesterday looked behind the immediate effect of the inpouring "January disbursements," and preferred to await evidence of the underlying credit situation. They obtained some more or less interesting evidence to that effect after the market's close. Wall Street had been conjecturing somewhat blindly as to how great a reduction of brokers' loans would be shown in the Stock Exchange's own monthly report, covering the period of December's violent break in prices. Generally, it was believed that this comprehensive statement would not show any such reduction as the $303,000,000 which was cut from the account in the three weekly Reserve Board statements between Dec. 5 and Dec. 26, because the Stock Exchange figures would reflect also the wild speculative days in the first week and the last week of the month. But it is probably safe to say that even Wall Street did not anticipate the $48,096,000 increase which the Stock Exchange reported for December.

On the basis of that return, the borrowings of New York Stock Exchange members far exceed all precedent; they are $1,165,000,000 greater than at the end of May, when the "Spring bull market" culminated, and $1,602,000,000 above their total of July 31, when the reaction from that market ended. Their increase during the full year 1928 has been $2,006,800,000, or 45 per cent; in the past two years it was $3,146,800,000, or 96 per cent. The Reserve Board's statement for the week ending last Wednesday appeared simultaneously. It showed why the Stock Exchange's monthly figures were what they were. The reduction of $303,163,000 in the preceding three weeks was followed by expansion of $238,676,000 in the seven-day period just ended, when the stock market was holding its New Year's eve celebrations. As for the Federal Reserve's statement of its own position, the system's ratio of reserve has changed little for the week, but the New York Reserve Bank's ratio falls nearly 6 per cent. At its present figure of 54½, it is much the lowest since May 11, 1921.

A few of the active speculative shares on the stock market rose six to nine shares and held the bulk of their advance; there were also various net gains of smaller magnitude. But Radio stock lost nearly all of an early 12¼ point rise; other stocks in which speculation has been excited had fallen 6, 7 and sometimes 14 or 15 points at the day's low prices. The movement at the close was much confused.

Although open-market discount rates at London rose a fraction, sterling exchange slipped off again, touching the lowest price since Dec. 10. Its real test will come when Wall Street call-money rates have established themselves for the time on a lower basis. The Bank of England lost practically no gold, and the interesting announcement was made by the Federal Reserve Bank of another $25,000,000 "earmarking," presumably for Paris. Although the London bank's weekly statement reported further loss of $3,600,000 gold, the decrease was considerably the smallest in six weeks, and the ratio of banking reserve rose nearly 3 per cent. The Bank of France added $5,600,000 gold to its reserve; it has taken in $15,000,000 in a month and $117,000,000 since the stabilization decree of June.

BUYS GYROSCOPE STOCK.

National Aviation Acquires Substantial Interest in Sperry Co.

The National Aviation Corporation has acquired a substantial interest in the Sperry Gyroscope Company, which was purchased outright a few days ago by North American Aviation, Inc., it was announced yesterday to holders of the securities by Adams and Peck. James C. Wilson is president of National Aviation and C. M. Keys chairman of the board.

The block of Sperry Gyroscope stock held by National Aviation is reported to be an undivided interest which may not be sold in part. In this manner the Sperry Gyroscope organization becomes a part of the group of aeronautical companies which includes Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Company, Inc., Curtiss Flying Service, Inc., National Air Transport and Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc.

Two Radio Companies Merge.

The merger of the Temple Corporation of Chicago and the Sleeper Radio and Manufacturing Corporation of Long Island City was announced here yesterday. The manufacturing plants and separate identities of the concerns will be maintained as heretofore. Gordon C. Sleeper, president of the Sleeper company, will become vice president of the Temple Corporation, in charge of sales, advertising and service activities. Alfred Marchev of Chicago, as president of Temple, will control the activities of both companies, the announcement said.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

While Wall Street professed to be cheered yesterday by the market's resistance to an aggressive selling movement, it was evident that many of the recent "market leaders" were having great difficulty in maintaining their equilibrium. Price movements on the Stock Exchange were highly irregular and at times the market was badly unsettled. Brokers explained the market's action in various ways. There was, they asserted, heavy realizing, which was encouraged by the recent sharp advances. Professional operators sold stocks, it was contended, on the theory that the brokers' loan compilations scheduled for release after the close of the market would be extremely distasteful to interests committed to the rise. There were, however, not many extremely wide declines. These included at their lowest 15¼ points in General Electric, 7½ in Montgomery Ward, 14¾ in Case Threshing, 6 in Wright Aero and 5¼ in Victor Talking Machine. The advancing group was led by Greene Cananea, Gillette Safety Razor, International Nickel, International Telephone and Telegraph, Kansas City Southern, Standard Commercial Tobacco, Western Union and Warner Brothers.

Paying the Piper.

"Margin traders," who for a long time have regarded interest charges as a negligible factor in their market operations, are receiving a painful surprise in the December statements from their brokers. They are learning that interest costs ate up a large part of their profits or, in cases where December left them on the red side of the ledger, that their losses, with interest charges added, are considerably larger than they had reckoned. Speculative customers paid out a larger amount in the form of interest last month than ever before in a corresponding period. The total, if it could be estimated, would be staggering, so the brokers asserted.

Gold and the Reserve Bank Ratio.

The Federal Reserve Bank's announcement that $25,000,000 more gold had been earmarked for a foreign institution puzzled Wall Street somewhat, because the total gold reserves of the system, as reported in the weekly statement, increased $3,388,000. It was rather generally believed, however, that the earmarking had been reflected in the preceding week, when the system's total gold reserve decreased $30,718,000, which was too large to be accounted for by withdrawal of "Christmas gold." In the week ended on Dec. 28, 1927, for instance, the Federal Reserve lost only $13,127,000 gold. The system's reserve ratio rose a trifling fraction from the low point of the preceding week, but at 61.9 per cent it was much lower than at the beginning of any year since 1921. The week's decline in the New York Reserve Bank ratio from 60 per cent to 54.1 was due in about equal measure to a decrease of $43,000,000 in its cash reserves, wholly through the "gold settlement fund," which adjusts its relation with the other reserve banks, and to an increase of $67,416,000 in deposit liabilities, chiefly through addition to member banks reserve account.

Brokers' Loans Resume Expansion.

The increase of $238,676,000 in brokers' loans, reported in the weekly Federal Reserve summary, took the financial community completely by surprise yesterday, but a variety of explanations of the expansion was put forward after the announcement of the figures. The chief reason advanced had to do with the distribution of tremendous amounts of funds in dividends and interest immediately following the first of the year. In advance of this distribution, holders of bonds and stocks made their reinvestment arrangements and bought large quantities of stocks. Until the reinvestment funds actually are paid over these new holdings must be carried by brokers through bank loans. According to this reasoning, the loans next week should show sharp reduction due to the reinvestment funds actually in the market—provided, of course, that the stock market scores no further wide advances in the meantime. The fact that payment was due this week on several large recent stock flotations also was considered a factor in the brokers' loan situation.

Copper Merger Rumors.

It was inevitable that such a high and wide market as has developed in the copper shares would lead to a large number of rumors of mergers between this company and that in the industry. Eyes have been cast, quite naturally, at the companies holding the largest amount of reserves under ground as the corporations most likely to be affected, because of the anxiety of the larger companies to insure their supplies for a long period ahead. Therefore, there was little surprise when the report got abroad yesterday, via commission house channels, that the Anaconda Copper Company was angling for Greene Cananea Copper. Just how such an amalgamation could possibly take place Wall Street found it difficult to see. Both companies pay $6 annually, but Greene Cananea is selling in the open market at a premium of 62 points over Anaconda. Large stockholders of Greene probably would object to anything less than 1½ of Anaconda for 1 of Greene Cananea, and it is considered doubtful, even under the most favorable auspices, that any such trade could be made.

MONEY.

Thursday, Jan. 3, 1929.

With a very good supply on hand as a result of the return of a considerable part of the huge fund distributed at the year-end, money again showed an easier undertone. After Stock Exchange renewals had been arranged at 10, new money dropped to 8 and then 7, the lowest since Dec. 20, while street trades went at 6. Turnover was large. In time money, 30-90 days loaned at 7¾ and six months at 7½ per cent. Spread on choice-name business paper is now definitely 5¼@5½, a fractional concession on the inside discount.

MARKET AVERAGES.

Due to the split-up of various stocks carried in THE NEW YORK TIMES industrial averages, a change was necessary. American Smelting and Refining, General Motors and International Harvester old stocks have been dropped, and American Smelting and Refining, General Motors and International Harvester new stocks substituted. The new stocks will be multiplied by the ratio of their split-up.

Mr. H. A. Jackson, President of the Company, has summarized his letter to us as follows:

BUSINESS: The Company was organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey in December, 1901. The Company was the pioneer in the portable pneumatic tool business, has always occupied a leading position in the business and is now the leading and largest manufacturer of pneumatic tools in the world. The Company also manufactures air compressors, gas and oil engines of the Diesel and semi-Diesel types, rock drills, electric tools and other appliances which are sold to a large and diversified number of customers. Its products are used extensively in structural steel work and road building, and in the railroad, oil and mining industries, and are standard throughout the world.

The Company's principal plants are located at Detroit, Michigan, Cleveland, Ohio, and Franklin, Pennsylvania; additional plants are operated at Montreal, Canada, by the Canadian Pneumatic Tool Company, Ltd.; at Fraserburg, Scotland, by the Consolidated Pneumatic Tool Company, Ltd., and at Berlin, Germany, by the Internationale Pressluft & Elektricitats Gesellschaft, wholly owned subsidiaries of the Chicago Pneumatic Tool Company. Branch offices or selling agencies are maintained in the principal cities of the United States and in foreign countries. The foreign subsidiaries have been operated profitably and should be of increasing importance as a source of earnings.

An extension of the facilities of the Company's Franklin plant has been completed, providing a material increase in air compressor and Diesel engine production and effecting a substantial reduction in manufacturing cost. The Company's present requirements for expansion were met through the issue of $3,000,000 principal amount of 5½% Debentures in October, 1927, of which $2,900,000 principal amount are now outstanding. Current business is satisfactory, and the outlook for the coming year is considered good.

Besides its standard tools, the Company has been meeting with a great demand for its air compressor and Diesel engine products, and is introducing new specialties in coal mining and oil well appliances, from which an increasing business is expected.

ASSETS: The balance sheet of the Company as of November 30, 1928, adjusted to give effect to the recently authorized recapitalization, as certified by Messrs. Deloitte, Plender, Griffiths & Company, shows total current assets of $8,762,203.55, or about 8.9 times current liabilities of $977,209.86, and net current assets of $7,784,993.69. Net book value of the total assets (including patents and good will) as set forth on the Company's balance sheet, after deducting all liabilities including the outstanding $2,900,000 Debentures, is $15,599,428.11.

EARNINGS: The consolidated net earnings of the Company and subsidiaries after depreciation, interest and Federal income taxes, available for dividends, as certified to by Messrs. Deloitte, Plender, Griffiths & Company, including the Company's estimate of domestic profits for December, 1928, and of foreign profits for November and December, 1928, have been as follows:

	Balance for Stock	Per Share Convertible Preference Stock	Per Share Common Stock
Calendar Year 1926	$1,226,837	$6.53	$2.85

The average earnings for the three-year period are $1,235,648, or $6.57 per share on the Convertible Preference Stock and $2.90 per share on the Common Stock after allowing for dividends on the Convertible Preference Stock.

MANAGEMENT: Mr. Charles M. Schwab has been Chairman of the Board since 1922 and Mr. H. A. Jackson has been President of the Company since 1918. No change in the management of the Company as at present constituted is anticipated except that nominees of the bankers will be invited to become members of the Board of Directors.

DIVIDEND RECORD: The Company has paid dividends on its outstanding stock without interruption for the past 19 years, and prior to 1910 in every year with only three exceptions since the organization of the business. For the calendar years 1927 and 1928, dividends were paid at the rate of 6% upon its Common Stock (of the par value of $100 per share) then outstanding.

The present Common Stock of the Company is listed on the New York Stock Exchange and application has been made to list on the New York Stock Exchange the Convertible Preference Stock and the Common Stock, which will be outstanding upon completion of the recently authorized recapitalization.

Legal matters in connection with this issue will be passed upon by Messrs. Cravath, deGersdorff, Swaine and Wood and S. Stanwood Menken, Esq., for the Bankers, and Willard A. Mitchell, Esq., for the Company. Audits by Messrs. Deloitte, Plender, Griffiths & Company, and engineering report by Messrs. Sanderson & Porter.

This stock is offered when, as and if issued and received and accepted by us and subject to the approval of counsel. Temporary Certificates deliverable in the first instance.

Price $55. per share and accrued dividends

NEW HIGH RECORD IN BROKERS' LOANS

Increase of $238,676,000, the Largest for Any Week, Brings Total to $6,439,740,511.

SURPRISE TO WALL STREET

An increase of $238,676,000 in brokers' loans, the largest change that has ever taken place in the figures in any week, was announced yesterday in figures released at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The increase placed the total at its highest point since the time of the wide break in the stock market in the first week of December. It was based on tremendous loaning activity by the New York banks, which increased their accounts by $406,749,000, offsetting large withdrawals by corporations and by out-of-town banks.

The New York Stock Exchange issued its monthly compilation of brokers' loans figures yesterday, reporting an increase of $48,096,247 for December, which brought the total up to a new high record at $6,439,740,511. This figure was about in line with expectations, since it covered the period following the stock market break of last month and the subsequent recovery in prices, but did not apply to the market's broad activity on the first two business days of this year.

The Federal Reserve figures, issued after the close of the stock market, caused astonishment in Wall Street, where predictions had been made that either a moderate decrease or a small increase in the figures was likely. It was pointed out that the increase marked a return to the relationship between brokers' loans totals and stock market price levels that existed before the break of last month. The general level of prices in that period has not only regained all lost ground but has even gone to its highest on record, while this week's increase in brokers' loans places the total within $85,000,000 of the high record, following a net contraction of more than $300,000,000 in the loans in the preceding three weeks.

The Loans in Detail.

Following are the detailed figures on the stock and bond collateral loans made to brokers by the reporting Federal Reserve member banks of New York City.

	Jan. 2.	Dec. 26
Loans for own act.	$1,516,049,000	$1,106,301,000
For out-of-town banks.	$1,047,989,000	1,639,899,000
For others	$5,106,985,000	2,322,227,000

Of the total this week, $4,780,269,000 consist of demand loans and $549,834,000 of time loans, as against $4,537,570,000 of demand and $553,857,000 of time loans a week ago.

Several explanations were given for the increase in loans. One of the most widely accepted was that many holders of securities, who receive large amounts of money in dividends and interest on the first few days of the year had made their reinvestment arrangements in advance and had purchased stocks which must be carried through bank loans until the actual receipt of income.

According to this reasoning, the loans should show a decrease next week, when the reinvestment funds have been paid over, but this would hold good only if the stock market does not show another wide change in price levels in the meantime. The fact that payment was due yesterday for a new stock flotation of $100,000,000 also was considered a factor in the brokers' loans figures.

Funds Flow Out of Town.

The figures showed the extent to which out-of-town banks and corporations have been withdrawing funds from the collateral loan market for year-end purposes, while New York banks have been filling up this void. Yesterday much of these outside funds was flowing back into the money market, but these operations were too late to be reflected in the weekly figures.

In supplying funds to the market the New York banks have increased their own indebtedness to the Reserve Bank by more than $107,000,000 in the last week, while in the same period such borrowings throughout the Federal Reserve System have decreased by more than $16,000,000.

The total of $5,330,103,000 of brokers' loans this week compares with $3,810,023,000 in the corresponding week of last year. Following are the weekly figures for the year 1928:

LOAN GAIN $48,096,247.

The New York Stock Exchange announced yesterday that its members' net total loans on collateral as of Dec. 31 amounted to $6,439,740,511, which represented an increase of $48,096,247 over the figures of the end of November and constituted a new high record. The net increase came after heavy liquidation, at the time of the stock market break in the first week of December, when loans were cut down sharply, followed by a steady expansion in recent weeks.

The present report was the fifth successive monthly compilation in which new records were established in the loan total. The detailed tabulation of the Stock Exchange's figures follows:

	Demand Loans.	Time Loans.
Net borrowings on collateral from New York banks or trust cos.	$4,809,513,510	$501,284,399
Net borrowings on collateral from private bankers, brokers, foreign bank agencies or others in the city of New York	912,745,214	126,197,388
	$5,722,258,724	$717,481,787

Combined total of time and demand loans, $6,439,740,51.

MUNICIPAL LOANS NEAR RECORD IN 1928

New Bonds for $1,382,304,635 Issued Last Year—$783,412,000 Authorized.

LATE MARKET UNFAVORABLE

Prospects for Borrowing in 1929 Uncertain Because of High Interest Rates.

For each of the last eight years State and municipal borrowing represented by bond issues has exceeded $1,000,000,000, the volume of new issues for 1928 totaling $1,382,304,635. This compares with $1,477,769,824 in 1927, which was the record year. Due to the reactionary tendency of the bond market from May to December, the municipal issues brought out were fewer than expected.

The outlook for municipal borrowing in 1929 is confused by the uncertain future of the bond market. If interest rates are maintained at their current high levels, it is assumed that municipal financing will have to be arranged in an unfavorable bond market. However, the voting of $23,244,479 of new issues in December brings the total State and municipal borrowing authorizations for the calendar year 1928 to the record figure of $783,412,000.

The following table, compiled by The Daily Bond Buyer, shows for the last ten years the volume of State and municipal bond flotations for December and the twelve months ended on Dec. 31.

	December.	12 mos. ended Dec. 31.

The offering group consists of White, Weld & Co. and the Continental National Company of Chicago. The city reports an assessed valuation of $268,016,536 and total debt of $39,015,000.

Portland, Ore.

The city of Portland, Ore., will open bids on Jan. 22 on a new issue of $1,000,000 4 per cent water bonds, maturing serially on Feb. 1, 1940 to 1959. The last time the city was in the market was on June 20 last, with an issue of $1,000,000 water 4s, which were awarded at a price of 96.169, or a 4.29 per cent interest cost to the city.

Capitol Highway, S. C.

Award of an issue of $700,000 Capitol Highway (S. C.) bonds, due on Jan. 15, 1930 to 1945, was made yesterday at 100.34 for the bonds as 4½s to the Guaranty Company of New York. The bonds are a joint obligation of Richland, Lexington and Saluda counties, South Carolina. A group consisting of the National City Company, the Bankers' Trust Company, Harris, Forbes & Co. and R. W. Pressprich & Co bid 101.159 for the bonds as 5s. Last April the three counties composing the highway district marketed an issue of $1,800,000 4½s, at a price of 101.029.

Amherst, N. Y.

A syndicate composed of Lehman Brothers, Ames, Emerich & Co., Inc., and the Manufacturer & Traders-Peoples Trust Company of Buffalo obtained the award of an issue of $614,000 Town of Amherst (N. Y.) bonds, due on Jan. 1, 1930 to 1959, at its bid of 100.604 for 4½s, at auction. The bonds are issued for paving, sewer and general improvement purposes.

Westchester County, N. Y.

R. W. Pressprich & Co. have purchased and placed privately an issue of $2,200,000 Westchester County (N. Y.) 5.26 per cent certificates of indebtedness.

$15,340,000 New Securities On Today's Investment List

New securities totaling $15,340,000 are to be placed on the market today by New York banking houses and syndicates. Of this amount, $9,650,000 consists of bonds, and the remainder, of stock, including both common and preferred.

The bond issues are classified as follows:

Real estate	$6,150,000
Industrial	2,500,000
Municipal	1,000,000

BOND FLOTATIONS.

Realty and Other Securities to Be Marketed Today by Investment Bankers.

A new issue of $3,000,000 Neisner Brothers Realty, Inc., 6 per cent convertible sinking fund debentures will be placed on the market today by George H. Burr & Co. at 107½, to yield more than 5.55 per cent. The debentures are convertible into the common stock of Neisner Brothers, Inc., the parent company, which operates a chain of general merchandise stores. The proceeds of the debentures will be used to acquire certain store and leasehold properties now held by the operating company.

Munson Steamship Line.

Additional financing for the Munson Steamship Line is announced for today in the offering of an issue of $2,500,000 eight-year 6½ per cent debentures, priced at 98 and interest, to yield about 6.83 per cent, by Brown Brothers & Co. and Otis & Co. Each $1,000 debenture will carry a non-detachable warrant entitling the holder to purchase ten shares of common stock of the Munson Line at $10 a share at any time prior to Jan. 1, 1937. Proceeds from the sale of these debentures, together with those from $4,500,000 of 6 per cent secured bonds offered yesterday, will provide for the retirement of an issue of $6,000,000 of 6 per cent notes and for an increase of working capital.

Merchants' National Properties.

Offering of a new issue of $1,500,000 Merchants' National Properties, Inc., 6 per cent sinking fund bonds, due in 1958, will be made today at 99½ and interest, to yield more than 6 per cent, by a syndicate headed by Merrill, Lynch & Co. Each $1,000 bond will carry a detachable warrant entitling the holder to purchase ten shares of common stock of the issuing company at $10 a share to Dec. 1, 1930; thereafter to Dec. 1, 1932, at $15, and thereafter to Dec. 1, 1933, at $20 a share. The company has been organized to buy and sell properties which have been leased to chain stores.

Hotel Piccadilly.

A new issue of $1,650,000 Hotel Piccadilly (New York) guaranteed first mortgage 5½ per cent certificates, due in 1938, will be marketed today by the New York Title and Mortgage Company. The hotel, a new twenty-two-story structure, is at 227 West Forty-fifth Street. It has been appraised at $2,650,000.

NEW STOCK ISSUES.

Corporation Shares to Be Offered for Public Subscription.

A block of 100,000 shares of Chicago Pneumatic Tool Company $3.50 cumulative preference voting stock will be offered today at $55 a share and accrued dividends by J. A. Sisto & Co. and A. G. Becker & Co. This stock, the bankers report, does not involve new financing by the company, but was purchased privately for themselves and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. It is convertible into common stock at any time on a share-for-share basis.

Justice Credit Association.

Offering of a block of 1,000 shares of the newly organized Justice Credit Corporation, representing one-third of the capital stock of the company, will be made today at $190 a share, which is announced as the price paid by the incorporators for their holdings. The company will market the stock. Of the proceeds of each share $100 will be applied to capital, $66.66 2-3 to surplus and the remainder to a special reserve fund to cover cost of organization. The company which will make small loans, will start business on Feb. 1.

Neisner Brothers Realty, Inc.
6% Convertible Sinking Fund Gold Debentures
Convertible into Common Stock of Neisner Brothers, Inc.
Interest and Sinking Fund payable from monthly rentals under leases by Neisner Brothers, Inc.

To be dated December 15, 1928 To mature December 15, 1948

Principal and interest payable in United States gold coin in New York. Interest payable semi-annually June 15 and December 15 without deduction for normal Federal income tax not in excess of 2% per annum. Pennsylvania and Connecticut 4 mills tax, Michigan and District of Columbia 5 mills tax, and Massachusetts 6% income tax refundable. Non-redeemable until April 1, 1931. Redeemable on April 1, 1931, or at any time thereafter, at the option of the Company, as a whole or in part by lot, at 110 and accrued interest, upon thirty days' published notice. Semi-annual sinking fund commencing March 1, 1930, sufficient to retire each year 3½% of the principal amount of the authorized issue of Debentures. Coupon Debentures in interchangeable denominations of $1,000 and $500, registerable as to principal only. The Chase National Bank of the City of New York, Trustee.

Conversion Privilege: These Debentures are convertible at the option of the holder, upon five days' written notice, at the principal office of The Chase National Bank of the City of New York, into Common Stock of Neisner Brothers, Inc., at the following prices: To and including March 1, 1931, at $200 per share; thereafter to and including March 1, 1932, at $250 per share; thereafter to and including March 1, 1933, at $300 per share; thereafter to and including March 1, 1934, at $350 per share. In case any Debentures are called for redemption during the existence of the conversion privilege, the holders may exercise the right of conversion on or prior to the tenth day before the date of actual redemption. This conversion right is protected in the event of stock dividends, stock split-ups, consolidation, merger or sale of assets, as provided in the Trust Agreement.

History and Business of Neisner Brothers Realty, Inc.: Neisner Brothers Realty, Inc. has been incorporated under the laws of Delaware for the purpose of acquiring certain store properties in fee and certain store leasehold properties. Upon the completion of the present financing and transactions incidental thereto, it will own the fee or the leasehold (or the entire beneficial interest in the fee or leasehold) of approximately 60 store properties. These properties will be leased or sub-leased to Neisner Brothers, Inc. for terms expiring December 15, 1953 (except where the present leases expire prior to that date, in which cases the leases or sub-leases to Neisner Brothers, Inc. will be for the full terms of the present leases).

Many of these properties are located in the center of the best retail sections of the most important cities of the United States. Among these are the following:

Chicago, Ill. (11)	Detroit, Mich. (8)	St. Louis, Mo. (3)
Wilkes-Barre, Pa.	Buffalo, N. Y.	Boston, Mass.
Rochester, N. Y. (3)	St. Paul, Minn.	Pittsburgh, Pa.
Flint, Mich.	Pontiac, Mich.	Minneapolis, Minn.
Lansing, Mich.	Wilmington, Del.	Worcester, Mass.

Business of Neisner Brothers, Inc.: Neisner Brothers, Inc. operates a chain of 35 variety stores in leading American cities. Expansion plans for 1929 call for the opening of at least 18 additional units. Sales for 1927 were $6,477,100 and for 1928 are over $10,250,000, an increase of over 58%.

Terms of Issue and Provisions of Trust Agreement: In the opinion of counsel, these Debentures will be the direct obligations of Neisner Brothers Realty, Inc., which will own fees and leasehold properties appraised at an aggregate value in excess of $7,000,000. In the Trust Agreement the Company will covenant that during the life of the Debentures it will not create a mortgage on any fee or leasehold property listed in the Trust Agreement (which include over 90% of all properties now owned) unless the Debenture holders are ratably secured thereby, or unless the Company adds an amount to the sinking fund equivalent to the present appraised value of such property. In the event of sale of any property so listed, during the life of the Debentures, the entire cash proceeds shall be added to the sinking fund. At no time during the life of the Debentures shall the aggregate principal amount of the Debentures and of all other evidences of funded debt of the Company exceed 65% of the appraised value of the properties then owned.

Earnings: The leases of Neisner Brothers Realty, Inc. provide for an annual net rental, payable monthly in cash, by Neisner Brothers, Inc. During the life of the Debentures this annual net rental shall never be less than the requirements for interest and sinking fund on the outstanding Debentures, for the rentals payable on the properties held, and for proper amortization thereof.

In the opinion of auditors, the rental payable to Neisner Brothers Realty, Inc. under the said leases is an operating charge on the consolidated gross revenue of Neisner Brothers, Inc. The net earnings of Neisner Brothers, Inc. for the year 1927, after all charges (including all rentals and interest items) except managers' bonuses and income taxes, were $583,857. The management estimates that this figure for 1928 will be in excess of $800,000.

Purpose of Issue: The proceeds of these Debentures will be used in connection with the acquisition of these properties, and for other corporate purposes.

Management: Neisner Brothers Realty, Inc. is under the same executive management and control as Neisner Brothers, Inc. The management and control of this business will continue with those who are responsible for its successful development.

We offer these Debentures when, as and if issued and accepted by us, subject to the approval of Messrs. Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft for the Bankers, and Edwin C. Redfern, Esq., of Rochester, N. Y., for the Company. Appraisals by Messrs. Lester Simon and Company, Chicago, and the Harrison Real Estate Corporation, Buffalo. It is expected that delivery will be made in the form of temporary or definitive Debentures, or interim receipts of The Chase National Bank of the City of New York, on or about January 15, 1929.

BUCKLAND HEADS NEW HAVEN ROAD

To Be Chairman of Board With Powers of President Till Successor to Pearson Is Chosen.

ROSE IN LAW DEPARTMENT

Operating Man Is Believed to Be Sought for Post Which Was Expected to Go to Vice President.

Edward G. Buckland was elected chairman of the board of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad yesterday, "with authority to exercise the powers and perform the duties of president until a president is elected." The recent death of E. J. Pearson left the position of president vacant and a subcommittee was appointed a few weeks ago to make a recommendation for a successor. It had been thought that Mr. Buckland would succeed Mr. Pearson as president.

The office of chairman is newly created. The next regular meeting of the board will be on Jan. 8.

During Mr. Pearson's illness Mr. Buckland performed many of the duties of president. He has been vice president in charge of law, finance and corporate relations, to which office he was appointed in 1924. Mr. Pearson was essentially an operating man and it is now thought possible another official of his character will succeed him.

Mr. Buckland's promotion follows a long career with the New Haven. In his position as vice president Mr. Buckland has been largely concerned with intangible problems and policies. Mr. Pearson was more concerned with the physical aspects of railroading.

Mr. Buckland affords one of the numerous instances of an attorney becoming the head of a railroad system. Born in Buffalo in 1866, he has degrees from Washburn College, Topeka, Kan., and from the Yale Law School. He won the degree of B. A. in 1887 and received the honorary degree of LL. D. in 1921 from Washburn. He received the degree of LL. B. in 1889 and an M. A. in 1895 from Yale. For nine years ending in 1898 he was an instructor and assistant professor of law at Yale.

Mr. Buckland entered the service of the New Haven in 1898 as attorney for Rhode Island, with offices in Providence. In 1904 he was appointed attorney for Connecticut and New York, in 1907 was appointed vice president and in 1914 had his duties extended to that of general counsel for the road.

When Government control went into effect in wartime Mr. Pearson became Federal manager of the road under the Railroad Administration. Mr. Buckland then became president of the corporate organization, which position he held until 1920, when the road was returned to private control. He was then re-elected vice president and general counsel. In 1924, under a revision of the company's organization, Mr. Buckland became vice president in charge of law and finance and corporate relations.

When practicing law in New Haven, Mr. Buckland served in the Connecticut National Guard Naval Battalion. He entered as seaman, becoming ensign, lieutenant commander and commander. In 1898 he married Sally Tyler Clark, daughter of Charles P. Clark, then president of the New Haven. He is a member of the Connecticut Academy of Science, Phi Delta Phi, Phi Beta Kappa and is a Mason.

CORPORATION REPORTS.

Statements of Earnings Made by Industrial and Other Companies.

The United Fruit Company reports for the year ended on Dec. 31 a net profit of approximately $24,200,000 before taxes and $20,500,000 after taxes, equivalent to $8.20 a share earned on 2,500,000 shares. This compares with $19,621,310, or $7.85 a share in 1927. The profit in the last quarter of 1928 aggregated $6,250,000 before taxes, or $2.50 a share, comparing with $6,600,000, or $2.64 a share, in the previous quarter, and $6,200,000, or $2.48 a share, in the last quarter of 1927.

Neisner Brothers.

First among the chain stores to report sales for December and for the full year 1928, Neisner Brothers, Inc., indicate sales for the past month totaling $2,089,754, against $1,264,275 for the same month of 1927, an increase of 65.3 per cent. Sales for 1928 aggregated $10,289,280, contrasted with $6,452,367 for 1927, an increase of 59.5 per cent.

LOADINGS INCREASED IN WEEK OF DEC. 22

Total of 897,868 Cars Was Above the Same Week in Two Previous Years.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Loadings of revenue freight for the week ended Dec. 22 totaled 897,868 cars, the American Railway Association announced today, a decrease of 66,118 cars under the preceding week, due to the decline which usually occurs at this time of the year. Decreases were reported in all commodities except ores.

The total for the week of Dec. 22 was an increase of 68,158 cars over the corresponding week of 1927 and 132,928 cars over the same week in 1926.

The car loadings in detail were:

	Week ended Dec. 22.	Change from Pr. Wk.	Change fr. same Wk. 1927

$1,500,000
Merchants' National Properties, Inc.
6% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, 1958
(With Common Stock Purchase Warrants)
Annual Sinking Fund Provided to Retire Entire Issue before Maturity

To be Dated December 1, 1928 To be Due June 1, 1958

Interest payable June 1 and December 1. Principal and interest payable at the principal office of The Chemical National Bank of New York, New York City. Interest payable without deduction for normal Federal Income Tax up to 2% per annum. Coupon bonds of $1,000 and $500 denominations. Redeemable in whole or in part at the option of the Corporation at any time on thirty days' published notice at 103 and interest if redeemed on or before December 1, 1933; thereafter at 102 and interest if redeemed on or before December 1, 1938; thereafter at 101 and interest if redeemed on or before December 1, 1943, and thereafter at 100 and interest. Personal property tax of any State up to five mills per annum on every dollar of taxable value, and Massachusetts income tax up to 6% per annum, refundable to holders on proper application.

THE CHEMICAL NATIONAL BANK OF NEW YORK, Corporate Trustee.

Mr. A. C. Schnee, President of the Corporation, summarizes his letter dated December 28, 1928, regarding these 6% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, 1958, with Common Stock Purchase Warrants, to be presently issued, as follows:

BUSINESS: The Merchants' National Properties, Inc., has been formed to continue the operations heretofore conducted by myself and my brother under the name of Schnee & Schnee, of buying and selling properties which have been leased to chain store companies. We have been in close touch with the chain store companies for many years and our business has been confined entirely to properties which were leased or might be used in various chain store operations.

SECURITY: These Bonds will be a direct obligation of the Corporation and in addition will be secured by a deposit with and an assignment to the Corporate Trustee of leases on the properties hereinafter referred to. From the rentals received the Corporation will pay to the Corporate Trustee the fixed amount for interest and sinking fund charges on these Bonds after providing for charges on all underlying mortgages. In addition to the assignment of the leases, these Bonds will be secured by an assignment to the Trustees of mortgages on the properties referred to, all subject to underlying mortgages. These underlying mortgages shall in no case exceed 60% of the appraised value of the properties. Titles to all properties will be insured by a reputable title company.

Additional Bonds may be issued under restrictions to be contained in the Indenture. Prior mortgages will be placed on properties when deemed advantageous by the Board of Directors.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: The proceeds of the sale of these $1,500,000 6% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, 1958, will be used to acquire directly or through subsidiaries 17 properties, each of which will be under a net lease to one of the following nationally known chains: F. W. Woolworth Co., S. S. Kresge Company, W. T. Grant Company, J. J. Newberry Co. and McLellan Stores Company.

LEASES: The leases covering the above properties will provide average annual net rentals during the life of these Bonds, after deducting interest on present or contemplated underlying mortgages, of over one and one-half times the annual interest requirements on the $1,500,000 Bonds to be presently issued. The leases will further provide that in addition to the monthly net rental the tenant pays maintenance charges, taxes, insurance premiums, assessments and all other charges. All said leases except one will extend beyond the maturity of these Bonds.

The rentals received from the chain store companies constitute an operating charge which ranks ahead of Federal taxes and preferred and common dividends of the respective chain store companies. According to published information the sales and earnings after depreciation, but before Federal Income Taxes, of these companies in 1927 were as follows:

	Sales	Net Earnings as above
F. W. Woolworth Co.	$272,754,045	$38,350,473
S. S. Kresge Company	133,765,777	16,159,438
W. T. Grant Company	43,743,929	2,697,354*
J. J. Newberry Co.	15,069,159	1,186,218
McLellan Stores Company	11,940,330	982,241

* Fiscal year ended January 31, 1928.

COMMON STOCK PURCHASE WARRANTS: With each 6% Sinking Fund Gold Bond, 1958, to be presently issued, there will be delivered a detachable Common Stock Purchase Warrant entitling the holder to purchase at the rate of ten shares of the common stock of the Corporation for each $1,000 Bond at the following prices:

On or before December 1, 1930 at $10.00 Per Share
On or before December 1, 1932 at $15.00 " "
On or before December 1, 1933 at $20.00 " "

These Warrants will contain provisions for the adjustment of the rights of the Warrant holders in the event of dividends payable in Common Stock, split-ups of Common Stock, and certain other events.

MANAGEMENT: The management will be in the hands of men who have had long experience in the purchasing, leasing and financing of chain store properties and who will control the Corporation through common stock ownership. The Bankers will designate representatives on the Board of Directors and will also be represented on the Executive Committee.

The statements contained above are obtained from sources which we believe reliable, but in no event are such statements to be regarded as representations by us.

Legal proceedings are subject to the approval of Messrs. Beekman, Bogue & Clark, New York, for the Bankers, and of Messrs. Adolph & Henry Bloch, New York, for the Corporation. We offer these Bonds with Warrants "when, as and if issued." Temporary Bonds and Warrants or Interim Receipts, exchangeable for Bonds and Warrants when issued, will be delivered in the first instance, subject to the approval of counsel. This offering is made subject to allotment or prior sale.

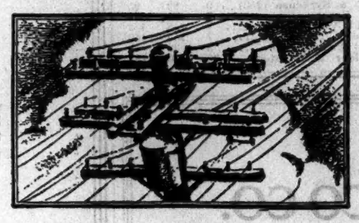
MINING STOCKS



EVERY time a telephone instrument is installed some mine product has found its ultimate use. Over seventeen million telephones are used in this country alone. Every mile of copper wire represents a purchase from a mining company. Over fifty million miles of line are now used.

Mining companies sell indispensable products to vital industries. Steel to railroads and builders; copper to public utilities; zinc, lead and nickel to the automobile manufacturers. And the demand increases almost every year.

Now it is possible to secure investment trust safety and diversification in the mineral industry. A single investment in Metal and Mining Shares Incorporated secures an interest in nearly a hundred mining companies, that have passed rigid portfolio requirements.

Metal and Mining Shares Incorporated provides a medium for sound and profitable investment in the mining field. Descriptive literature will be sent upon request.

300 LOCOMOTIVES NEEDED

$20,000,000 Is Estimated for Wiring—Project Is Expected to Be Shaped in Year.

The cost of electrifying the New York Central from Croton to Buffalo would begin at $85,000,000 and might total $150,000,000, a leading electrical engineer estimated yesterday. The New York Central made no further statement on the electrification plans it has discussed with power company engineers, but it was learned that the project might take definite shape within a year.

The increase in track capacity and in the power of steam locomotives provided by New York Central policies is expected to meet traffic demands until electrification.

A rough minimum estimate of the initial cost of the proposed New York Central project would be $20,000,000 for electrifying the tracks, $20,000,000 for substations and switching equipment and $45,000,000 for 300 locomotives. The estimate for electrifying the tracks is at the rate of $40,000 a mile of four-track railroad on the 500-mile line to Buffalo.

Fewer Locomotives Needed.

The estimate of 300 electric locomotives was admittedly a rough one, and it was amplified with the statement that the traffic moved between here and Buffalo with steam equipment could be moved electrically with one-half the number of locomotives now in use. The New York Central uses ninety-two electric locomotives in the New York area.

The overhead system of electrical contact has become standard on long-distance railroad electrification and probably would be followed in the New York Central electrification, it was said by this engineer.

"The railroads and subways in New York use 600 volts of direct current, a simple form of electrical propulsion suitable in restricted areas," he continued. "However, in its 300-mile electrification the Pennsylvania Railroad is using 11,000 volts alternating current. With the larger aspect in mind, it equipped its electrical lines in Philadelphia with this voltage. Its New York terminal lines run on 600 volts direct current, but locomotives recently built to operate here may readily be converted to use with the larger current.

"In electrifying its main line the New York Central could use its present local electric equipment and change to electric locomotives of powerful build at Croton or it could replace all local equipment with the high-voltage system. In the latter instance one locomotive could run all the way to Buffalo or, if electrification were extended beyond that point, to Chicago and return a great number of times without changing. Engines on the Twentieth Century are now changed once between New York and Buffalo and again between Buffalo and Chicago."

Would Speed Passengers.

Traffic on the New York Central is dense between Buffalo and Albany, but at the latter point freight movement is divided between the Boston & Albany and the West Shore lines. The use of electricity would expedite freight movement more notably on the Buffalo-Albany run than on other sections. Electricity would increase the speed of passenger traffic, and the need for such an increase in view of aerial competition is already being discussed in railroad circles.

Advocates of railroad electrification point to the fact that 10 per cent of railroads in the United States move 60 per cent of all traffic and that 50 per cent of the roads move 90 per cent of all traffic. This situation tends to increase rather than to diminish, and it is argued that electricity is the only power that will meet the situation.

It was pointed out in financial circles yesterday that other power companies besides the Buffalo, Niagara and Eastern Power Corporation would be benefited by New York Central electrification. The Mohawk Hudson Power Corporation, organized by the United Gas Improvement Company of Philadelphia and the General Electric Company, is one of these. The Northeastern Power Corporation is another. The New England Power Association would benefit to a lesser degree. All these companies and the General Electric have an interweaving of interest.

Stock of General Electric reacted sharply yesterday to the news of the New York Central negotiations. The stock dropped to as low as 280 and closed at 286¾ for a net loss of ten points.

PAULISTA PLANS NEW LINE.

Brazilian Railway Would Give Coffee Crop Another Outlet.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAO PAULO, Jan. 3.—The Companhia Paulista de Estradas de Ferro, which is one of the principal Brazilian railways, has reported that it is planning to increase its capital by issuing shares valued at $6,000,000.

A large portion of the money will be used to extend the Piratininga branch, serving a rich coffee section in Sao Paulo State, a region where 18,000,000 trees are planted. This zone is thought capable of supporting ten times more trees on account of the richness of its soil.

Work is progressing on the extension of the Sorocoabana Railway to Santos. This extension will give the coffee crop another route to the sea. The Sao Paulo crop is now all moving via the Sao Paulo Railway.

Frank C. Munson, Esq., President of Munson Steamship Line, has given us the following information in his letter to us:

Business—Munson Steamship Line, one of the oldest and largest American steamship companies, operates, with subsidiaries, a fleet of over 80 vessels. It owns, directly or through subsidiaries, freight steamers with an aggregate dead weight carrying capacity of over 104,000 tons and combined passenger and freight steamers with an aggregate displacement tonnage of 117,000 tons, practically all of which are under the American flag. An appraisal by Messrs. Frank S. Martin & Son, New York, made in September, 1927, indicates that the ships are carried on the books at figures considerably lower than present day depreciated reproduction value. The Company operates regular services from New York and Gulf ports to Argentina, Brazil, Uruguay and Cuba, and, via the Panama Canal, from Atlantic to Pacific Coast ports, in addition to other services. The four passenger and freight ships Southern Cross, Western World, Pan America and American Legion, purchased from the United States Shipping Board in 1925 and operating between New York and South America, are the largest, finest and fastest vessels now operating in that trade route.

Purpose of Issue—The proceeds from the sale of these Debentures together with $4,500,000 6% Secured Bonds 1937 are to provide for the retirement of $6,000,000 6% Secured Gold Notes which matured January 1st 1929 and for additional working capital. In addition to this issue of Debentures and the Secured Bonds, there will be outstanding on completion of present financing and changes incident thereto $3,378,533 Mortgages maturing 1929 to 1941.

Earnings—The consolidated earnings of the Munson Steamship Line and its subsidiaries engaged in shipping and allied activities (including earnings in the amount of $226,772 transferred in the form of interest or dividends from subsidiaries not consolidated, which own and operate certain office building property in New York City and certain hotel and appurtenant property in Nassau, B. I. on which properties there is mortgage indebtedness totalling $6,503,092) for the twelve months ended June 30th 1928, as certified by Messrs. Arthur Andersen & Co., Accountants and Auditors, are as follows:

Operating Expenses, Maintenance and Taxes*	18,657,104
Net Earnings before interest charges of Munson Steamship Line, depreciation and Federal taxes	$ 1,218,556
Annual Interest on funded debt of Munson Steamship Line (including this issue)	586,234
Balance for depreciation, Federal taxes and dividends	$ 632,322

*Including adjustment for minority interests in profits and losses of subsidiaries.

The Company has entered into a mail contract with the United States Government, extending for ten years from August, 1928, calculated to add more than $750,000 per annum to net earnings. If this sum is added to the balance of $632,322 stated above, the total is equivalent to about $2.75 per share on Common Stock now outstanding after deducting Federal taxes, preferred dividends and $765,000 depreciation on the ships and auxiliary property of the Company.

"Merchant Marine Act, 1928"—The mail contract was entered into in accordance with the "Merchant Marine Act, 1928." This Act expresses a definite ten year policy of the United States to give aid and support to the American Merchant Marine to assure it continued success in foreign trade. Under this contract the compensation which will be paid to the Munson Steamship Line by the United States Government over the ten year period will total about $12,500,000. The route covered by this contract is that over which the four large steamships are operated from New York to Rio de Janeiro, Santos, Montevideo and Buenos Aires. It is an exclusive contract for this route, which is one of the most essential of American foreign trade services, forming as it does the principal transportation link between the United States and three of the leading South American republics.

Dividend Record—Dividends have been paid regularly on the Preferred Stock from time to time outstanding since organization of the Company in 1899. The Company has paid dividends on its Common Stock in seven of the past eleven years. The maximum dividend in this period was equivalent to $6.00 per share and the average dividend to $2.05 per share on the 125,000 shares of Common Stock outstanding at present.

The above is subject to a circular containing additional information, copies of which may be obtained on request.

It is offer like above Debentures when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to the approval of our counsel, Messrs. Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett, New York, and Messrs. Putnam, Bell, Dutch & Santry, Boston, and of counsel for the Company, Messrs. Kirlin, Woolsey, Campbell, Hickox & Keating, New York. It is expected that delivery of definitive Debentures will be made on or about January 14th 1929. Part of this issue may be taken by stockholders of the Company.

Price 98 and interest to yield about 6.83%

JUSTICE CREDIT CORPORATION

Industrial Banking

Under supervision of the Banking Department of the State of New York

The Charter has been approved by the Superintendent of Banks of New York and filed in the offices of the Secretary of State and of the Clerk of the County of New York.

Capitalization

Capital Stock, 3,000 shares (par value $100 each)	$300,000
Paid-in surplus	200,000

The principal business of the corporation is the making of small loans of from $50 to $5,000 on personal security to persons of established good character and habits and known earning capacity. Such loans are generally made for a period of one year and are repayable in weekly, bi-weekly or monthly instalments. The management will be under the direct supervision of a man who has had many years successful experience in this type of banking.

The corporation will open for business about February 1, 1929, at 415 Lexington Avenue, opposite the Grand Central Station.

The incorporators, who will constitute the board of directors, are,

KARL T. FREDERICK, Of Kobbe, Thatcher, Frederick & Hoar, Attorneys.
CLARENCE G. MICHALIS, Trustee of prominent philanthropic institutions.
FRANK LORD, Vice-President of Cross & Brown Company and a Director of the City Housing Corporation.
ROBERT E. MILLER, Banker.
JOHN H. MARCHMONT, Capitalist.
JOHN B. NIVEN, Of Tonkle, Niven & Co., Public Accountants.
LUTHER G. MCCONNELL, Vice-President of the Sixth Avenue Bank.
D. BASIL O'CONNOR, Attorney.
WILLARD U. TAYLOR, Of MacFarland, Taylor & Costello, Attorneys.

The active officers will be announced later.

All of the capital stock of the Corporation has been subscribed for by the incorporators and their friends but it is believed that the interests of the Corporation will be best served by a broader distribution of ownership; it has been determined therefore to make an offering of one-third of the entire issue. The one thousand shares to be released by the incorporators for this purpose are offered at a price identical with the price of the other 2000 shares, viz.: $190 per share. Of this amount $100 per share will be applied to capital and $66.66-⅔ per share to surplus. The remainder will be allocated to a special reserve fund controlled by the organizers from which the costs and expenses of organization and the equipment of a banking office will be paid. Such expenses will include vaults, safes, office furniture, etc. All of such fund not so expended will be turned over to the corporation and set up as a special reserve available for contingencies. The entire capital and surplus will thus be free for investment as earning assets.

Price $190 Per Share

TERMS: 25% payable with application; balance on ten days' notice. Notification that stock certificates are ready for delivery will be sent by mail.

Any subscription may be rejected in whole or in part. All subscriptions will be at the same price.

Until the commencement of business all matters will be handled on behalf of the organizers by John H. Marchmont, Clarence G. Michalis and Robert E. Miller as an organization committee.

Application for stock should be accompanied by check to the order of Bank of New York and Trust Company, and should be sent to the address below:

E. L. PHILLIPS BUYS UPSTATE TRACTIONS

Is Completing the Purchase of United and of Balance of Control of Schenectady Railway.

PRICE PUT AT $7,250,000

But Operator Says Terms Have Not Been Fixed—Declines to Name Associates.

Ellis L. Phillips, public utility operator and philanthropist, who in recent years has acquired widespread holdings in New York State, announced yesterday that he was completing the purchase of the United Traction Company, serving Albany and vicinity, and of the balance of control in the Schenectady Railway Company, from the Delaware & Hudson Company. In June Mr. Phillips acquired the New York State Railways, which had a half-interest in the Schenectady property, and the Mohawk Valley Company for $41,758,000 from the New York Central.

The consideration in Mr. Phillips's latest deal was not disclosed. Albany advices said he would pay $1,250,000 in cash and assume more than $6,000,000 in debts, but Mr. Phillips said that the price and obligations to be assumed were not yet definitely fixed.

The United Traction Company operates electric lines in Albany, Rensselaer, Troy, Watervliet, Cohoes and Waterford, with a mileage of more than forty-nine, and it owns the Capitol District Transportation Company, Inc., which operates trackless trolleys in Cohoes and buses in Rensselaer. It also operates gasoline-electric buses in Cohoes, Troy, Rensselaer and Albany.

Operates 78 Miles of Electric Lines.

The Schenectady Railway, which Mr. Phillips now controls fully through his purchases from the D. & H. and the New York Central, operates seventy-three miles of electric lines in Schenectady, Albany and Saratoga Counties. The New York State Railways owns and operates the city traction lines in Rochester, Syracuse, Utica and Oneida and interurban lines from Rochester to Sea Breeze and Summerville and Geneva, Canandaigua and Sodium Point and from Utica to Rome, Little Falls, Clinton and New York Mills, and suburban lines in the vicinity of Syracuse. It leases from the West Shore Railroad the electrified line between Utica and Syracuse.

"We believe in the future of traction properties if properly located in suitable cities and properly managed," said Mr. Phillips. "The street car will carry ten times the number of persons that any other conveyance will accomodate, and its continuance is inevitable and essential to the welfare of our cities."

At the time the New York Central sold its transit properties to Mr. Phillips, it was said the road raised the $41,000,000 cash by that means in case a stock issue pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission should not be approved. The commission had then declined to allow the Van Sweringen interests to sell stock of the Chesapeake & Ohio at par to further their merger deals and the New York Central management feared that for that reason its proposal to issue $42,158,000 of stock at par might be disapproved. However, the commission approved the issue. Meanwhile, the Central had made a profit of about $25,000,000 on the utility deal.

D. & H. Sale in Line With Policy.

The sale of its utilities by the D. & H. is consistent with policies the railroad company has recently followed. It recently formed the Delaware & Hudson Railroad Corporation to acquire all its railroad properties except those in Canada, which are being sought by the Canadian National Railways. Reports have had it that the D. & H. would sell its iron mines and Adirondack hotels. While retaining its coal properties, the D. & H. is divesting itself of properties not immediately associated with railroad operation and is, therefore, putting the D. & H. lines in a position where they may readily be merged in any Eastern consolidation.

Mr. Phillips's associates in the New York Central deal were described as the Manufacturers' Trust Company and W. C. Langley & Co., but these organizations would seem to be acting merely in a financial capacity. Mr. Phillips said yesterday that his associates in both deals were the same, but went no further. For some time it has been considered possible that his properties might eventually be aligned with the large holdings in New York State in which the United Gas Improvement Company and General Electric Company are interested.

Mr. Phillips is president of the Empire Power Corporation, which supplies electricity to Lockport, Auburn, Geneva, Elmira, Newark, Seneca Falls, Dansville, Corning, Hornell, Penn Yann and other New York communities. He is also president of the Long Island Light Company, which owns gas and electric companies stretching from Rockaway Park to East Marion and Montauk and controls the Queens Borough Gas and Electric Company and the Kings County Lighting Company. Through the United Gas and Electric Company he controls properties in New York State and Texas. Assets of all the Phillips companies approximate $250,000,000.

UTILITY EARNINGS.

The Federal Light and Traction Company reports a net income of $1,924,896 for the twelve months ended on Nov. 30, before reserves. This is equal, after preferred dividends, to $3.86 a share earned on the average amount of common stock outstanding. It compares with $1,596,511, or $3.24 a share, earned in the previous twelve months. Gross earnings were $7,843,650, against $6,962,554. November gross was $723,155, against $621,774 last year, and net income was $230,287 against $171,283.

Idaho Power.

The Idaho Power Company yesterday issued the following report:

I. T. T. OFFER ACCEPTED BY ARGENTINE UTILITY

93 Per Cent of United River Plate Telephone Stockholders Approve Purchase of Shares.

Holders of 1,177,000 shares, or more than 93 per cent, of the stock of the United River Plate Telephone Company, Ltd., have accepted the offer made by J. P. Morgan & Co. and the National City Company on behalf of the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation for the purchase of their stock in that company, thus assuring the acquisition of the British telephone company in the Argentine by the International organization. The period for deposit of United River Plate shares expired yesterday, but was extended until Jan. 24 to allow those who have not deposited to do so.

The United River Plate Telephone Company owns and operates the largest telephone system in Buenos Aires and four provinces of Argentina. The offer made on behalf of the International corporation represented an outlay of about $60,000,000, part of which will be in cash. United River Plate stockholders received an offer of an exchange of one-fifth share of International stock and £4 10s in cash or £12 in cash for each share of their stock.

The International corporation is offering its stockholders of record on Dec. 21, 1928, rights to subscribe to 4½ per cent convertible debentures in the amount of $1,000 par value of debentures for each twenty-five shares owned, or a total offering of about $57,300,000, to provide funds for the acquisition of the British company.

STOCK ISSUE VOTED FOR NICKEL MERGER

International of Canada Holders Approve New $5 Preferred in Mond Deal.

PLAN EXCHANGE OF SHARES

Also Authorize Legal Formalities for Consolidation—Holdings Corporation Reduces Capital.

The way was cleared yesterday for the consolidation of the International Nickel Company of Canada and the Mond Nickel Company when stockholders of the former at a special meeting approved the recommendation of the directors to provide for an issue of 3,750,000 shares of $5 par 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock. The necessary legal formalities to complete the merger were authorized.

Stock of International Nickel of Canada will be exchanged for Mond Nickel stock on the following basis: One share of $5 par preferred Nickel for every share of 7 per cent £1 par preferred of Mond; one share of no-par Nickel common for every ordinary share of Mond. A cash payment of 2s 6d a share will be made for Mond's first 7 per cent cumulative preferred. Mond has outstanding 3,750,000 shares of preferred and 2,500,000 ordinary shares.

Details of the merger were announced some time ago. The two companies control more than 90 per cent of the world's supply of nickel. International Nickel of Canada now holds the physical assets formerly held by the International Nickel Company of New Jersey. The change in ownership from an American to a Canadian company was made, it is understood, so that the merger with Mond could be carried out without conflicting with the anti-trust laws of the United States.

The Nickel Holdings Corporation, which will hold the stock of International Nickel of Canada, has notified the New York Stock Exchange that its capital has been reduced to 8,437 shares of preferred and 149,725 of common.

Whelan Heads Realty Company.

Officers of the new Cigar Stores Realty Holdings, Inc., which will control the real estate of the United Cigar Stores Company, were announced yesterday. They are: Charles A. Whelan, president; William Baeder and George J. Wise, vice presidents; George Wattley, secretary and treasurer. Charles F. Noyes will be a director. All of them are directors of United Cigar Stores.

MOODY FORECASTS MARKET

Says 1929 Promises to Be Largely a Duplication of 1928.

The prosperity which has characterized this country with only moderate setbacks since 1923 is likely to continue without great variation well into the future, according to John Moody, president of Moody's Investors Service. Of the security markets, he says:

"The strong trend among investors for the purchase of stocks or 'equities' rather than bonds promises to grow as long as prosperity and expansion continue throughout the country. But just as soon as we run into a serious business depression people will want to buy security rather than earning power and bonds may come into their own again. This is a highly speculative age, and as long as the present background continues there is little to justify the belief that this modern era of great stock market activity in Wall Street will culminate.

"Briefly, 1929 promises to be, in the security markets, largely a duplication of 1928, but with greater 'shake-outs,' wilder movements, both higher and lower prices. Whether the broad upward trend and extreme activity will definitely culminate this year will depend on the measure of conservatism or recklessness that is exercised by the great army of American investors and speculators. If the so-called 'bull market' culminates this year it will not be due to any pronounced reversal of the fundamental prosperity of the country. This latter promises genuine permanency for a long period."

DISSOLUTION NOTICES.

Notice to Stockholders of RAY CONSOLIDATED COPPER COMPANY.

You are hereby notified that by decree of the Supreme Judicial Court of the State of Maine, dated October 22, 1923, the Ray Consolidated Copper Company was dissolved and the undersigned was appointed Trustee to liquidate its affairs. It is expected the assets of the corporation will be entirely converted into cash soon after January 1, 1929. After the payment of the expenses of the dissolution and liquidation proceedings this cash will be available for distribution among the stockholders, as the corporation has no debts.

By further order of the Court, dated December 21, 1928, the undersigned was also appointed Special Master to receive and pass upon proofs of claims of all persons claiming to be stockholders in Ray Consolidated Copper Company, and in accordance with the direction of said order, I hereby give notice of the foregoing situation.

The order of December 21st gives direction in regard to the proof of claims as follows:

The stockholders of Ray Consolidated Copper Company are hereby directed and notified to present their respective claims to said Special Master at his office, 57 Exchange Street, Portland, Maine, not later than March 1, 1929, each such claim to be presented to said Special Master in writing, signed by the claimant and under oath, and to be accompanied by the stock certificate or certificates upon which such claim is based, or in lieu thereof, ownership of shares of stock in the defendant corporation is to be proved to the satisfaction of said Special Master, and if said Special Master shall require additional proof or information in regard to any claim presented as above, it shall be furnished by the claimant.

The stockholders are urged to send in their proofs of claim as soon as possible. The Court will probably not order any distribution among stockholders until the time for proving claims has expired. Stock certificates should be duly endorsed for transfer with signatures guaranteed by some bank, trust company or Stock Exchange firm.

CHARLES D. BOOTH,
Trustee and Special Master,
57 Exchange Street,
Portland, Maine.

Dated January 2, 1929.

$44,000,000 TO GO TO POLICY HOLDERS

INCREASE OF $4,000,000

Company Also Adds $5,000,000 to Contingent Reserve, Raising It to $64,000,000.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company will distribute to policy holders during the current year approximately $44,000,000 in dividends, it announced yesterday. This is $4,000,000 more than the amount distributed in 1928. It will be the ninth successive distribution of this type voted by the trustees.

In addition to this sum set aside for dividends the company has placed $5,000,000 in its contingent reserve fund, to be available in the event of an epidemic among policy holders or a severe decrease in the market value of securities which it holds. Since 1921 the company has increased its dividends annually and at the same time has built up this fund from $23,000,000 to approximately $64,000,000.

Since its origin, in 1843, the Mutual Life has distributed to policy holders $609,000,000 in dividends. In the last ten years these have amounted to $318,000,000.

The increase in dividends for 1929 is attributed in part to the company's purchases of preferred stocks and debentures, which were permitted by the Wales act, passed last Spring, and to increased loans on real estate mortgages, which have yielded large returns. The interest factor, which was 4.7 in 1928, has been raised to 4.8 for the current year.

TO MAKE STEEL CASTINGS.

$10,000,000 Plant for Baldwin and Another Locomotive Company.

The American Steel Foundries Company of Chicago, the Baldwin Locomotive Works and another company, understood to be the American Locomotive Company, are to control a new company manufacturing steel castings, R. P. Lamont, president of American Steel Foundries announced yesterday.

A plant which will cost approximately $10,000,000 will be constructed at once on land adjoining the Baldwin Locomotive Works, Mr. Lamont said. No new financing will be required.

HUGE DAM FOR CONNECTICUT

A bill is to be introduced in the Connecticut Legislature providing for the right to build a dam and condemn land for the construction of a 20,000,000,000 gallon capacity reservoir on the Farmington River, it was learned yesterday. The project has been prepared by Corporation Counsel Francis W. Cole and is sponsored by the Board of Water Commissioners to anticipate the future water supply requirements of the City of Hartford.

The reservoir planned is to be constructed about one mile north of the compensating reservoir, and extend about eight miles up the Farmington valley to Hartland. The project is to cost several million dollars, and it is expected that a bond issue will be floated. It is planned to build a hydro-electric plant, to be leased to the Hartford Electric Light Company.

FEWER SUSPICIOUS FIRES.

Arson Bureau of Fire Underwriters Board Reports for 1928.

The Arson Bureau of the National Board of Fire Underwriters last year investigated 3,230 fires in the United States, of which 320 were in the vicinity of New York, according to W. E. Mallalieu, general manager of the board, in a statement issued yesterday. In many of these investigations, he added, information was obtained by special agents of the board which, when communicated to the local authorities, resulted in the arrest and conviction of many persons guilty of arson.

"During the past year," he said, "fires in apartment houses in course of construction and in lumber yards have caused the agents of the National Board to concentrate their activities on these particular types of risks, which has resulted in a marked cessation of suspicious fires."

Mr. Mallalieu reported excellent cooperation by Fire Commissioner Dorman, and added that to a large extent it had been reasonable for the general improvement of conditions. He also reported that business and commercial fires in 1928 were fewer by many than in 1927.

NEW RECORD MADE IN BANK CLEARINGS

Transfers in 127 Cities Last Month Amounted to $60,279,792,000.

$625,644,791,000 IN YEAR

Bank clearings at 127 leading cities in the United States in December aggregated $60,279,792,000. This was 5.9 per cent more than in November and 5.3 per cent more than in May, which was the record month. At New York City the total for the month was $30,218,138,000, the largest sum for a month on record, and 22.8 per cent greater than in the corresponding month a year ago, while at the 126 other cities the aggregate was $21,061,669,000, or 6 per cent more than in December, 1927.

For the calendar year 1928, clearings totaled $625,644,791,000, a gain of 14.2 per cent over 1927. In New York City the total was $301,627,476,000, a gain of 21.9 per cent, while in the outside cities it was $234,017,315,000, or 3.6 per cent more than in the preceding year.

The following table, compiled by Bradstreet's, summarizes the situation in the various sections of the country in December and the twelve months of the last two years.

CHEMICAL BANK OPENS BOX IN CORNERSTONE

Power of Attorney Signed by James Fenimore Cooper One of Historical Papers.

A large copper box removed from the cornerstone of the Chemical National Bank Building at Broadway and Chambers Street was opened yesterday, disclosing a collection of papers and records bearing on the early history of the institution. The box was opened in the board room of the bank's new home at 165 Broadway in the presence of the directors.

The box had been in the building at Broadway and Chambers only since 1906, but its contents are much older. The bank was at that location for seventy-eight years. The directors were particularly interested in a 100-page typewritten history of the bank from its organization up to 1906. Among other interesting papers were a certificate for a share of the New York Chemical Manufacturing Company stock dated Jan. 27, 1825; a number of bank notes produced in the early '60s, articles of organization of the Chemical as a State bank in 1844; a power of attorney signed by James Fenimore Cooper authorizing Gorham A. Worth, cashier of the City Bank, to collect all dividends due on Chemical stock; an original notice and papers relating to the organization of the New York Clearing House, a specimen of fractional currency used during the Civil War and a list of original stockholders of the Chemical Bank.

W. Emlen Roosevelt and Robert Goelet, whose families participated in the organization of the bank, were present. C. V. S. Roosevelt, an original stockholder, lived in Cortlandt Street, the present location of the Chemical Bank.

Papers taken from the box show that the first president of the bank, Balthasar P. Melick, received a salary of $1,000 a year. The first cashier, William Stebbins, received $1,500 and had living quarters over the bank.

The Chemical Bank began business as the Chemical Manufacturing Company in 1823 in the district which is now Greenwich Village. The company's charter was amended on April 1, 1824, to permit it to engage in the banking business. On Aug. 2, 1824, the bank opened for business at 216 Broadway, opposite St. Paul's Church, in a building which formerly was the residence of Nicholas Haight.

NEW BANK ORGANIZED.

The Broadway National Will Be Located on Fifth Avenue.

Organization of the Broadway National Bank, with resources of $3,000,000, was announced yesterday by Leonard L. Rothstein, correspondent. The new bank will have a capital of $2,000,000, surplus of $750,000 and a contingent fund of $250,000. Although the location for the institution has not as yet been picked, it will be in the Fifth Avenue between Twenty-eighth and Thirty-fourth Streets.

The first board of directors includes George Eyper, Walter A. Bedell, Samuel C. Lamport, Israel Miller, M. E. Cruttenden, Bennett Goldberg, David Tischman, Louis Eisenberg, John Bancroft, S. C. Gallagher and A. M. Frumberg. The Comptroller of the Currency has approved the application for organization.

Chrysler Unifies Properties.

Manufacturing properties under the direction of Walter P. Chrysler will hereafter be known as Chrysler Motors, it was announced yesterday. This will result in the application to all units of a common policy of purchasing, engineering and manufacturing.

RESERVE DEPOSITS INCREASE IN WEEK

CASH RESERVES GAIN

Federal Note Circulation is $81,500,000 Less Than a Week Ago.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The consolidated statement of the condition of the Federal Reserve banks on Jan. 2, made public by the Federal Reserve Board, shows decreases for the week of $16,100,000 in holdings of discounted bills and of $4,900,000 in bills bought in open market and an increase of $11,000,000 in holdings of United States Government securities. Member bank reserve deposits increased $44,600,000, government deposits $15,200,000 and cash reserves $29,700,000, while Federal Reserve note circulation decreased $81,500,000. Total bills and securities were $9,700,000 below the amount held on Dec. 26.

The principal changes in holdings of discounted bills for the week were an increase of $107,600,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and decreases of $36,100,000 at Boston, $27,900,000 at Chicago, $20,900,000 at Cleveland, $12,600,000 at Philadelphia and $12,000,000 at San Francisco. The system's holdings of bills bought in open market decreased $4,900,000 and of Treasury certificates $4,400,000, while holdings of Treasury notes increased $16,200,000.

Federal Reserve note circulation was $81,500,000 less than a week ago, all of the Federal Reserve banks reporting decreases in circulation, the largest declines being $17,000,000 at Philadelphia, $15,100,000 at Cleveland, $10,200,000 each at New York and Chicago, $7,200,000 at Boston and $6,300,000 at San Francisco.

Following the Dec. 31 closing of books, the Federal Reserve banks transferred $21,079,000 to surplus, increasing that account to $254,396,000.

A summary of the changes in the principal assets and liabilities of the reserve banks during the week and year ended Jan. 2, 1929, follows:

RESERVE BANK POSITION.

Range of Important Items in 1928 Compared With Preceding Years.

Yesterday's statement of the twelve Reserve banks showed no high or low records as compared with the preceding year except in the reserve ratio of the New York bank, which went to the lowest percentage since the early part of 1921.

The following table shows the highest and lowest points reached in 1928 and in a series of years past. All figures except ratio of reserve are in thousands of dollars:

BANK STOCK GOES TO $5,225

Quotation for First National Sets Record in Its Class.

A new high price for shares of a bank stock was established in the over-the-counter market yesterday by the stock of the First National Bank, which was quoted at the close at $5,125-$5,225. The bid price represented an over-night advance of $25 a share. So far as large dealers in bank stocks were aware, no sales were made.

The strength of the stock was believed to reflect an extraordinarily good earnings statement for 1928, soon to be announced by the bank.

NEW BANK DEAL REPORTED

Merger of Nassau and Granite in Brooklyn Expected.

With negotiations practically complete for a merger of the Brooklyn Trust Company and the Mechanics' Bank, reports reached the financial district yesterday of plans for another consolidation of banks in Brooklyn.

The Nassau National Bank, it was said, is preparing to take over the Granite National Bank. The Nassau, organized in 1889, has resources of $28,000,000. The Granite, which was opened in 1926, has resources of $2,500,000. G. Foster Smith, president of the former, declined to comment on the report further than to say no deal had been closed.

At the offices of the Brooklyn Trust Company it was said negotiations for a merger with the Mechanics were proceeding but had not yet reached the stage of official announcement.

RETURNING TO OLD SITE.

Bank of New York to Occupy New Home Where It Started in 1796.

The Bank of New York and Trust Company, the oldest financial institution in New York, will return at the end of this week to the site at 48 Wall Street which it purchased in 1796, and which has since that date been continuously associated with its business.

All departments of the institution will be established in the new quarters on Monday in preparation for the formal opening scheduled for Jan. 11. The thirty-two-story building which now occupies the site is the third home of the bank to be erected on this corner in the 133 years since the property was purchased. During the erection of the building, the bank was at 76 William Street.

BARCLAY'S NETS $10,182,860

English Bank's Directors Recommend 10 to 14 Per Cent Dividends.

LONDON, Jan. 3 (Canadian Press).—Barclay's Bank, Ltd., which is planning to establish a branch in Canada, has just concluded a successful year, according to the report of the directors. After payment of all charges and making full provision for bad and doubtful debts, the bank has a net profit for the year ended Dec. 31 of £2,201,000 (about $10,182,860).

The directors recommended a final dividend rate of 10 per cent on "A" shares of par value of £4 each, fully paid, and 14 per cent on "B" and "C" shares of £1 par value each, fully paid up, less income tax. A balance of £321,000 will be carried forward into 1929.

Barclay's Bank recently announced its intention of applying to the Parliament of Canada for a charter under the bank act. The head office of the Canadian branch is to be in Montreal.

Stock Exchange Seat Sold.

Negotiations were completed yesterday for the first sale of a New York Stock Exchange membership in 1929 at $575,000. This price is the same as that of the last previous sale.

ACCEPTANCES UP AT RESERVE BANK

Buying Rate Advanced to 4¾ Per Cent on 90-Day Bills, 4½ on Shorter Maturities.

MOVE TO BROADEN MARKET

Increase by Dealers Expected, With 5% Quoted for First Time—Check to Volume Predicted.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York announced yesterday that it was advancing its buying rate for bills, beginning today, and that the rate hereafter would be 4¾ per cent for ninety-day bills and 4½ per cent for the shorter maturities. This change is expected to result in an advance in the yield rate by dealers in bills and the quotation of a 5 per cent rate for ninety-day maturities for the first time in the history of the bankers' acceptance market.

The Federal Reserve Bank's action is a further step in its program of reducing its participation in the acceptance market. Some time ago Dr. W. Randolph Burgess, Assistant Federal Reserve Agent at New York, told the American Acceptance Council that it might be desirable for the bill market to lean less heavily on the Federal Reserve system. The Federal Reserve banks of the country now hold a total of $484,358,000 of bills bought in the open market. This is expected to be reduced from now on. With the crop movement and the general business requirements of the year-end taken care of it is believed that the Reserve Bank will steadily reduce its holdings of bills. Its practice is to take the overflow from the bill market, which was exceptionally large this season, with total issuances of acceptances surpassing all records.

New rate levels for acceptances are expected to check, at least temporarily, the growing volume of this type of financing and to divert much of it to commercial paper, which is somewhat less costly to the original borrower. If such a shift in financing occurs, it is expected to result in larger totals of rediscounting at the Federal Reserve banks, since commercial paper is a direct basis for rediscounting. Discussions of the situation in banking circles yesterday linked up the changes in the acceptance market with a generally firm tone in credit charges.

The collateral loan market yesterday was featured by a reduction to 7 per cent in the call money rate, as against a high record of 12 per cent which prevailed at the start of this week. The easier tone was due to a heavy return flow to New York of funds which had been withdrawn by out-of-town banks and by corporations in connection with year-end requirements.

$24,999,000 GOLD SOLD FOR FOREIGN ACCOUNT

France Is Buyer of Earmarked Metal, Bringing Its Recent Purchases to $55,000,000.

An increase of $24,999,000 in the stock of gold ear-marked for foreign account was announced yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Although the purchaser of the metal was not announced, it was generally believed in the financial district that the Bank of France acquired it. France purchased $25,000,000 of gold here last November and made an additional purchase last month, and the latest report increased the total ear-markings to more than $55,000,000.

The Reserve Bank announced that imports of gold at New York in the last week totaled $2,087,000, of which $1,250,000 came from Canada, $750,000 from Argentina and $87,000 from Latin America. Exports of gold for the week were $167,000, of which $100,000 went to Venezuela, $54,000 to Germany and $13,000 to India.

To Head Standard Oil in North China

SHANGHAI, Jan. 3 (AP).—P. S. Hopkins of Boston, who has had fourteen years' service in China with the Standard Oil Company of New York, has been appointed the company's North China manager with headquarters in Shanghai. He succeeds H. J. Everall, who is retiring after thirty years in the company's service in China. Mr. Hopkins is the son of Dr. N. S. Hopkins of Boston, formerly a missionary physician in Peking.

FRENCH BANK GAINS GOLD HEAVILY AGAIN

Week's Increase 143,000,000 Francs—Note Circulation Rises 2,000,000,000 Francs.

PARIS, Jan. 3 (AP).—The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes, in francs:

Gold	increased	143,000,000
Sight balances abroad	decreased	146,000,000
For'n exchange loaned	decreased	26,000,000
Bills discted at home	increased	1,878,000,000
Bills bought abroad	increased	1,000,000
Advances	increased	12,000,000
Circulation	increased	2,002,000,000
Current Accounts	increased	178,000,000

With the above changes for the week, yesterday's statement of the Bank of France compares as follows with those of the two preceding weeks and the week ended June 30, 1928, when revaluation of the franc was put into force. Items in the table are in millions of francs:

	Jan. 3	Dec. 27	Dec. 20	J'ne 30
Gold reserve	31,073	31,632	31,720	29,835
Foreign credits	13,591	13,647	14,022	15,987
Circulation	63,916	61,914	61,421	58,772

This week's outstanding note circulation is the highest ever recorded. Prior to the stabilization decree the highest point reached by the bank's note circulation, which was then valued at approximately the present franc valuation, was 60,394,547,000 francs on May 10. A year ago this week it was 58,639,166,000.

The French bank's official discount rate remains at 2½ per cent, to which it was reduced on Jan. 10, 1928.

BANK OF ENGLAND GOLD RESERVE DOWN £741,000

Banking Reserve, However, Increases £9,211,000, and Reserve Ratio Rises Again.

LONDON, Jan. 3 (AP).—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes, in pounds sterling:

Gold coin and bullion	decreased	£741,000
Reserve in banking dept., gold and notes	increased	9,211,000
Notes in circulation	decreased	5,943,000
Notes in reserve	increased	9,288,000
Loans on govt. sec.	decreased	4,869,000
Loans on other sec.	increased	10,922,000
Public deposits	increased	9,307,000
Other deposits	increased	15,045,000

The proportion of the Bank's reserve to liabilities is 24.26 per cent.

Last week the Bank's ratio was 21.52 per cent, two weeks ago 29.24. The highest percentage in 1928 was 55.13 on Sept. 13, which was also the highest since Jan. 28, 1914; the lowest was 21.95, on Jan. 4.

The statement, compared with the corresponding weeks one and two years ago, is as follows:

	1929.	1928.	1927.
Total gold holdings	£153,323,675	£152,303,247	£151,280,637
Res. in banking dept., gold and notes	35,035,570	34,324,577	31,327,357
Notes in circulation	378,294,999	137,728,370	139,803,280
Public deposits	12,330,424	13,617,917	11,326,613
Other deposits	61,708,016	142,750,261	141,057,054
Government securities	307,218,321	48,203,992	36,097,634
Other securities	59,217,654	91,716,288	105,203,152
Ratio of reserves	24.26	21.35	20.50

The gold holdings of Sept. 12, 1928, £176,584,362, were the largest in the history of the Bank of England. At the end of April, 1925, when British gold payments were resumed, they stood at £155,742,064. They increased to £164,500,162 on Aug. 5 of that year and declined to £143,741,895 on Jan. 20, 1926, which was the lowest figure reached since gold resumption.

The Bank's official discount rate remains unchanged at 4½ per cent, established April 21, 1927.

CANADIAN CUSTOMS RISE.

Receipts Last Year Up $24,532,363 —Excise Returns Decrease.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 3 (CP).—Collections by the Department of National Revenue in Customs and Excise for the Whole of Canada during the calendar year ended Dec. 31 amounted to $340,750,625, as compared with $319,288,477 in 1927, an increase of $21,472,148. The figures do not include income tax and sundry collections.

For the customs branch of the department, the collections totaled $192,636,805, as compared with $188,104,442 for 1927, an increase of $24,532,363, while the excise branch collected $148,113,819, a decrease of $3,070,215 from 1927.

The excise decrease is attributed to the 25 per cent reduction in sales tax while the increase in the customs collections are ascribed to Canada's greater volume of trade and to the vigilance of customs officials consequent upon the reorganization of the department.

British Industrials Receive Support—Victor Talking Shares Reach Record Level.

LONDON MONEY HARDENS

Paris Weakens After Strong Opening—Berlin Closes Nervous at Lowest Quotations.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—Values on the Stock Exchange showed considerable movement today. British funds opened firm, but profit-taking in 5 per cent war loan affected the market generally and there was an all-round reaction. Oil and rubber shares were quiet. Home rails took an upward course on the approach of the dividend season.

In the industrial market support was given to a wide range of shares and sharp rises occurred in Mond Nickel, margarine, Imperial Airways and electricity and foreign utility shares. Victor Talking shares rose to the new record level of $158, while Columbia Graphophone shares advanced ¾ to £16½ and United Molasses shares rose to £8. Imperial Chemical, Courtaulds and Dunlop rubber shares all showed increased strength. South African shares received some support on the French account. De Beers were unchanged and Rand Mines rose 3-32. There was a further return to normal conditions on Lombard Street and borrowers found the rates moving against them. The discount market was influenced by a fresh fall in the New York exchange, which finished at $4.85 1-16, a decline of 1-16. This brought the exchange back once more to a level threatening gold exports from London.

Paris Industrials Advance.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 3.—The French paper circulation reached the record figure of 63,915,000,000 francs, according to the weekly statement of the Bank of France, issued today, which gives the figures for last Saturday. This increase of more than 2,000,000,000 reflects the year's settlements, including nearly 2,000,000,000 francs in commercial discounts.

At the same time the proportion of gold in the vaults, despite an increase of 142,000,000 francs during the week, dropped from 39.32 to 38.46 per cent, with the obligations totaling 88,147,000,000 francs.

This tightening of the monetary situation, which became known about mid-session, had a weakening influence upon the Bourse, which had opened particularly active and strong. In the first hours of trading, bank and industrial shares and rentes advanced, but they lost a part of their gains in the final hours of business. Among international stocks Suez and Rio Tintos were especially demanded.

Berlin Shows Declines.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 3.—On account of easier local money conditions and favorable reports from the New York Stock Exchange, the Boerse opened comparatively firm today. Some specialties, led by Dye Trust shares, managed to gain a few points, but a reaction came quickly.

The unanimous protest of the German press against S. Parker Gilbert's reparations report and a cable dispatch announcing that the report of the American commercial attaché contradicts the statements of the reparations agent, made the banks and large speculators, who were buying yesterday, cautious. Later the report that the General Electric Company would only declare an 8 per cent dividend gave the signal for a bear attack which drove down all prices.

The markets closed nervous at the lowest quotations despite the further reduction of the private discount rate. Call money was offered at 5½ to 7.

SLUMP IN WHEAT FOLLOWS A RALLY

Day's Trading Is Marked by Scattered Liquidation and Short Hedging.

FOREIGN MARKETS LOWER

Early Selling of Corn Causes a Decline but Values Rise to Higher Close.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Pressure in the last two days has come largely from the pit element and there has been an increase in scattered liquidation and hedging. The market had a fair rally early today on the closing of spreads between here and the Northwest. The market broke rather sharply later with May down to $1.17¾, equalling the inside figure of the season to date. A moderate rally from the inside was due to short covering with the close ¾ to ⅞ cents lower.

Liverpool closed unchanged to ¼ cent a penny lower. Buenos Ayres closed 1¾ to 2¾ cents lower and Rosario 1¾ to 2¾ cents lower, March in the latter market being $1.06¾ or 8¾ cents under Chicago. Export demand was again reported as slow with sales of 300,000 to 400,000 bushels in all positions.

Primary arrivals today 535,000 bushels; week ago 861,000 bushels; last year 709,000 bushels. Shipments 546,000 bushels; week ago 400,000 bushels; last year 359,000 bushels.

Local operators sold corn early and caused a small decline, but the surplus in the pit was absorbed by commission houses and local bulls and the close was about the top, with net gains of ⅛ to ⅜ cents. Country offerings were again small, and there was talk of a good export business having been put through with Holland and claims of further inquiries.

Primary arrivals today 1,461,000 bushels; week ago 1,510,000 bushels; last year 935,000 bushels. Shipments 587,000 bushels; week ago 798,000 bushels; last year 668,000 bushels.

Oats held within narrow limits and closed ⅛ to ¼ cent higher. Rye was ½ to 1¼ cents lower.

Prices for the principal grains were as follows:

WEATHER ONLY FAIR FOR GROWING CROPS

Unfavorable Conditions Delay Husking and Housing of Corn Crop.

The weekly weather report, issued yesterday by the goverament, was as follows:

Conditions were favorable for scrapping outstanding cotton, with some remaining to be picked in the central, northern and northwestern portions of the belt.

Husking and housing the remaining corn crop made good progress until the unfavorable weather about the close of the week; considerable corn is still out in the Lower Missouri and Upper Mississippi Valley.

The Winter wheat belt continued generally bare of snow until about the close of week but the prevailing temperatures, in general, were not materially harmful, though there were complaints of unfavorable thawing and freezing conditions locally in the Ohio Valley, principally in Indiana and Kentucky. In the western belt, conditions continued generally favorable and at the close of the period there was rather widespread snow in many central and western districts, which will afford protection against the low temperatures that overspread the interior about the first of the year. During December the ground was unusually bare over the wheat belt, as a whole, but only local complaints were received of harmful alternate thawing and freezing conditions.

Precipitation in the Pacific Northwest was helpful for Winter grains, especially in Eastern Washington, where there is a fairly good snow cover, but additional moisture is needed in Eastern Oregon. In the Rocky Mountain States, wheat continues mostly satisfactory except that high winds were unfavorable in some districts. In the South rainfall would be beneficial but conditions continued generally favorable in the Middle Atlantic area.

Peoples Drug Stores Buy Chain.

The Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., have purchased the Kennedy chain operating fifteen drug stores in Pennsylvania. It was a cash transaction and will not involve issuance of additional stock. Sales of Peoples Drug Stores in December exceeded $11,300,000, a record for a month for the chain of ninety-eight stores.

COTTON PRICES RISE 26 TO 30 POINTS NET

Market Rallies When Early Drop Causes Mills to Resume Buying.

Following a sharp break of half a cent on Wednesday, prices on the Cotton Exchange worked off a few points more in the early trading yesterday. Then the whole market turned upward and recovered nearly $2 a bale before the close. After withdrawing when prices were above 20¾ cents recently, mills became active buyers on a basis of 19¾ cents, taking so many contracts from the ring that a covering movement during the afternoon disclosed little cotton for sale. Final quotations showed a gain of 26 to 30 points on the day. It was estimated that a few houses had bought from 30,000 to 40,000 bales during the advance.

Exports now are 888,000 bales ahead of clearances to Jan. 3 last season. There has been a sharp falling off in port receipts in the last few days, indicating a reduction in the into-sight movement in today's week-end figures and the probability of little change in the visible supply.

The previous day's liquidation was resumed soon after the opening of the Exchange yesterday, and execution of Western selling orders carried both March and May to 19.70 cents before pressure lifted. Houses with trade connections became active buyers in the last hour Wednesday and purchasing orders were received on a steadily increasing scale when near deliveries broke below 19¾ cents yesterday. The lower level made a more attractive basis for fixing prices and calling the cotton contracted for in the last few months and mills took advantage of the decline to secure raw material. A stream of buying orders came into the market in the first hour and this not only halted the decline but started a recovery which amounted to $1 a bale before midday.

When it became evident that contracts had been taken from the supply without bringing cotton from the South, while New Orleans turned as strong as prices had been weak on the previous day, a covering movement developed during the afternoon. Western houses bought heavily, and several blocks of May which had been sold at high levels ten days ago were covered when May approached the 20 cent level. The most active demand appeared to be centred in the May delivery which advanced several points above March at times, with March several points over January. New crop months recovered in sympathy with the old after new October prices had broken below 19 cents in the morning decline.

Yesterday's quotations follow.

Retail Sales Gain Small.

Estimates now being made of the probable countrywide gain in sales of department stores in 1928 as compared with the preceding year range from 1.5 to 2 per cent. The latter figure is considered high, with conservative opinion inclining to the belief that the gain will be nearer 1.5 per cent. If this is the case the gain last year will approximate that of 1927 over 1926. More light will be thrown on the actual figures next Friday when the "flash report" covering 1928 sales will be issued by the Controllers' Congress of the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

Sanford Maintains 1928 Prices.

Under date of Jan. 2 price lists showing the continuation into this year of the 1928 prices on their carpets and rugs were sent to the retail floor coverings trade yesterday by Stephen Sanford & Sons, Inc. Except for a reduction in their Sanfordshah weave that was made last November these prices have remained unchanged since Jan. 16, 1928. The guarantee against decline only is continued until March 31. The only change in the new list is a modification of terms of shipment, which now provide for uniform end-of-month dating of invoices. This not only simplifies accounting operations for both the firm and its customers, but automatically lengthens the average cash discount period.

Name Store Supply Committee.

A plan of organization embracing standard specifications in the purchase of department store supplies will be drawn up by a committee appointed yesterday at a meeting held under the auspices of the store managers' division of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. The committee will report to the store managers' division, the Controllers' Congress and the traffic group at the association's annual convention on Feb. 7. At yesterday's meeting, Victor Sincere, president of the National Department Stores, explained the results that chain stores have obtained in purchasing packing and wrapping supplies by specification.

Jewelry Retailers Did Well.

Reports from the wholesale jewelry trade indicate that while the break in Wall Street just before Christmas and the toll taken of Christmas shoppers by influenza had militated against business to some extent, retailers in many parts of the country fared better than for several years. This was particularly true of those in the larger cities, with Detroit and Chicago outstanding in the Middle West. Local retailers also did well, and results apparently were satisfactory to leading jewelers in New England and in the bigger Southern cities. Reports from the Pacific Coast did not wholly jibe, but it was said here yesterday to be apparent that the epidemic had put a check on consumer purchasing.

Retail Inventories Lower.

When department stores complete their annual inventory at the end of this month stocks are expected to show up well. Reduction of about 5 per cent, as compared with the same time in 1928 are considered likely and stocks then were not considered unduly heavy. The situation reflects, perhaps more than any other single factor, the stressing of rapid turnover and the control of stocks within the turnover range established.

Early Easter Not So Valuable.

Although the early coming of Easter this year—it falls on March 31—is expected to help the dress trade by theoretically lengthening its Spring season, it is not likely to prove so valuable as it did in the days when the seasons were more sharply defined. Then Easter supplied a definite line of demarcation between the suit period and the dress, and its early coming was highly prized by the dress manufacturers for the additional business it meant. Under the present system of merchandising in the ready-to-wear field, however, Easter has largely lost its value as a dictator of garment changes. As matters now stand, its early coming this year is likely to aid the coat trade more than the dress.

Woolen Mills Did Better in 1928.

When the earnings reports of woolen mills for 1928 are made, many of them will show black ink instead of red for the first time in years, it was said yesterday. Profits will be neither large nor satisfactory, it was added, but the fact that an increased number of producers were able to change deficits into surpluses is considered a good omen of better times ahead. While operating profits have improved, there also has been a better ratio between production and billings, resulting in a liquidated stock position.

Record December Silk Imports.

Prior to closing until Jan. 7 for the New Year's holidays, the Yokohama raw silk market showed a large turnover. Prices closed on the basis of 1,365 yen for the Saiyu grade. Shipments during December established a new record with a total of 60,200 bales, according to H. L. Gwalter & Co., Inc. Stocks on hand at Yokohama and Kobe on Dec. 31, the firm says, were 43,000 bales, as against 58,000 bales a year ago. The Canton market is firm at unchanged prices. Tussahs continued quiet.

Umbrellas to Prevent Colds.

Members of the umbrella trade would do well to consider the use of statistics on respiratory diseases in their advertising, Dr. Wade Wright, assistant medical director industrial hygiene service of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, told a meeting of the trade held last night in the Aldine Club. Over 50 per cent of time lost in business as a result of illness is traceable to respiratory diseases, he pointed out, and the virtues of the umbrella as a protection in storms should be stressed. Dr. Hugh P. Baker, manager of the trade association department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, was another speaker. Charles E. Hawks, secretary of the Umbrella Manufacturers' Association, presided.

Gray Goods Sales Fair.

The partial recovery by cotton of the ground it lost on Wednesday brought about some improvement in gray goods trading here yesterday. Sellers reported business in spot 39-inch 68-72 and 38½-inch 48-square printcloths at 5⅜ and 5¾ cents, respectively, and they also let out 38½-inch 64-60s at 7¼ cents for shipment during the present month. There were sales of 36-inch 5-yard sheetings by second hands at 6¾ cents. For 37-inch 48-square, four-yard goods buyers paid 5¾ cents. Most of the trading in the rest of the market was confined to broadcloths. These sold on the basis of 9 and 8¾ cents, respectively, for 80-60s and 80-56s, both "non-reeler." Second hands let out some 90-80 broadcloths at 10½ cents.

Cocoa.

Cocoa futures on the New York Cocoa Exchange continued to fall yesterday in what proved to be a day of heavy trading. The total turnover was 196 lots, or 2,626 tons with prices at the close from 2 to 6 points lower. Following an active opening with prices from 3 to 5 points lower, the market steadied, but soon started to sag under selling pressure. Cables were easier.

REVISE WOOL SHOW PLAN.

To Be Held March 18-23 at Roosevelt, It Is Now Announced.

Announcement was made yesterday by President A. D. Whiteside of the Wool Institute that the wool trade pageant being sponsored by the institute will be held at the Hotel Roosevelt from March 18 to 23, instead of in February at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory. The exhibition will be named "The Golden Fleece: A Pageant of the Wool Industry." Donald D. Mitchell of the Faulkner & Colony Company has been appointed director of the pageant. Alexander Walker of Strong, Hewat & Co., Inc., is chairman of the committee representing the industry at large.

In addition to the theatrical features of the pageant, to be supervised by Clark Robinson, prominence will be accorded displays of woolens and worsteds and model garments made from specially selected fabrics. Selection will be made by a committee comprised of stylists of leading local stores and fashion editors.

HIDE & SKIN MEN ELECT.

New Exchange Effects Organization to Serve Temporarily.

Temporary officers of the New York Hide and Skin Exchange elected yesterday to serve during the period of organization and until the membership of the exchange is completed, which it is expected will be some time this month, include Milton R. Katzenberg, president; Armand Schmoll and John C. Anderson, vice presidents, and J. Chester Cuppia, treasurer. Temporary offices of the exchange have been opened in the Hide and Leather Building at 100 Gold Street.

Directors also announced that the board will be increased from nine to fifteen members in order to make it more thoroughly representative of the hide and skin industry and of the commission houses. Temporary by-laws and rules were adopted by the board. They will be supplemented, prior to the opening of the exchange, by by-laws and rules embodying the best principles of the leading commodity exchanges and practices approved by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Katzenberg said that the new exchange would be located in the downtown financial district and that its membership would be limited to 250, drawn from packers, brokers, importers and exporters of hides and skins, tanners and leading commission houses here and abroad.

TIN PRICES DECLINE AGAIN.

45 to 50 Point Recessions Follow Wednesday's 30-Point Drop.

The tin market dropped from 45 to 50 points during trading yesterday on the National Metal Exchange, following a decline of 30 points the day before. Declines were evidently due to the unfavorable interpretation placed on statistics, particularly on the increase in the world's visible supply, which had been about 1,500 tons greater than anticipated.

The total turnover for the day was 240 tons. More than half the sales were for the April position. The market closed steady. In most cases the last sales of the day were at the lowest prices. The transfer notice price named for today was 49.05 cents.

Price ranges for tin futures yesterday were:

LIVE STOCK AT CHICAGO.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Hog prices dropped 10 to 40 cents, as compared with the extreme prices of the previous day, with bulk of the business at a loss of 25 to 35 cents. The top was lowered 25 cents to $9, with few above $8.75 at the last, while the day's average was down 30 cents to $8.65. Main sales of 250 to 350 pound averages early were at $8.50 to $8.80, with 200 to 250 pound kinds at $8.60 to $8.90 and 160 to 200 pounds at $8.50, with last sales 5 to 10 cents under these figures. Packing sows sold largely at $7.50 to $8.10. Packers bought 35,500 and shippers 9,000 with 7,000 left over. Receipts 50,000, with 48,000 estimated for tomorrow.

Cattle were weak at 25 to 35 cents' decline and some were carried over unsold, with bids showing a drop of 50 cents for the day. Main loss was on medium-weight heavies, while yearlings and light steers were largely steady. There were no choice offerings on the market. Bulk of beef cattle brought $11.35 to $14. Receipts, 10,000. Fat lambs were generally steady, with natives largely at $15.50 to $16 and a top of $16.25. Sheep were steady at $8.75 to $9. Receipts, 17,000.

LIVE STOCK AND MEATS.

These prices were reported yesterday in the New York and Jersey City markets by the United States Department of Agriculture:

CALVES.

Veslers scarce, active, steady; good to choice, $18.50 to $19.50; cull and common, $11 to $18.

SHEEP.

Lamb supply limited, active, fully steady; $13 to $15.75; sheep $1 higher; culls mostly $4.

TO INCREASE SUGAR SPACE.

Exchange Committee to Consider Enlarging Futures Contract.

In view of the fact that warehouse charges in the Port of New York have been advanced on sugar recently, the board of managers of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange will appoint a committee to investigate the possibilities of enlarging its sugar futures contract to include Philadelphia, Baltimore and New Orleans, Frank G. Lowry, president of the exchange announced yesterday.

"There has been some complaint from the trade recently," said Mr. Lowry, "that the cost of storing sugar in the Port of New York has been too high, and considering the interests of the grower, refiner, trader and general public, the board of managers has deemed it advisable to investigate the matter of enlarging our sugar futures contract. A committee, representing all of the various factors in the trade will be appointed within the next few days, and after a thorough inquiry will report to the board.

"Another factor deserving of consideration is that of largely increased storage of raw sugar which occurs occasionally, especially when tariff changes are contemplated by Congress. Presumably at the extra session of Congress the tariff on sugar will be raised, and in the past changes of this kind have resulted in large storings of raw sugar. There will likely be an accumulation of sugar stocks this year and with this greatly increased space available the accumulation will be handled with greater facility."

RUBBER MARKET SLUGGISH.

Prices Decline in Light Trading Involving Only Three Positions.

Trading in crude rubber futures on the Rubber Exchange yesterday dropped to the smallest turnover in a month, most of the larger operators being out of the market pending some development upon which to base a course of action.

1,943 BANKRUPTCIES LISTED LAST MONTH

Excess Over Number Reported for November Smallest in Six Years.

INDEBTEDNESS $40,774,160

Total of Liabilities 20 Per Cent Less Than in December, 1927—Figures for 1928.

Commercial failures for December showed an unusually small increase over the previous month, considering that a sharp rise generally takes place at the end of the year. The defaults numbered 1,943 with aggregate liabilities of $40,774,160, according to the tabulation made by R. G. Dun & Co. The increase over November was only 5% per cent, the smallest back to 1923, when it was 4½ per cent, and it compares with one of 16 per cent in 1927 and with one of 25 per cent in 1924.

The comparatively moderate mortality of the last two months shows, it is said, that the strains in connection with the year-end settlements were less of a factor than usual. It is remarked, moreover, that the number of defaults in December was the smallest for the month since 1925, and 10 per cent under the 2,162 mercantile reverses of December, 1927.

Comparisons of the indebtedness involved also place December in a favorable light. The $40,774,160 involved, while slightly above the amount for November, was 20½ per cent under the $51,062,253 of a year ago. It is noted, moreover, that declines appear in comparison with the figures for December of each of the last nine years, with the single exception of 1925, when the liabilities approximated $36,500,000. The high point for a December was reached in 1921, at about $37,500,000.

Monthly and quarterly figures for the past two years follow:

VINCENT ASTOR BUYS EAST 85TH ST. SITE

Assembles Large Plot at East End Av. for a 15-Story Apartment House.

BUILDERS PROTECT LIGHT

Purchase Parcel on East 79th Street —Other East Side Properties Are Sold.

Vincent Astor purchased the two five-story apartment houses at 535 and 537 East Eighty-fifth Street yesterday from Samuel J. Flash, operator. The houses are on a plot 50 by 100 feet and were recently bought by Mr. Flash. Mr. Astor now controls a plot on the northwest corner of East Eighty-fifth Street and East End Avenue, fronting 102 feet on the avenue by 198 feet in depth. The site is in the centre of the building activity in the Carl Schurz Park section and is to be improved with a fifteen-story and penthouse apartment.

To protect the light and air of the sixteen-story apartment house it is erecting on an adjacent site the 308 East Seventy-ninth Street Corporation purchased the five-story apartment at 322 East Seventy-ninth Street, on a lot 20 by 102 feet. The parcel was sold by Charles Hutzenlaub through William S. Baker and William J. Henderson, brokers.

The Waymart Realty Corporation, Alexander S. Bing, president, sold to the Stanhope Estates the two four-story houses at 1,067-1,069 First Avenue, adjoining the northwest corner of Fifty-eighth Street. The houses cover a plot 50 by 75 feet. Negotiations are pending for the resale of the parcel to a builder for additional plottage, which is to be improved with a fifteen-story apartment house. Howard Le C. Roome was the broker in yesterday's deal.

Jennie Goodman sold to the 1,126 Park Avenue Corporation the six-story apartment house at 119-121 East Ninety-sixth Street, between Lexington and Park Avenues. The Louis G. Fried Company acted as broker. Murray L. Gilman represented the purchaser.

The Marego Realty Company bought from George E. Stuckey the two four-story buildings at 304-306 East Thirty-fourth Street, near Second Avenue. Edward C. Sternlight was the broker.

The Alliance Realty Company has purchased from the Engelbert Bruner estate 345-347-349 East Thirty-fourth Street, three five-story tenement houses forming a plot 60 by 100 feet. This plot adjoins the northwest corner of First Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, now occupied by the Friendly Aid Society. The Leonard S. Gans Company was the broker.

The Schulte Real Estate Company sold to the Alliance Realty Corporation the four-story building known as 546 Third Avenue.

This deal represents the sale of one of the last parcels bought by the Schulte Company for speculative purposes on the east side, the Schulte Company having been pioneers in operations along First Avenue and East End Avenue. Harriet B. Weiser was the broker in the transaction.

OTHER MANHATTAN SALES.

Deals in Dwellings and Other Parcels Reported Yesterday.

George B. Skiffington bought yesterday from the Bellefonte Holding Corporation the seventeen-story loft, office and showroom building at 79-83 Fifth Avenue, at the southeast corner of Sixteenth Street. The structure is known as the Knickerbocker Building, and occupies a plot fronting 106 feet on Fifth Avenue by 159 feet on the street. The plot contains about 17,000 square feet.

The building houses a number of leading firms in the men's and boys' clothing industry. William S. Sussman was the broker.

The Title Guarantee and Trust Company announced yesterday its purchase of 6 and 8 East Forty-fifth Street, on a plot 50 by 100 feet. The brokers were Paul Saxe & Co. and Douglas Gibbons & Co. About two years ago the Title Guarantee and Trust Company purchased 3 and 5 East Forty-fourth Street, which immediately abuts its new purchase in the rear. Possession of the property can be obtained on May 1, 1929, at which time the purchaser will probably erect a new building. The parcel sold yesterday was disposed of by the Julia M. Schieffelin estate and the Durham Realty Corporation, representing the Duke interests.

Samuel J. Kaplan purchased 882 Sixth Avenue, key to the corner of Fiftieth Street, from Herman King. There is a deal pending to lease the entire building to a chain store organization to take effect at the expiration of the present lease. The broker in the deal was S. Kaplan.

Cusack & Gallagher, with Harry E. Blatus, sold for Mrs. Katherine A. Dixey her residence at 125 West Eightieth Street, to a client for occupancy. The house is a four-story building, 21 by 100 feet, and was held at $60,000. The sale included the furnishings.

Bee McGuiness and Emil F. Pshierer sold the two four-story buildings at 302-304 East Seventy-second Street, having a frontage of 40 feet. Julius B. Friedman and Clarkson P. Ryttenberg were the brokers.

The property at 328-334 Eighth Avenue has been traded by Dr. Alex Neshamkin for the four houses at 50-56 East 117th Street through Michael Leder, broker.

New Rochelle Building Report.

The New Rochelle building inspector's report for the year 1928 shows the total amount spent for building as $11,357,913. The largest item, both numerically and in money expended, was for one-family dwellings, 276 such permits being issued, for a total value of $4,223,650. The next largest item was for apartment structures to house from twenty-three to seventy-eight families each.

BRONX PROPERTIES SOLD

New Dealings in Improved and Unimproved Holdings.

As a site for a two-story taxpayer to contain twelve stores and offices, the northeast corner of White Plains Road and Lydig Avenue was purchased yesterday by Joseph Sager & Son, builders and operators. The plot is 100 by 100 feet, and with its proposed improvement will represent an investment of about $250,000. It is planned to complete the new structure by April 15. The seller was the Schulte Real Estate Company, which bought the property six months ago from the Sager interests, who are now buying it back. E. Osborne Smith was the broker.

The five-story apartment house at the southwest corner of Sedgwick Avenue and Kingsbridge Road, on a plot 55 by 108 by 86 by 100 feet, has been acquired by Max Just. The property was held at $190,000, and was sold through the Herman A. Acker Corporation as broker.

Contracts for the resale of a plot on the east side of the Grand Concourse, 147 feet north of East 183d Street, were signed yesterday by Mr. Just, who acquired the site from John Kadel. The plot is 50 by 125 feet, and runs through to Ryer Avenue. It was held at $75,000. John J. Reynolds was the broker.

The Lojo Realty Corporation, Louis Weissman, president, sold the three apartment houses at the southwest corner of the Grand Concourse and East 192d Street, known as 2,555, 2,559, 2,565 Grand Concourse. The buildings front 205 feet on the Concourse and 100 feet on the street. The buyers are Clement H. Smith and associates, who plan to make extensive alterations to the property. George I. Galitzka was the broker.

A plot 100 by 100 feet on the southeast corner of Westchester and Manor Avenues has been sold by the Nabo Realty Corporation through the Adams-Rubinstein Company, broker.

Percy Lewis has leased to the Kayruth Holding Corporation for twenty-one years the land and building at 647 Bergen Avenue. The lessee recently took title to the adjoining building at 2,952 Third Avenue, and after an extensive alteration this plot will be used as an extension.

LEASEHOLD DEALS.

Manhattan Parcels Reported Under New Control.

Paul Braus bought from Irving I. Lewine, Inc., a long-term leasehold covering two four-story remodeled dwellings at the northwest corner of Madison Avenue and Sixty-fifth Street. Improvement of the site with an eleven-story apartment hotel with stores is planned for next October. The plot is 40 by 100 feet. The seller recently acquired the lease from the Derfla Realty Corporation. The Herbert Hecht Company arranged the present deal.

Margaret Kenrick leased to the Litgold Realty Corporation two five-story flats at 11-21 West Sixty-fifth Street, on a plot 60 by 100 feet. The lease is for twenty-one years. The lessee plans to remodel the structures into small apartments. The Hidalgo Realty Corporation and the Haggerstrom & Callen Co. arranged the deal.

The Potential Realty Corporation leased through the same brokers the four upper floors at 141 West Sixty-ninth Street for ten years. The Misses Clara Hoops and Dana Woodruff, the lessees, plan to operate furnished apartments, particularly for theatrical persons.

Permits League to Sell Property.

Because the Junior League of the City of New York has found that the construction of a new social settlement house at 433 East Eighty-seventh Street, will cost more than the organization was prepared to spend, permission was obtained from Supreme Court Justice Mitchell yesterday to sell the property acquired there in 1927 for that purpose to the Groda Realty Company for $28,000. Mrs. Mary Ellis Peltz, president of the club, said the organization owns other real estate worth $421,896 and has personal property worth $617,468, while it owes $925,955, of which $205,500 is in mortgages on its realty.

Sales in Putnam County.

John W. Green of Danbury, Conn., has sold to the Barney Improvement Corporation a store, office and apartment building on the north side of Main Street, Brewster, known as the Foster Block. Another Putnam County parcel, the 120-acre former Burdick farm in Patterson, was sold by Arthur Hoffman to William Denahue. Arthur P. Budd was the broker.

The Duffy Brick Company has resold a 225-acre brickyard on the Hudson at Beacon, Dutchess County, New York, to the Ramsdell estate, which intends to modernize the plant. The property, held at $200,000, was acquired by the seller in 1925. Hamilton, Iselin & Co. and J. P. Schenck acted as brokers.

Brooklyn Apartment Is Sold.

The eight-family apartment house at 767 Lincoln Place, between Nostrand and Rogers Avenues, on a plot 34 by 127 feet, has been sold by a Mr. and Mrs. Bodan to a client of Paul A. Bogossian, broker.

BUSINESS LEASES.

Old Cotton Goods Firm Moves Downtown—Other Rentals.

Sherman Sons & Co., an old cotton goods firm which moved uptown to the Fourth Avenue district in 1907, is returning to the lower part of Manhattan, having leased a large part of the building at 71 and 73 Franklin Street. The business was established 125 years ago by the great-great-grandfather of Sherman Trowbridge, now president of the company. The Charles G. Edwards Company was the broker.

Other leases for business purposes announced yesterday included the following:

Libaire & Co., members of Stock Exchange, twenty-second floor and part of nineteenth floor in 37 Wall Street, for new main office, through Brown, Wheelock; Harris, Vought & Co., Equator Realty and Improvement Company and Beautician Publications, space in Court Square Building, 2 Lafayette Street; Loring M. Hewen Company, broker.

Hazeltine Service Corporation, Jack Binns, treasurer, top floor and penthouse of new Times-Circle Building, 335-9 West Fifty-second Street, for electrical and radio research laboratory; arranged for Adanfa Construction Company, S. L. Snyder, president, by Brett & Wyckoff and Cross & Brown. The building is 90 per cent rented above the ground floor, according to the agents.

L. W. Sweet, Inc., jewelry, second floor, 10,000 square feet, in building adjoining corner of Third Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street from F. W. Woolworth & Co.; Joseph Shaffer & Co., brokers. The space will have entrances from both streets.

DEALS IN NEW JERSEY.

Sales of Properties in State as Reported Yesterday.

Max Z. Hurwitz has leased for forty years the northeast corner of Bergen Avenue and Newkirk Street, in the Journal Square section of Jersey City. When he obtains possession Jan. 2, 1930, he plans to raze a row of taxpayers now on the site and erect a store and office building. The plot is 100 by 103 feet. Mr. Hurwitz sold last year his five department stores in Jersey City to the W. T. Grant Company, a chain organization, and is now investing in properties thought suitable for chain-store purposes. The A. F. Roe Company arranged the lease.

E. B. MacDonald, Inc., sold in the West Englewood Hills development seven building lots on Windsor Road and five building lots on Churchill Road. One-family houses are planned for the parcels.

A. E. Voskin exchanged a two-family house in the Greenville section of Jersey City for two one-family houses in Teaneck. The John J. O'Connell Company, Inc., and Tulp & Greene, Inc., arranged the deal.

James R. McMickle of Brooklyn, N. Y., bought a one-family house recently completed by Math Hiltgen on the west side of South Mountain Road, near Millburn Avenue, in the South Mountain Estates development near Newark. The plot is 50 by 145 feet. Harry J. Stevens was the broker.

REALTY FINANCING.

Apartment Hotel Site in University Place Mortgaged.

Loans secured by mortgages on the following properties were announced yesterday:

Manhattan.

Apartment hotel site at northeast corner of University Place and Twelfth Street, $550,000 to 101 University Place Corporation (Henry Mandel); advanced by New York Title and Mortgage Company. The old Schermerhorn home is now on the plot.

Bronx.

Five-story apartment house at 712 Fox Street, $144,000 first mortgage arranged for the N & D Realty Corporation, Isidor Nelson, president; Dowdney, Richart & Haigh, brokers.

One and three-story buildings at 3,504-3,600 Third Avenue; $45,000 first mortgage for the Kirkwell Realty Corporation, advanced by the Title Guarantee and Trust Company.

New Jersey.

Twelve-family house to be erected on east side of Chestnut Avenue, Teaneck, $35,000; two one-family homes on Shepard Avenue, Teaneck, $11,000; John J. O'Connell Company, Inc., broker.

General.

The Title Guarantee and Trust Company approved eighty-one loans amounting to $1,230,375, distributed as follows: Manhattan and the Bronx, $717,000; Brooklyn, Queens, Nassau and Suffolk $407,873; Staten Island, $155,500.

REAL ESTATE NOTES.

The Alliance Realty Company is the buyer of 320 East Thirty-fifth Street, the old Kip homestead, recently reported sold.

William Randolph Hearst has acquired title from the Liberty Place Holding Company to 61-63 West Fifty-sixth Street. Mr. Hearst owns 59, adjoining, as well as the connecting eastern blockfront on the east side of Sixth Avenue, between Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh Streets.

G. Richard Davis & Co. have been awarded the contract for construction of a fifteen-story apartment house at 154 to 162 East Forty-eighth Street, 147 to 157 East Forty-seventh Street and 760 to 774 Third Avenue, according to Brown's Letters, Inc., Construction Reports. The cost of the building will be about $1,500,000, according to Lafayette A. Goldstone, the architect.

FINDS PROPAGANDA IN PROSPERITY TALK

Economist of Industrial Conference Board Warns Advertisers on Inflation.

FORESEES PROBLEMS AHEAD

Depression in Basic Industries Is Real, He Says, Despite Gain From Investments.

There seems to be no basis in production, wages or consumers' purchasing power to account for the vast increase in banking credits and other financial activities of the present time, according to Virgil Jordan, chief economist of the National Industrial Conference Board, who spoke at a luncheon meeting of the Research Group of the Advertising Club, 23 Park Avenue, yesterday.

"The inflation of credit in this country during the past few years," he said, "is largely a reflection of a widespread inflation of business expectations which has resulted from a period of persistent and premature prosperity propaganda by interests seeking to unload non-interest-bearing speculative securities on the general public. The general impression has gotten about that our industry and trade has been growing at an exceptional rate, which will continue, and that the capitalization of this larger rate of growth in security values will be sustained somehow, and the capital equities which are represented in this enormous expansion of investments will be preserved and sustained by a corresponding growth of our production and trade.

"But any careful study of the general business situation makes it evident that this progress has not been general and that there are serious difficulties and problems to be met in consequence of the great changes that have taken place in recent years in the organization and methods of American business.

Points to Boom Psychology.

"American business men seem to be chronically incapable of being cured of the boom psychology, unable to look at fundamental industrial conditions in a realistic way and to accustom themselves to a regular and moderate growth of trade. This is partly the result of the incompleteness and misuse of statistics of business trends and parity of political and financial propaganda which would lead us to believe that all our industrial and commercial problems are solved and that American prosperity is universal and unlimited. We have not learned to look at the facts, to measure our real gains from year to year and to capitalize the future on the basis of actual accomplishments."

The depression in the basic industries, such as railroads, shipping, agriculture, coal and textiles, which has continued since the war, has been "submerged in the public consciousness," according to Mr. Jordan, because many of them have shown large profits. He pointed out, however, that in many cases the greater part of these profits resulted from additions to income coming from other sources than the actual trade operations of the industries. They, as well as the banks, have made money by outside investments, he said. There is cause for optimism as well as pessimism in this condition, Mr. Jordan continued, because it gives a wider base for economic security.

Fluctuation Less Acute.

"Because the area of business activity has been so greatly broadened in the years since the war," he said, "business conditions no longer depend so much upon conditions in a few basic industries. Consequently the total volume of trade in the United States fluctuates from year to year much less than does activity in the basic industries like iron and steel.

"The country does not go ahead any faster than the fundamental growth of the production and exchange of goods permit, and the pyramiding of security values and financial activities does not imply a corresponding measure of general economic progress. We must learn to control our rate of credit expansion more closely in proportion to the growth of industry and trade and deflate our financial expectations by fundamental economic realities. Until we can develop in our banking policy some larger degree of control over the distribution of credit resources than instalment buying, the whole structure is going to remain considerably unbalanced."

GERMAN SHIP STRIKE ENDS.

Labor Minister Declares Award of Arbitrators Is Binding.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 3.—The shipbuilders' strike, involving about 50,000 men for three months, will now be ended by arbitration, the court's decision having been declared binding by Herr Wissel, Minister of Labor. The plants are already prepared for the return of the workers, and they are not in a sufficiently strong position financially to defy the government, as did the Ruhr industrialists when they locked out 25,000 metal workers during the entire month of November.

Increases for the workers amount to from one to three cents an hour, with a slight reduction in some cases of the number of working hours in the week.

Now that the strike is ended the North German Lloyd hopes to be able to complete its two new giant liners, the Europa and Bremen, the longest vessels in the world, and put them into service for the Summer tourist rush between New York and Europe.

The strike has lost to the German industry many millions of marks, especially in repair work given to other countries because the German shops were closed.

Neither the workers nor employers accepted the arbitrators' decision, but now that it is declared binding there is no question work will be resumed immediately.

Night Line Closing Freight Season.

The freight boats of the Hudson River Night Line made their last northbound trip last night until the opening of the company's Spring season on April 1 and will make their last southbound trip tonight. Gross revenues of the company this season to date are $2,036,065, the largest in their history, and about $225,000 more than last year. Net income will be equal to about $5 a share on 30,000 common shares outstanding.

Malakoff Wrecked in Mediterranean

PORT OF MAHON, Isle of Minorca, Balearic Islands, Jan. 2 (?).—The French steamer Malakoff was wrecked between Cape Barrium and Santa Galdana Bay today. Some of those aboard were saved.

[The Malakoff is listed as bound from Dunkirk and Havre to Madagascar; her displacement is given as 2,819 tons.]

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 3.—A disturbance of minor intensity is advancing eastward over Quebec. The disturbance that was over Western Washington on Wednesday night has moved southeastward to Arizona and Utah. The Far Northern disturbance is moving east-southeastward, with centre northwest of Hudson Bay, and still another is approaching Western Alaska. Pressure is high elsewhere over North America and over the Western Atlantic Ocean.

Mostly fair weather will prevail Friday in the Atlantic States, the Ohio Valley, Tennessee and the lower lake region, but the eastward advance of the Arizona disturbance will be attended by widespread cloudiness on Saturday and precipitation, mostly in the form of rain, except near the northern border, is probable by Saturday night eastward to the Atlantic Coast. The temperature will be somewhat higher in the Atlantic States and the Southern Appalachian region Friday, but it will be lower in the upper Ohio Valley and the lower lake region Friday and in the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States Friday night.

HARVEY ASKS ACTION ON BRIDGE AND TUBE

In First Official Letter to the Mayor, Queens President Urges Finance Study.

FOR LEGISLATION IF NEEDED

But Calls for Prompt Construction of Tri-Borough Span and 38th St. Tunnel if City Can Meet Cost.

Borough President George U. Harvey of Queens sent his first official letter as borough executive yesterday to Mayor Walker and in it urged that a special committee of the Board of Estimate, appointed last September to study bridge and tunnel financing, "give careful consideration as to the city's ability to finance the construction of the Tri-Borough Bridge and the Thirty-eighth Street-East River Tunnel." If the city is able to finance the projects, Mr. Harvey wrote, "there seems to me to be no reason why the city should not proceed with the construction without delay."

Mr. Harvey added that if the city were not able to "meet the rapid construction of these projects," special legislation for construction of bridges and tunnels between boroughs "without the limitation of the city's debt limit" should be obtained. "If it be more expedient," Mr. Harvey recommended employment of private capital.

In his letter Mr. Harvey enclosed a report of a committee of Queens citizens he had appointed after his election to study the interborough traffic problem. The substance of the committee's recommendations was embodied in the letter. G. William Magly of Jamaica is chairman of the committee.

"During the last five years," Mr. Harvey wrote, "there have been numerous proposals and plans for increasing the means for highway traffic communication between the boroughs. It appears that of all these plans there have been only two which the city officials and practically all the civic associations in the boroughs affected have stamped with their approval. These projects are known as the Tri-Borough Bridge, connecting Astoria, Borough of Queens, at Potter Avenue, with 125th Street, Manhattan, and Southern Boulevard at 134th Street in the Bronx, and the proposed Thirty-eighth Street-East River Tunnel, running from First Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street, Manhattan, to Borden Avenue in Long Island City, with a branch into Manhattan Avenue, Greenpoint, Brooklyn."

Mr. Harvey, after declaring that he believed the Committee on Plan and Survey and the Regional Plan of New York had endorsed the two projects, said nothing had been "accomplished on the part of the city administration in the financing of either one of these projects." He declared "it is just as important to have the proper connections in the way of bridges and tunnels connecting the boroughs of Greater New York as it is to have New York and New Jersey linked together by tunnels and bridges."

DR. WISE, BACK, DECRIES ZIONIST ACTION ABROAD

Rabbi Fears Jewish Agency for Palestine May Fall Under Non-Zionist Control.

Returning on the Cunarder Berengaria from Berlin where he attended a meeting of the general council of the World Zionist Organization, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise expressed yesterday his strong disapproval of the action taken by the council in voting 39 to 5 in favor of a merger of the Zionists and non-Zionists.

"I have never opposed the Jewish Agency," Dr. Wise declared, "and I am not opposed to it now. I favor a Jewish Agency that shall conform to the terms of the mandate of the League of Nations to Great Britain and that shall not involve the risk of the Jewish Agency's coming under non-Zionist control. Palestine needs help, but the Jews are infinitely more in need of a national Jewish home."

In a written statement Dr. Wise said:

"As vice president of the executive council of the Zionist organization, I went to its recent Berlin session with S. J. Rosensohn of the New York bar, long associated with the Brandeis-Mack group in American Zionism. We sought to learn what was the mind of the European Zionists in relation to the proposed extension of the Jewish Agency. We learned things saddening and disillusioning. The Zionist organization has ceased to function in the interests of anything that may be called Zionism.

"That the Zionist leadership has generally speaking relinquished what for more than a generation we cherished as the Zionist ideal came to light in the unconsidered and unquestioning acceptance by the executive council of any sort of agency."

Louis Lipsky, president of the Zionist Organization in America, also returned on the Berengaria. Dr. Wise's explanation that he feared for the strength of the Zionist Organization, Mr. Lipsky charged, is camouflage for his aim to wreck the present leadership of the world organization.

CHURCH'S STATUE STOLEN.

Panama Chapel Lays Theft to Tourist on Belgenland.

Special to The New York Times.

BALBOA, Jan. 3.—Theft of an image of the infant Jesus from a Christmas crib in the Santo Domingo chapel here is charged against a souvenir hunting tourist from the Steamship Belgenland, which recently went through the canal on a round-the-world tour, according to a story published in The Panama American today.

The paper says that a few minutes after a group of tourists from the Belgenland had left the chapel the sacristan noticed the disappearance of the Christ child. He also reported that candelabra of considerable artistic value had disappeared the same day from San José Church, which is visited by tourists on account of the golden altar, removed from the ancient city of Panama and saved from a raid of the pirate Morgan.

A new and very good reason for bringing up your family in the city

the latest addition to Tudor City

HOUSEKEEPING apartments of 4 or 5 rooms in Haddon Hall make it possible for families where there are children to live healthfully, happily and well in the heart of New York. The apartments are designed to provide the utmost in comfort and convenience—large living room, two full-sized bedrooms, each with its own bath, maid's lavatory, ample closets and a pleasant kitchen with full equipment including Frigidaire. Just outside your door are trees, two large parks, even a miniature 18-hole golf course, plenty of good clean air—and quiet. For the children, a special playground has been provided where you may leave them under the supervision of a competent and watchful attendant, to romp to their heart's content. There's a resident nurse, in case of sudden illness. And there are many other services and conveniences: efficient laundry, valet, and maid service. Private policemen, garages, a general store, Restaurant and Coffee House, with service to your room when you want it. All of this and yet Tudor City is only a few minutes' walk to leading shops, theatres and Grand Central Station. Naturally, these apartments are being rented quickly. Why not go over and inspect them today? Renting agent on premises at 314 East 41st. Vanderbilt 8860.

Housekeeping 3, 4, 5 rooms $1530—$2800. Hotel 1 room—$840 up—2 rooms—$1215 up.

NEW: HARDWICKE HALL—HATFIELD HOUSE—HADDON HALL

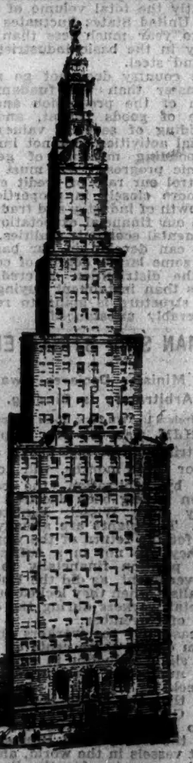
Returning Monday

to Our Historic Location—

48 WALL STREET



AS of January 7th, 1929, the business of The Bank of New York and Trust Company, oldest banking institution in the City, will again be conducted at 48 Wall Street. This site, since its purchase in 1796, has been occupied by the bank continuously save for the interruptions occasioned by building operations. Our clients will find all departments of the bank established in our new home Monday morning in anticipation of the formal opening of the quarters which will take place on Friday, January 11th—the 172nd anniversary of the birth of Alexander Hamilton, a founder of the bank.
